PREFACE

THE Indian Tantras, which are numerous, constitute the Scripture (Shāstra) of the Kaliyuga, and as such are a voluminous source of present and practical orthodox "Hinduism". The Tantra Shāstra is, in fact, whatever be its historical origin, a development of the Karmakāndā (using that term in the general sense of ritual section of the scripture), promulgated to meet the needs of that age. Shiva says: "For the benefit of men of the Kāli age, men bereft of energy and dependent for existence on the food they eat, the Kaula doctrine, O auspicious one! is given" (Ch. IX, verse 12). To the Tantras we must therefore look if we would understand aright both ritual, yoga, and sādhana of all kinds as they exist to-day, as also the general principles of which these practices are but the objective expression.

Yet of all the forms of Indian Shāstra, the Tantra is that which is least known and understood, a circumstance in part due to the difficulties of its subject-matter and to the fact that the key to much of its terminology and method rests with the initiate. The present translation is, in fact, the first published in Europe of any Indian Tantra. An inaccurate version rendered in imperfect English was published in Calcutta by a Bengali editor some twelve years ago, preceded by an Introduction which displayed insufficient knowledge in respect of what it somewhat quaintly described as "the mystical and superficially technical passages" of this Tantra. A desire to attempt to do it greater justice has in part prompted its selection as the first for publication. Another reason for such selection is that this Tantra has been the subject of Indian Commentary and Bengali translation. This Tantra is, further, one which is well known and esteemed, though perhaps more highly so amongst that portion of the Indian public which favours "reformed Hinduism" than amongst some Shākta Tāntrikas, to whom, as I have been told, certain of its provisions appear to display unnecessary timidity. The former admire it on account of its noble exposition of the worship of the Supreme Brahman, and in the belief that certain of its passages absolutely discountenance the orthodox ritual. Nothing can be more mistaken than such belief, even though it be the fact that "for him who has faith in the root, of what use are the branches and leaves". This anyone will discover who reads the text. It is true that, as Ch. VII, verse 94, says: "In the purified heart, knowledge of Brahman grows," and Brahmajnāne samutpanne kṛityā-kṛityang na vidyate. (When Brahman knowledge has arisen there is no longer distinction of what should or should not be done.) But the statement assumes the attainment of Brahmajnāna, and this, the Shāstra says, can be attained, not by Vedantic discussions nor mere prayer, after the manner of Protestant systems of Christian worship, but by the Sāadhanā which is its main subject-matter. I have referred to Protestant systems, for the Catholic Church possesses an elaborate ritual and a sāadhanā of its own which is in many points strikingly analogous to the Hindu system. The section of Tāntrikas to whom I have referred are, I believe, also in error. For the design of this Tantra appears to be, whilst conserving commonly-recognised Tāntrik principles, to secure that, as has sometimes proved to be the case, they are not abused. Pārvati says (Ch. I, verse 67): "I fear, O Lord! that even that which Thou hast ordained for the good of men will, through them, turn out for evil."

*Hitāya yāni karmāni kathitāni tvayā prabho
Manye tāni mahādeva viparītāni mānave.*

It is significant, in connection with these observations, to note that this particular Tantra was chosen as the subject of commentary by Shrīmad Hariharānanda Bhārati, the Guru of the celebrated Hindu "reformer," Rājā Ram Mohun Roy. As to this see Chapter V of "Shakti and Shakta".

The Tantra has been assigned by one of my informants to the division known as Vishnukrāntā and the eclectic Vilāsa Sampradāya. According to the Mahāsiddhasāra it belongs to Rathakrāntā. It was first published by the Ādi-Brahma-Samāja in 1798 Shakābda (A.D. 1876), and was printed in Bengali characters, with the notes of the Kulāvadhūta Shrīmad Hariharānanda Bhārati under the editorship of Anandachandra Vidyāvāgīsha. The preface to this edition stated that three MSS. were consulted; one belonging to the library of the Samāja; the second supplied by Durgādāsa Chaudhuri, and the third taken from the library of Rājā Ram Mohun Roy. This text appears to be the basis of subsequent publications. It was again printed in 1888 by Shrī Krishna Gopāla Bhakta, since when there have been several editions with Bengali translations, including that of Shrī Prasanna Kumāra Shāstrī. The late Pandit Jivānanda Vidyāsāgara published an edition in Devanāgara character, with the notes of Hariharānanda; and the Venkateshvara Press at Bombay have issued another in similar character with a Hindī translation.

The translation published is that of the first part only. It is commonly thought (and was so stated by the author of the Calcutta edition in English to which I have referred) that the second portion is lost. This is, however, not so, though copies of the complete Tantra are rare enough. The full text exists in manuscript, and I hope that an opportunity may some day be given of publishing a translation of it. I came across a complete manuscript some two years ago in the possession of a Nepalese Pandit. The exact date of the MSS. I forget. It was about Shakābdā 1,300 or say some 500 years old. He would, however, only permit me to make a copy of his manuscript on the condition that the Shatkarma Mantras were not published. For, as he said, virtue not being a condition precedent for the acquisition of siddhi in, that is, power to work, such Mantras, their publication might enable the evilly disposed to harm others, a crime which, he added, was, in his own country, where the Tantra Shāstra was current punishable by the civil power. I was unable to persuade him even with the observation that the mere publication of the Mantra without knowledge of what is called the Prayoga (which cannot be learned of books) would in any case be ineffectual. I could not give an undertaking which would have involved the publication of a mutilated text, and the reader must therefore for the present be content with a translation of the first part of the Tantra, which is generally known, and has, as stated, been several times printed. The incident has further value than the direct purpose for which I have told it. There are some to whom "the Tantra," is "nothing but black magic," and all its followers are "black magicians". This is of course absurd. In this connection I cannot avoid interposing the observation that certain practices are described in Tantra which, though they are alleged to have the results described therein, yet exist "for delusion." The true attitude of the higher Tāntrika is illustrated by the action of the Pandit who, if he disappointed my expectations, at any rate by his refusal afforded an answer to these too general allegations.

The second portion of the manuscript in his possession contained over double the number of Shlokas to be found in the first part here published.

The edition which has been used for the translation is that (now out of print) edited and published at Calcutta by Shri Krishna Gopāla Bhakta in Chaitra 1295 Bengali era (April, 1888), with Commentary of Shrimad Hariharānanda Bhārati, and with additional notes by the learned and lately deceased Pandit Jaganmohana Tarkālakāra. A new edition of the same work has been published with further notes by the latter's son, Pandit Jnānendranātha Tantrarātna since deceased.

This valuable Commentary alone is not, however, suitable for the general reader, for it assumes a certain amount of knowledge on his part which he does not possess. I have accordingly, whilst availing myself of its aid, written my own commentary. For the first edition I also wrote an Introduction explaining certain matters and terms referred to or presupposed by the text which, as they required a somewhat more extended treatment, could not be conveniently dealt with in the footnotes. Some of the matters there explained were, though common and fundamental, seldom accurately defined. Nothing, therefore, was lost by a re-statement of them with an intention to serve such accuracy. Other matters were of a special character, either not generally known or misunderstood. The Introduction, however, did not profess to be an exhaustive treatment of that with which it dealt. On the contrary, it was but an extended note written to help some way towards a better understanding of the text by the ordinary reader. Since however the date of the first edition I have published a number of works on the Shāstra both of a popular and technical nature. These more fully deal with the matters treated of in the former Introduction which is therefore no longer needed.¹ To the reader who would understand this work I would recommend the books "Shakti and Shākta" where in a popular manner the author has explained the doctrine and ritual of the Shākta Tantras of which the present volume is one; "The Garland of Letters" (Varnamālā) dealing with "Sound" (Shabda) and the technique of Mantra which forms so important a part of the Tantrashāstra that its other and common name is Mantra-Shāstra; and the "Serpent Power," which has as its subject Yoga and in particular that portion of it which is done by the arousing of Kundalinī Shakti famous in all Tantras. The reader who desires to come into the closest contact with the Indian spirit in these matters will find what he wants in the two volumes "Principles of Tantra"² under which title I have published a translation of the Tantratattva by Pandit Shivachandra Vidyārṇava. Other works on the Tantrashāstra which I have published will be found in the advertisements at the end of this book. Further ritual detail is given in the English Introductions to my series of "Tantrik Texts". There are, however, some matters in the Shāstra or its accompanying oral tradition which the reader must, and if disposed thereto will, find out for himself. This, too, is implied by the saying in this Tantra that it is by merit acquired in previous births that the mind inclines to Kaula doctrine (Chapter VII, verse 99). However this may be, no one will understand the Shāstra who starts his inquiry with a mind burdened with the current prejudices against it, whatever be the truth some of them may possess by reason of actual abuse of Shāstric principles. I have taken advantage of the present edition which supersedes the last to correct mistakes and to improve the translation generally. Working in a new field it is difficult to escape error.

² Now published in one volume 2nd Edn. 1952.

The Sanskrit text¹ is in preparation and when ready will form Vol. XIII of the series of Tantrik Texts issued with the aid of Indian Pandits under my general editorship.

In conclusion, I wish to thank my Indian friends for the aid they have given me in the preparation of this and other kindred works, and to whom I am indebted for much information gathered during many pleasant hours which we have spent together in the study of a subject of common interest to them and myself. The Tantras generally are written in comparatively simple Sanskrit. For their rendering, however, a working knowledge of their terminology and ritual is required, which can be only fully found in those to whom it is familiar through race, upbringing, and environment, and in whom there is still some regard for their ancient inheritance. As for others, they must learn to see through the Indian eye of knowledge until their own have been trained to its lines of vision. In this way we shall be in the future spared some of the erroneous presentments of Indian beliefs common in the past and even now too current.

THE GREAT LIBERATION

(MAHĀNIRVĀNA TANTRA)¹

THE LIBERATION OF BEINGS

THE enchanting summit of the Lord of Mountains,² resplendent with all its various jewels, clad with many a tree and many a creeper, melodious with the song of many a bird, scented with the fragrance of all the season's flowers, most beautiful, fanned by soft, cool, and perfumed breezes, shadowed by the still shade of stately trees;³ where cool groves resound with the sweet-voiced songs of troops of

² Mount Kailāsa, the Paradise of Shiva. Esoterically, the Sahasrārā Padma (see Tripurā-sāra, cited in Bhāskararāya's Commentary on Lalitā-sahasra-nāma, v. 17). The Kulārṇava says that there is Kailāsa where His worshippers are gathered. The first few lines on this page are somewhat freely rendered.

Apsarā,¹ and in the forest depths flocks of Kokila² madened with passion sing; where (Spring)³ Lord of the Seasons with his followers ever abides—the Lord of Mountains, (Kailāsa); peopled by troops of⁴ Siddha,⁵ Chārana,⁶ Gandharva,⁷ and Gānapatya⁸ (1-5). It was there that Pārvatī,⁹ finding Shiva, Her gracious Lord, in mood serene, with obeisance bent low and for the benefit of all the worlds questioned Him, the Silent Deva,¹⁰ Lord of all things movable and immovable,¹¹ the ever Beneficent¹² and ever

⁶ Celestial dancers, singers, and bards or panegyrists of the Devas.

⁹ Spouse, or Shakti, of Shiva, so called as being the Daughter of Parvata, the Mountain (Himavat, Himālaya, that which has, or is, the abode of snow). Hence She is called Giri-jā, Giri-sutā, Haimavatī.

¹⁰ Because then observing the vow of silence (Mauna-vrata). Deva = luminous One. Devam = Dīptimantam (Bhārati).

¹² Sadāshiva the Ever Gracious One from whom all that is good and auspicious issues.

Blissful One,¹ the nectar of Whose mercy abounds as a great ocean, Whose body is Pure Sattva Guna,² He Who is white as camphor and the Jasmine flower,³ the Omnipresent One, Whose raiment is space⁴ itself, Lord of the poor and the beloved and loving Master of all Yogis,⁵

² Shuddha-sattva-maya—that is, whose body is predominantly composed of the first of the three Gunas or qualities in things, Sattva, Rajas, and Tamas. And so Shiva is stated to be Sāttvika. The Gunas are never disassociated. Rajas and Tamas are always operating in relation to Sattva but here Sattva is predominant (Sattva-pradhāna). In the experience of Parameshvara during cosmic life all is presented (this is Sattva). Sattva goes on (this is the effective force of Rajas which merely keeps Sattva going on as such). Hence Sattva is not strained or pierced by Rajas. Tamas operates as a tendency only but not as an effective force because nothing is veiled or suppressed in Ishvara Experience. He is Sarvajna and Sarvavit. Still everything may be veiled during Laya or Cosmic Sushupti, so that there is a tendency to veiling. Here, Shiva is referred to as the Supreme Lord, in His Sattva aspect, called Sadāshiva, the Cause of Release, the Conferer of Blessing (Anugrahada), the ever Blissful One (vide post), and (later) Jñānamaya. Shiva, in His Sāttvika quality, is also called Mrida (Happiness) in the Mahimnah-stava. He has other aspects (see post).

Whose coiled and matted hair¹ is wet with the spray of Gaṅgā² and (of Whose naked body) ashes are the adornment³ only; the passionless One⁴ Whose neck is garlanded with snakes and skulls of men, the three-eyed One,⁵ Lord of the three worlds,⁶ with one hand wielding the trident and with the other bestowing blessings⁷; easily appeased, Whose very substance is unconditioned Knowledge;⁸ the Bestower of eternal Liberation,⁹ unconditioned,¹⁰ from whom

² Hence He is called Gaṅgā-dhara. When the Ganges descended from heaven He intercepted it by His head, so that the earth might not be crushed by the weight of the falling stream. It is said that the Ganges was first held in the water-jar (Kamandalu) of Brahmā, then in the hair of Shiva, and lastly in the body of Jahnu, whence it is called the Jāhnāvi (see Shangkarāchārya's Gaṅgāśhtakam in "Hymns to the Goddess").

⁴ Shānta (the tranquil) and Atita (the transcendent), are aspects of Shiva. In man Shānta is he who has controlled his Antaḥkarana. As Shruti says: "This fire is verily Rudra Himself; of Him there are two bodies, one fierce and the other gentle" (Taittirīya saṁhitā, 5-7-8).

comes no fear,¹ Changeless, Stainless,² One without defect,³ the Benefactor of all, and the Deva of all Devas⁴ (6-10).

Shrī Pārvatī said :

O Deva of the Devas, Lord of the world, Jewel of Mercy, my Husband, Thou art my Lord, on Thee I am ever dependent and to Thee I am ever obedient. Nor can I say ought without Thy word. If Thou hast affection for me, I crave to lay before Thee that which passes in my mind. Who else but Thee, O Great Lord,⁵ in the three worlds is able to solve these doubts of mine, Thou Who knowest all and all the Scriptures (11-13).

Shrī Sadāshiva⁶ said :

What is that Thou sayest, O Thou Great Wise One⁷ and Beloved of My heart, I will tell Thee anything, be it ever so bound in mystery, even that which should not be spoken of before Ganesha⁸ and Skanda⁹ Commander of the ¹ Nirātangka. There is no need to fear Him.

² Niranjana (Anjana = Collyrium), which, however, Hariharānanda Bhārati translates as "incomprehensible to the ignorant". The Shabda-kalpa-druma gives the definition as Nirgatam anjanam iva ajñānam yatra (one in whom no ignorance like a black stain exists) : "the perfect Knower".

³ Nirāmaya. He is Health itself.

⁵ Maheshvara, or Great Lord, and Supreme Person.

⁷ Mahā-prājñe.

⁸ and ⁹ Both sons of Shiva, the first being the elephant-headed Deva (for Dhyāna, see Mantra-mahodadhi, chap. ii), who—according to the Gāyatrī Tantra (chap. x)—wrote down the Tantras at the dictation of Shiva; and the second Kumāra, or Kārttikeya, the War God and Leader of the celestial army, who was begotten by Shiva at the request of the Devas to destroy the Demon Tāḍakāśura, and so called because brought up by the six celestial Krittikās. In begetting Hosts of Heaven. What is there in all the three worlds which should be concealed from Thee ? For Thou, O Devi, art My very Self. There is no difference between Me and Thee.¹ Thou too art omnipresent. What is it then that Thou knowest not that Thou questionest like unto one who knoweth nothing (14-16).

The pure² Pārvatī, gladdened at hearing the words of the Deva, bending low made obeisance and thus questioned Shangkara³ (17).

Kārttikeya Pārvatī was unable to retain Shiva's seed, which was then thrown into Fire (hence called Kaumāra-tejaḥ, see ch. vi, 148 notes), Who, unable to keep it, threw it into Gaṅgā, who in turn threw it into a reed-forest, where Kārttikeya was born. Hence he is called "Reed-born" (Shara-janmā); and because he shamed Kāma-deva by his beauty, he is called Kumāra (see Matsya Purāna). The reason why these two are referred to is to show the greatness of the mystery revealed. Beloved and powerful as they are they yet know it not.

¹ Mama rūpā'si devi tvam na bhedo'sti tvayā mama : for in their ultimate ground both Shiva and Shakti are one. The former is the static aspect of the Supreme Consciousness (Samvid) and the latter its kinetic aspect as Creative Power. Power (Shakti) and Possessor of power (Shaktimān) are one. It is a commonplace of the Shākta Tantras that there is no Shiva without Shakti nor Shakti without Shiva. In the Sanat-kumāra Sam., speaking of devotion to Pārvatī, it is said : "Janārdana (Vishnu) is thus in the form of Devī as well as in His own form, for the husband and wife, being one, the only One is worshipped as two." Rūpa is form and function. Rūpyate rūpakriyāvishishtā vidhiyate, iti, rūpā. They are one in the ground and one in the manifestation. Some read Matsvarūpā for Mama rūpā, that is, my self.

Shrī Ādyā¹ said :

O Bhagavan!² Lord of all, Greatest among those who are versed in Dharma,³ Thou in former ages in Thy mercy⁴ didst through Brahmā⁵ reveal the four Vedas⁶ which are the propagators of all Dharma⁷ and which ordain the rules of life for all the varying castes⁸ of men and for the different stages⁹ of their lives (18-19). In the First Age,¹⁰ men

³ Law of Form and rule of right living.

⁴ Appeal is made to the pity of the Lord so that as he had liberated the men of the Satya and Tretā and Dvāpara ages (Yuga) by the teachings of Shruti, Smṛiti and Purāna so He may save the men of the Kali age by revealing this Tantra.

by the practice of Yoga¹ and Yajna² prescribed by Thee were virtuous and pleasing to Devas and Pitris³ (20). By the study of the Vedas, by Dhyāna and Tapas,⁴ and the conquest of the senses, by acts of mercy⁵ and charity⁶ men were of exceeding power⁷ and courage,⁸ industry⁹ and prowess,¹⁰ adherents of the true Dharma,¹¹ good¹² and truthful,¹³ and, mortals though they were, they were yet like Devas and went to the abode of the Devas (21, 22). Kings then were faithful to their engagements and were ever concerned

² In a particular sense sacrifice and in a general sense worship.

⁴ Meditation and austerities. The term Tapas is also used in a very wide sense such as here observance of the Chāndrāyāna and other rites which involve mortification of the body for self-discipline and worship generally. It is of three kinds, bodily (Sharīra), by speech (Vāchika), and in mind (Mānasa). Each of these again may be Sāttvika, Rājasika or Tāmasika. Dhyāna is meditation on the supreme Spirit (Paramātma-chintana).

⁵ Dayā : that is the desire to relieve the distress of others without being moved thereto by hope of reward.

¹⁰ Parākrama = Shauryya, might or prowess.

with the protection of their people, upon whose wives they were wont to look as if upon their mothers, and whose children they regarded as their very own (23). The people, too, did then look upon a neighbour's property as if it were mere lumps of clay, and, with devotion to their Dharma,¹ kept to the path of righteousness (24). There were then no liars, none who were selfish, thievish, malicious, foolish, none who were evil-minded, envious, wrathful, gluttonous, or lustful, but all were good of heart and of ever blissful mind. Land then yielded in plenty all kinds of grain, clouds showered seasonable rains, cows gave abundant milk, and trees were weighted with fruits (25-27). No untimely death there was, nor famine nor sickness. Men were ever cheerful, prosperous and healthy, and endowed with all qualities of beauty and brilliance. Women were chaste and devoted to their husbands. Brāhmanas, Kshatriyas, Vaishyas, and Shūdras² kept to and followed the Dharma³ of their respective castes in their worship and attained the final Liberation (28-29).

After the Krita⁴ Age had passed away, Thou didst in the Tretā Age⁵ perceive Dharma to be in disorder, and that men were no longer able by Vedic rites to accomplish their desires. For men, through their anxiety and perplexity, were unable to perform these rites in which much trouble had to be overcome, and for which much preparation had to be made.⁶ In constant distress of mind they were neither able to perform nor yet were willing to abandon the rites (30-32).

Having observed this, Thou didst make known on earth the Smṛiti Scripture¹ which explains the meaning of the Vedas, and thus delivered from sin, which is cause of all pain, sorrow, and sickness, men too feeble for the practice of *Tapas*² and the study of the Vedas. For men in this terrible ocean of the world,³ who is there but Thee to be their Cherisher, Protector, Saviour, their fatherly Benefactor, and Lord ? (33-34).

Then, in the Dvāpara Age,⁴ when men abandoned the good works prescribed in the Smṛitis, and were deprived of one half of *Dharma*⁵ and were afflicted by ills of mind and body, they were yet again saved by Thee, through the instructions of the *Samhitās*⁶ and other religious lore (35-36).⁷

² Ibid. and ante p. 8, n. 4.

³ Ghora-sangsāra-sāgara—that is, the world is an ocean, in the waters of which are things of terror and evil, causing sorrow and pain. For a safe crossing there is need of the guidance of the Lord, and so in the Stotra in chap. iii, verse 63, He is called the "Vessel of Safety in the Ocean of Being".

⁴ The Third, or Dvāpara Yuga.

⁵ That is, had but one-half of the religious merit of the First Age.

⁶ The term literally means collection and varies as Tarkālangkāra says according to the age to which it is applied. Thus in Tretā it means Manu and other Smṛitis, in Dvāpara the Purānas and in Kali the Āgamas, Nigamas and 64 Tantras for each of the Krāntās.

⁷ The Purānas and the like.

Now the sinful Kali Age¹ is upon them, when Dharma² is destroyed, an Age full of evil customs and deceit. Men pursue evil ways. The Vedas have lost their power, the Smritis are forgotten, and many of the Purānas,³ which contain stories⁴ of the past, and show the many ways (which lead to Liberation), will, O Lord! be destroyed. Men will become averse from religious rites, without restraint, maddened with pride, ever given over to sinful acts, lustful, gluttonous, cruel, heartless, harsh of speech, deceitful, short-lived, poverty-stricken, harassed by sickness and sorrow, ugly, feeble, low, stupid, mean, and addicted to mean habits, companions of the base, thievish, calumnious, malicious, quarrelsome, depraved, cowards, and ever-ailing,⁵ devoid of all sense of shame and sin, shameless seducers of others' wives.⁶ Vipras will live like the ¹ The Fourth, or worst of the Ages. It is for this age that the Tantra Shāstra is prescribed. So it is said in the Kulārṇava Tantra.

Kṛite shrutyudito dharmaś tretāyāṅ smṛiti-sambhavaḥ.

Dvāpare tu purānoktaḥ kalāvāgamasammataḥ.

In the Satya or Kṛita Age Dharma is as taught in Shruti. In Tretā Smṛiti is followed. The Dharma of the Dvāpara Age is as spoken of in the Purānas and in the Kali Age it is as approved in the Āgama. That is these are the respective Scriptures for the Ages, differing presentments of the means for attainment of the one Truth which all Ages seek.

⁴ Itihāsa (histories).

⁵ In Shrīmad-bhāgavata (chap. i, verse 10) it is said: "Verily, O Righteousness, in the Kali Age men are generally short-lived, indolent, of short understanding, unfortunate, and afflicted." On which Vishvanātha Chakravartin's gloss is: "Men in this age are generally short-lived, yet, if they live a little longer, they care not to know about the Supreme Being. Where persons are somewhat active in this respect, yet they are very short of understanding, and therefore unable to understand the nature of the Supreme Being. Even if they be intelligent and endeavour to understand such things, they are unfortunate, and fail to secure the company of righteous men; and even if they do they are subject to disease, pain, and sorrow" (ed. Mahendranāth Chatterjee, p. 34).

They will be without faith or devotion,⁷ and will do Japa⁸ and Pūjā⁸ with no other end than to dupe the people. They will eat unclean food and follow evil customs, they will serve and eat the food of the Shūdras, be dependent on others⁹ and lust after low women,¹⁰ and will be wicked and ready to barter for money even their own wives to the low. In short, the only sign that they are Brāhmanas will be the thread¹¹ they wear. Observing no rule in eating or drinking or in

By Thee also have been spoken for the good and Liberation of men the Tantras, a mass of Āgamas and Nigamas,¹ which bestow both Enjoyment and Liberation,² containing Mantras³ and Yantras⁴ and rules as to the Sādhana⁵ of both Devīs and Devas. By Thee, too, have been described many forms of Nyāsa,⁶ such as those called Srishti, Sthiti (and Samhāra).⁷ By Thee, again, have been

³ See "Shakti and Shākta".

⁴ Diagrams used for worship, as to which see ibid. Kaulāvali Tantra says:

"Yantram mantra-mayam proktam, mantrātmā devataiva hi,
Dehātmanor yathā bhedo, yantra-devatayos tathā.

(The substance of Yantra is Mantra; the Devatā is Mantra. The distinction between Yantra and Devatā is of that between the body and the Ātmā or Self). As to the great Shrī Yantra of which the Yoginī-hridaya says (Ch. I): "When the Supreme Shakti of Her own will assumes the form of the Universe and sees Her own becoming then the Shrīchakra (Yantra) comes into being." See Introduction to Tantrarāja in my Tantrik Texts.

described the various seated positions¹ (of Yoga), such as that of the "tied"² and "loosened" lotus;³ the Pashu, Vira, and Divya classes of men,⁴ (the knowledge of which, leads to the attainment of Siddhi in the Mantras of the Devatās⁵ (51-52). And yet again it is Thou Who hast made known in a thousand ways rites relating to the worship with woman,⁶ and the rites which are done with the use of skulls,⁷ a

Tarkālangkāra says that Latāsādhana is that Sādhana in which the Sādhaka is assisted by his Shakti. Rules relating to it are given in the Kaulāvalī, p. 29, Prānatoshinī, p. 618, 2nd edition. Gandharva Tantra, p. 60. The Yoga method is different in Shivasamhitā, p. 75, also Hathapradīpikā and Yoga Chintāmani.

Mundāsana is of differing kinds. The Sādhaka sits in manner enjoined over the head of a Chandāla, or on the heads of a Chandāla, a jackal or a monkey or on the heads of a jackal, a monkey, a snake and two Chandālas or on a hundred human heads. All these heads are put inside a raised mud platform on which the Sādhaka sits.

corpse,¹ or when seated on a funeral pyre² (53). By Thee, too, have been forbidden both Pashu-bhāva and Divya-bhāva.³ If in this Age the Pashu-bhāva cannot exist, how can there be Divya-bhāva? (54). For the Pashu must with his own hand⁴ collect leaves, flowers, fruits, and water, and should not look at a Shūdra⁵ or even think of a woman⁶ (55). On the other hand, the Divya is all but a Deva, ever pure of heart, and to whom all opposites are alike,⁷ free from attachment to worldly things,⁸ the same to all creatures⁹ and forgiving (56). How can men with the taint of this Age upon them, who are ever of restless mind, prone to sleep and sloth, attain to purity of

In Shavāsana in the Mantra method the Sādhaka sits on the corpse of a Chandāla and does japa of his Mantra (see Kaulāvalī, p. 52). In the Yoga method the Sādhaka lies on his back and practises Yoga according to the instructions of his Guru. See the account given in the Gheraṇḍa Saṅghitā, Hathapradīpikā.

In Chitāroha or Chitāsādhana the Sādhaka sits on an extinguished but not purified pyre and does Japa of his Mantra in manner enjoined (see Kaulāvalī, p. 48).

⁵ The follower of Smṛiti (Pashu) should not at worship see the face of a Shūdra, or think of woman for his mind is weak.

O Shangkara² by Thee, too, have been spoken the rites of Vira-sādhana,³ wherein are used the Panchatattva⁴—namely, wine,⁵ meat,⁶ fish,⁷ parched grain⁸ and sexual union of man and woman⁹ (58-59). But since the men of the Kali Age are full of greed, lust and gluttony, they will on that account neglect Sādhana¹⁰ and will fall into sin, and having drunk much wine for the sake of the pleasure of the senses, will become mad with intoxication, and bereft of all notion of right and wrong¹¹ (60-61). Some men will ⁹ Maithuna, vv. 172 and 173 of chapter viii, however, state that, owing to the limited intelligence and lust of the men of the Kali Age, they cannot recognise women to be manifestations of Shakti or Divine Power and for them, therefore, the worship of the feet only of the Devī is prescribed, just as Madhu-traya is substituted in lieu of wine. In the Sāttvika Sādhana, this and the preceding terms have another and esoteric meaning (see "Shakti and Shākta"). There is Kishorī-Sādhana amongst Vaishnavas.

THE WORSHIP OF BRAHMAN

HAVING heard the words of the Devī, Shangkara,¹ Bestower of happiness on the world,² great Ocean of Mercy, thus truly spoke.³

Sadāshiva¹ said :

O Exalted and Holy One!⁴ Benefactress of the universe, well has it been asked by Thee. By none has such an auspicious question been asked aforetime (1-2). Worthy of all honour art Thou, Who knoweth, what is right, O Benefactress of all born in this age!⁵ O Gentle One! what Thou hast said is verily true. O Parameshvari, Thou art Omniscient. Thou knowest the past, present, and future,⁶ and Dharma. What Thou hast said about Dharma of the past, present, and future, is without doubt true⁷ according to the injunctions⁸ and appropriate.⁹ O Sureshvari!¹⁰ men, whether they be of the twice born¹¹ or other castes, afflicted as they are by this sinful Age,¹ and unable to distinguish the pure from the impure, cannot gain purity by the Vedic rituals, or the success of their desired ends or by the Saṁhitās² and Smritis³ (3-6). Verily, verily, and yet again verily, I say unto you, O beloved, that in this Age⁴ there is no way to Liberation but that proclaimed by the Āgama⁵ (7). I, O Blissful One,⁶ have already foretold in the Vedas,⁷ Smritis,⁸ and Purāṇas,⁹ that in this Age the wise shall worship the Devas according to the method enjoined in the Āgama (8). Verily, verily, and beyond all doubt, I say to you that there is no Liberation for him who in this Age, goes counter to such scripture and follows another (9). There is no Lord but I in this world, and I alone am He Who is spoken of in the Vedas, Purāṇas, and Smritis and Saṁhitās¹⁰ (10). All these teach that My abode is the Purifier of all

Sarvāchārat paribhrashtā kulāchārang samāshrayat
Kulāchārātparibhrashto rauravang narakang brajet.

(Let him who is fallen from all other Āchāras seek shelter in Kulāchāra but he who is fallen from Kulāchāra goes to the Raurava Hell.)

the worlds,¹ and they who are averse to My doctrine are unbelievers and sinners, as great as those who slay a Brāhmana (11). Therefore, O Devi! the worship of him who heeds not My precepts is fruitless, and, moreover, such an one goes to hell² (12). The fool who would follow other doctrine heedless of Mine is as great a sinner as the slayer of a Brāhmana or of a woman, or a parricide; have no doubt of that (13).

In this Age³ the Mantras⁴ of the Tantras are efficacious,⁵ yield immediate fruit, and are auspicious for Japa,⁶ Yajna,⁷ and all such practices and ceremonies (14).⁸ The Vedic rites and Mantras which were efficacious in the First Age⁹ have ceased to be so in this. They are now as powerless as snakes, the poison-fangs of which are drawn. They were fruitful in the Satya and other ages but in the Kali Age they are as if dead (15). The whole heap of other Mantras have no more power than the organs of sense of some image in a wall. To worship with the aid of other Mantras is as fruitless as it is to cohabit with a barren woman. Nothing is gained and the labour is lost (16-17). He who in this

Age¹ seeks salvation by ways prescribed by others is like a thirsty fool who digs a well on the bank of the Jāhnavī² (18),

On this Tarkālangkāra observes as follows: What is the reason why the Vaidik Mantras were formerly fruitful but are no longer so. As a fact the prescribed fruit may be gained by the doing of Vedic rites and following the Vaidika āchāra as also by doing the rites approved in the Smṛitis, Purānas, Shaivāchāra, Vaishnavāchāra, Dakshināchāra, Vāmāchāra, Siddhāntāchāra and Kaulāchāra. The Uttara Tantra gives the relative excellence of Vedāchāra, Vaishnavāchāra, Shaivāchāra, Dakshināchāra, Vāmāchāra, Siddhāntāchāra and Kaulāchāra the highest beyond which there is nothing higher. (Each of these Āchāras is more excellent than that which precedes them—see also Kulārṇava, Ch. II, vv. 7, 8.) Of these Āchāras the first three are included in Pashubhāva. Dakshināchāra is mid-way between Pashu and Vīra. Vāma and Siddhānta are in Virābhāva and Kulāchāra, though it is in Virāchāra, in its highest stage attains to Divyabhāva. The reason why the Pashubhāva is forbidden in this Tantra is that in the Kali age no one can fully observe the rules of Vedāchāra, Vaishnavāchāra and Shaivāchāra. If this is not done then the Vaidika, Smārta, and Paurāṇik Mantras, rules and sacrifices cannot bear any fruit. Who in the present day is able to observe Vedāchāra? Who after his investiture with the sacred thread lives in the family of the Guru rigidly observing the continent life (Brahmacharyya) and who returning therefrom between the ages of 24 and 30 takes a wife and enters the life of a householder? Who again on his attaining the age of 50 years enters the stage of Vānaprastha? Do the Brāhmanas of the present day maintain themselves by what they earn by teaching or the performance of sacrifices: If (as is patent) the men of the present age are not observant of the injunctions (Shāsaṇa) of the Vedas then how can they hope that the Vaidika rules will do them good? As a fact it is impossible to observe Pashubhāva. Thus no one can carry out the injunction which says that the Pashu should collect for himself leaves, flowers, fruits and water and should not look on a Shūdra or think of a woman. It is difficult to come across a pure Pashu who is not fallen by association with the wicked—with those who are fallen by keeping the company of Mlechchhas, wine-drinking and other bad habits. On this account Shiva has said that there is no Pashubhāva in the Kali age. If there is no Pashubhāva there are no rites of Pashubhāva. Therefore under present circumstances no fruit can be gained by the use of Vaidik Mantras and the like which are appropriate for Pashubhāva only. It is on this account that Shiva revealed the Āgamas for the salvation of men who have fallen from their Āchāra. At present there is no path to Liberation outside the Āgama.

and he who, knowing My Dharma, craves for any other is as one who with nectar in his house yet longs for the poisonous juice of the Ākanda plant¹ (19). No other path is there to salvation and happiness in this life or in that to come like unto that shown by the Tantras which give both happiness and Liberation² (20). From my mouth have issued the several Tantras with their sacred legends and practices both for Siddhas and Sādhakas³ (21). At times, O My Beloved! by reason of the great number of men of the Pashu⁴ disposition, as also of the diversity of the qualifications⁵ of men, it has in some places been said that the Dharma spoken of in the Kulāchāra⁶ Scriptures should be kept secret (22). And in some places again I have, O Beloved! revealed some Tantras with the object of inclining the minds of men thereto.⁷ Various are the Deva and Devis who have been spoken of as also Bhairavas,⁸ Vetālas⁹

⁷ Jīva-pravṛitti-kārīni kānichit kathitānyapi—that is, to create some desire in their minds so that they may be inclined towards it. On this Bhārati says: In the preceding verse He has enjoined secrecy in respect of some practices. In this He says that He has also revealed some Tantras to induce men towards these practices without disclosing their difficulties. In verses 23-24 he further develops the topic of the difference in Adhikāra.

As and when questions were asked of me by any one, so O Beloved, did I give as reply which was appropriate and of benefit to him¹¹ (26).

None before has ever questioned Me as Thou hast done for the advantage of all mankind—nay, for the benefit of all that breathes, and that, too, in such detail and with reference to the needs of the present age.¹² Therefore, out of My affection for Thee, O Pārvatī! Since I have been moved by Thee for the good of the world, I will speak to Thee of that which will lead to the benefit of the universe (32).

O Parameshvarī! should good be done to the universe, the Lord of the universe⁵ is pleased, since He is its Self, and it depends on Him (33). He is One. He ever is. He is the Truth. He is the Supreme Unity without a second. He is Ever-full and Self-manifest.⁶ He is Eternal

The answer is that the Vishva (the universe or all) is in Him. Now how is it that you say that He is Vishvatma or Soul of the Universe. The answer is that the Vishva has its support on Him.

³ Nir-ādhāra. That which supports itself and is supported by nothing.

⁴ Nir-vishesha=Svagatabhedarahita. Bheda or difference and distinction which marks finitized being is of three kinds, viz., intrinsic or Svagata such as the distinction which exists between the leaves and branches of the same tree and extrinsic which is Sajātiya such as the distinction which exists between one kind of tree and another and Vijātiya the distinction which exists between trees and things which are not trees. The Brahman is free of all Bheda.

² Tam na jñāti kashchana. The All-knowing Paramātmā knows all but no one knows Him.

⁵ Īshvara, God as Creator and Ruler of the universe.

⁶ See Woodroffe's "Shakti and Shākta". His Power as material cause of the universe.

⁸ That is, who is not affected by time, fear and death.

Bhagavān,¹ Who is indicated by the words *Yat Tat*² in the Vedānta³ (45). O Adored of the Devas! all the Devas and Devīs—nay, the whole universe, from Brahmā to a blade of grass—are His forms⁴ (46). If He be pleased, the Universe is pleased. If aught be done to gratify Him, then the gratification of All is caused (47). As the pouring of water at the root of a tree satisfies the wants of the leaves and branches, so by worshipping Him all the Deathless Ones⁵ are satisfied (48). Just as, O Virtuous One! all the beautiful Devīs⁶ are pleased when Thou art worshipped and when men meditate on and make Japa and pray to Thee (49). As all rivers must go to the ocean, so, O Pārvati! all acts of worship must reach Him as the ultimate goal⁷ (50). Whoever be the worshipper, and whoever be the Devatā whom he reverentially worships for some desired end, all that is given to him through the Deva he so worships comes from Him as the Supreme (51). Oh, what use is it to say more

² The "That," which all in their essence are, or the Supreme—the One, that is—Tat Sat. The Vishvātman is without a name, nor is it known how It should be called other than by the designation of "That" in the neuter gender. Though the unconditioned Brahman and the apparently conditioned appear as different (by attributes), yet They are the same, and designated by Tat, the relation between them being Tādātmya (sameness). The Devī is Chidākāsha-svarūpinī (Lalitā, verse 80), non-separable from Chit, and denoted by Tat (Tat-pada-lakshyārthā).

⁵ Amaras—that is, the Devas.

⁶ That is, the other Devīs.

Need there is none to trouble, to fast, to torture one's body, to follow rules and customs, to make large offerings ; need there is none to be heedful as to time¹ nor as to Nyāsa² or Mudrā;³ wherefore, O Kuleshāni!⁴ who will strive to seek shelter elsewhere than with Him ? CHAPTER III

THE WORSHIP OF BRAHMAN—(Contd.)

SHRĪ DEVĪ said :

O Deva of the Devas, great Deva, Guru of Brihaspati¹ himself, Thou hast revealed all Scriptures,² Mantra, and Sādhana,³ thereof; Thou hast also spoken of the Supreme Brahman who is higher than the highest and the Supreme Lord by worship of Whom mortals attain both Happiness and Liberation. O Lord! how shall we please that Supreme Spirit, how O Deva! may we realise Him? What is the Dhyāna of and the observances⁴ relating to the Supreme Lord the Supreme Self? It is My desire, O Lord! to hear of the truth of all these from Thee. Speak, O Lord, in Thy mercy (1-4).

Shrī Sadāshiva said :

Listen, then, O Beloved of My life! to the most secret and supreme Truth, the mystery whereof, O propitious One, has nowhere yet been revealed.

Because of My affection for Thee I shall speak to Thee of that Supreme Brahman, Who is Being-Consciousness in the form of the universe and Who is dearer to Me than life itself. O Maheshvari! the unchanging eternal, conscious world-pervading⁵ Brahman may be known in

³ See Woodroffe's "Shakti and Shākta" and "Serpent Power".

⁴ Vidhāna.

⁵ That is in Its Svarūpa or by Its Lakshana that is attributes. Sachchidvishvamaya : Sat = Sadāsthāyi = which ever is (that is without becoming or change in past, present or future). Chit = Chaitanya = pure Consciousness. Vishva = Asheshang jagat = the limitless universe : Vishvamaya = who pervades it.

Its real Self¹ or by Its external signs² (5-6). That Which is without difference³, pure being⁴ and beyond both mind and speech,⁵ Which truly is in the three worlds of appearance⁶, is the Brahman according to Its real nature (7). That Brahman is known in ecstasy⁷ by those who look upon

² Lakshana = Tatasthalakshana. Lakshana is that of which anything is seen or known (Lakshyate anena, iti, lakshana. This is the apparent as distinct from the real nature: God as manifest in the universe as contrasted with the nature of God as He is in Himself.

³ Nirvishesha = Svagatabhedabhinna. (See ch. II, 34 and notes.)

⁴ Sattāmātra = Kevalaparamārthasattvarūpa. The Supreme is pure Being.

⁵ Avāṅgmanasagochara: that is, incomprehensible by mind and inexpressible in speech.

⁶ Asat trilokīśadbhānam. The Brahman in Its Svarūpa is the Sat which ever is in the existing changeable Asat or universe. Hariharānanda says that Asat is the appearance as true of that which is not so (asatyā mithyābhūtāyāḥ trilokyāḥ sadbhānam sadvaj-jnānam). The Svarūpa is the real in that it is the whole (Pūrṇa) and not the subject of change.

⁷ Samādhiyoga: Samādhi = Chittaikāgryam = the state of one-pointedness of the Chitta. Yoga = undivided devotion to the Lord together with full knowledge; or Samādhi = Parameshvara: Samādhiyate chittam asmin: Into whom the Mind or Chitta is placed. Yoga = Samyagdarshana or complete knowledge.

Tarkālangkāra says that Laya-yoga is called Samādhi Yoga. In the six Āmnāyas six different Yogas are spoken of. In Pūrvāmāya it is Sāṅkhya-yoga; in Dakṣiṇāmāya it is Ekātma-yoga; in Pashchimāmāya it is Unmanī-yoga; and in the sixth or hidden (Gupta) Āmnāya it is Sahajāvasthā. The aim of all the six Āmnāya Yogas is dissolution (Laya) in the Brahman. So it has been said that all the Yogas above mentioned denote Ātmā (Ekātma-vāchaka). Shangkarāchāryya in his Yoga-tārāvalī says: "Sadāshiva has spoken of 120,000 kinds of Laya. That through Nāda is one of these and important (Nādānusandhāna-samādhi). Patanjali defines Yoga to be 'Chitta-vṛtti-nirodhaḥ,' that is, stoppage of mental modifications." The commentator says that the Chitta (mind) has five states, viz., Kshipta, Mūḍha, Vikshipta, Ekāgra and Samādhi: The first is due to the action of Rajoguna. The mind is restless roaming in all the directions. This state is antagonistic to Yoga. The Mūḍha state is due to the action of Tamo-guna. In this state wicked acts prompted by lust, anger and the like appear right. This also is antagonistic to Yoga. The Vikshipta state is due to the action of Sattva-guna. Now the mind inclines towards the delights of Heaven and other pure forms of enjoyment. This also all things alike,¹ who are above all contraries,² devoid of all wandering thought,³ free of all ignorance regarding body and self⁴ (8). That same Brahman is known from His external signs, from Whom the whole universe has sprung, in Whom when so sprung It exists, and into Whom all things return⁵ (9). That which is known by yoga-experience may also be perceived from these external signs.⁶ For those who would conflicts with Yoga practice. Ekāgra is that state in which the mind is withdrawn from all other objects than that on which it is centred. This is helpful in Yoga practice. When the mind is thus made one-pointed (Ekāgra) Samādhi comes of itself. At that time the mind leaves hold of all external objects and becomes dissolved in the supreme Brahman which is supreme Bliss.

² Dvandvātita—that is, above, or unaffected by, the contraries, pain and pleasure, heat and cold, etc.

³ Nirvikalpa=Nānāvidhakalpanā-shūnya. The mind is poised in the equilibrium of consciousness not thinking now of this now of that.

⁴ Dehātmadhyāsa-varjita. Freed of the notion which leads one to believe the body to be the Self. That is, those who have freed themselves of the false notion (Adhyāsa) that the body is Ātmā or the Self. The Brahma-svarūpa is known to Paramahansas alone. Only those know it who are Yogīs to whom friend and foe are one, who are affected neither by pleasure nor pain, whose mind is in poise; free from now this thought now that, who are devoid of the false notion that the body is Ātmā. This they achieve by concentration of mind and that complete and direct vision (Samyag-darshana) which arises from undivided devotion to the Lord.

⁵ This is paralleled by the second Sūtra of the Vedānta-Sūtra, "Janmādyasya yataḥ," from which the birth, etc., of it (this world). Cf. Kāmakalāvilāsa. Cf. Taittirīya Up., 3—1—1.

⁶ That is, the same Brahman, who may be known in Its inner nature by the real or direct knowledge (Sva-rūpa-jñāna) of Self, may also be apprehended through the senses from Its manifestation in the created world. He here establishes the identity of Brahman in both its Svarūpa and Tatastha aspects. And so Shiva says, that which is knowable by Svarūpa-Buddhi is also knowable through its external manifestations. Sādhana is for those who are seeking the latter. For those qualified to seek the Svarūpa Brahman are beyond the stage of Sādhana through which at one time or one birth or another they must have passed. Tarkālangkāra says: Although the Svarūpa Brahman known by Yogīs in Samādhi is one and the same as that which is known by external signs yet there is a difference of essential know Him through these external signs, for them Sādhana¹ is enjoined (10).

Attend to me, Thou, O dearest One! while I speak to Thee of such Sādhana.² And firstly, O Ādya! I tell Thee of the Mantroddhāra³ of the Supreme Brahman (11). Utter first the Pranava,⁴ then the words "Being" and "Consciousness,"⁵ and after the word "One"⁶ say "Brahman".

MANTRA

*Om Sachchidekam Brahma*⁷ (12)

This is the Mantra. These words, when combined according to the rules of Sandhi, form a Mantra of seven letters.⁸ If the Pranava be omitted, it becomes a Mantra characteristics. The first is pure Consciousness (Anupahita-Chaitanya) without creative activity (Kartṛitva). Such Brahman is neither Creator, Protector nor Destroyer. The second is the Tūrīya Brahman with (Upahita) Mūla-prakṛiti. Through this union there issued from the latter Brahmā, Vishnu, Shiva, Sāvitṛī, Lakṣmī and Bhagavatī who in accordance with their respective Gunas create, protect or withdraw the worlds. It is Brahman in this second aspect who is spoken of as the Creator, Protector, and Dissolver of the universe.

³ Mantroddhāra, Mantra+uddhāra. In the Mātrikas the Mantra lies scattered. Mantroddhāra is the formation of the Mantra by selection of the Mātrikas.

⁶ Ekam.

⁷ "Om, the One Being Consciousness Brahman."

⁸ Sandhi is the rule of Sanskrit grammar by which final and initial syllables of words coalesce. Thus the words Om Sat Chit of six letters only (13). This is the most excellent of all the Mantras, and the one which immediately bestows Dharma,¹ Artha,² Kāma,³ and Moksha.⁴ In the use Ekam Brahma become the following seven letters, Om-Sach-chid-ekam-Brahma, neither vowels, which, according to the Tantras, are Shaktis of the Consonants, nor Visarga, which they call Kilaka, being regarded as separate letters.

³ Desire and its fulfilment.

⁴ Liberation.

The Chaturvarga as they are called are the four aims of man and are Dharma, Artha, Kāma, Moksha. The first is both Law, natural, ethical, social and so forth and the Merit acquired by the observance thereof. It is meritorious action whereby man gains happiness in this world (since obedience to Law leads to that) and in heaven and is the groundwork of all further advance. Man should seek to know and observe Dharma and to live righteously. Artha is the means by which this righteous life may be maintained such as in the material sense money, lands, goods, food, drink and so forth. These means must be righteously obtained. Kāma is desire and its fulfilment. This must be a righteous desire for that which is not such is contrary to Law (Adharma). These three are known as the Trivarga. A man may renounce the world, but if he does not do so, he must seek his happiness by meritorious acts and desires and the means by which they may be achieved. Indeed it is said that all these should be equally cultivated and the man who is addicted to one only is unworthy: Dharmārthakāmāḥ samam eva sevyāḥ: Yoga hyekasaktāḥ sa jano jaghanyāḥ. Thus the house-holder who is always engaged in ritual worship to the neglect of his worldly affairs is to be condemned. The fourth which with the other three constitutes the Chaturvarga is Moksha or Liberation, the final end to which all sentient being trends. This is beyond the Heaven-world which is a transitory state. For Moksha is permanent. What is the nature of this final end is the subject of discussion. According to the views of this Tantra which is written from the Advaita standpoint it is the union in one identity of the individual (Jīvātmā) and supreme Spirit (Paramātmā) by the dispelling of that ignorance which supposes them to be different. The Trivarga constitute the path of enjoyment. Moksha according to some views is to be obtained by renunciation. According to Shākta teaching there is given to its followers both Enjoyment and Liberation. The world itself is the seat of Liberation (Mokshāyate hi sangsārah, as the Kulārṇava Tantra says). Worship is of the supreme Yoni, the Cause of all, Which in Its Svarūpa is Moksha and in Its manifestation the field of enjoyment. That field gives Moksha also when the unity of both are known and action is according to Dharma and the injunctions of the Shāstra. Hai yoni namas te'stu namas te'stu yoga-moksha pradāyini (Shri-yoni-stava-rāja-kavacha).

of this Mantra¹ there is no need to consider whether it be efficacious² or not, or friendly or inimical,³ for no such considerations affect it (14). Nor at initiation into this Mantra is it necessary to make calculations as to the phases of the Moon, the propitious junction of the stars, or as to the Signs of the Zodiac. Nor are there any rules as to whether the Mantra is suitable or not.⁴ Nor is there need of the ten Sangskāras.⁵ This Mantra is in every way efficacious in initiation. There is no necessity for considering anything else (15). Should one have obtained, through merit acquired in previous births, an excellent Guru, from whose lips this Mantra is received, then life indeed becomes fruitful (16), and the worshipper, receiving in his hands Dharma, Artha, Kāma, and Moksha,⁶ rejoices both in this world and the next (17).

³ As in the case of other Mantras (Ari, enemy, inimical; Mitra, friend, friendly). Some letters and groups of letters are friendly, and some inimical to others (see Tantrasāra, p. 25). See next note.

⁴ Kula, Akula. Before initiation it is usual to ascertain whether the Mantra is Sva-kula or A-kula—that is, whether the Mantra is suitable to the disciple or not. For the procedure to be taken in order to ascertain this, see Kulārṇava Tantra, Tantrasāra, p. 25; and see verse 88, chap. vii, post. To ascertain the suitability of a Mantra for a particular disciple various methods are adopted. To ascertain the friendly or inimical character of a particular Mantra for any particular disciple figures of Chakras such as A-ka-tha-ha and the like are drawn. The A-ka-tha-ha is a square with sixteen "Houses" in which the letters of the alphabet are grouped in a particular way. Another Chakra is drawn to ascertain whether a Mantra is Svakula or Akula. By the Rinidhanī Chakra it is ascertained whether a particular Mantra is in the position of a debtor (Rinī) or creditor (Dhanī). The former is acceptable.

He whose ears this great jewel of Mantra reaches is indeed blest, for he has attained the desired end, being virtuous and pious, and is as one who has bathed in all the sacred places, been initiated in all Yajnas,¹ versed in all Scriptures, and honoured in all the worlds (18-19). Happy is the father and happy the mother of such an one—yea, and yet more than this, his family is hallowed, and the gladdened spirits of the Pitris² rejoice with the Devas, and in the excess of their joy³ sing (20): “In our family is born the most excellent of our race, one initiate in the Brahma-mantra. What need have we now of Pinda⁴ offered at Gayā,⁵ or of Shrāddha,⁶ Tarpana,⁷ pilgrimage at holy places⁸ (21); of what use are alms, Japa,⁹ Homa,¹⁰ or multiplicity of Sādhana,¹¹ since now we have obtained

⁴ Pinda is cake made of rice, curd, honey, and various kinds of fruits, Tila seed, Tulasī leaf, offered on Kusha grass to the ancestors (Pitri).

⁸ Tirtha, places of pilgrimage.

⁹ Recitation of Mantras (vide Shakti and Shākta).

¹⁰ The Homa, or Fire Sacrifice, is one of the five Yajnas prescribed by the Shāstras. Clarified butter and other substances are poured into the sacred fire as an offering to the Devas, accompanied by Mantras, beginning with Om and ending with Svāhā. It is performed on special occasions, such as the investiture of the sacred thread, marriage, initiation, etc.

imperishable satisfaction by the Sāadhanā of this good son ? " (22).

Listen, O Devī ! Adored of the world, whilst I tell You the very truth, that for the worshippers of the Supreme Brahman there is no need for other religious observances (23). At the very moment of initiation into this Mantra the disciple is Brahman,¹ and for such an one, O Devī ! what is there to attain in the three worlds ? (24). Against him what can adverse planets or Vetālas, Chetakas, Pishāchas, Guhyakas, Bhūtas,² the Mātrikaṣ, Dākinīs, and other Spirits avail ?³ The very sight of him will drive them to flight with averted faces (25). Guarded by the Brahma-mantra, clad with the splendour of Brahman, he is as it were another Sun. What should he fear, then, from any planet (26). They flee, frightened like elephants at the sight of a lion, and perish like moths in a flame (27). No sin can touch, and none but one as wicked as a suicide can harm him who is purified by truth, of pure mind¹ a benefactor of all beings, a faithful believer in Brahman (28). The wicked and sinful who seek to harm him who is initiate in the knowledge of the Supreme Brahman do but harm themselves, for are they not indeed in essence inseparable from the ever-lasting One?² (29). For he is the holy sage and well-wisher, working for the happiness of all, and, O Devī! should it be possible to harm such an one who can go in peace? (30). For him, however, who has no knowledge of the meaning of, nor of the awakening of the Mantra,³ it is fruitless, even though it were inwardly uttered ten million times (31).

² These and the following are dark, or unclean, or fearful spirits. Vetāla is a spirit attendant on Shiva (Demon presiding over corpses). In the Kālikā Purāna (chap. xlv) the Muni Aurva describes Vetāla and Bhairava as sons of Shiva by Gaurī, who had entered the body of Rānī Tārāvati, wife of Rājā Chandra-shekhara. Chetaka, according to Hemachandra, are Deva-yoni who serve in Heaven. Pishāchas are unclean Deva-yonis. Guhyakas are Deva-yonis, attendants of Kuvera, Deva of Wealth, described in the Kāshī-khanda. Bhūtas are ghosts of all kinds, against which protective Mantras are used. A sample may be found in the Garuḍa Purāna, chap. cxcix.

Listen, then, O My Beloved! while I tell Thee of the meaning and awakening of Mantra. By the letter A is meant the Protector of the world⁴; the letter U denotes Him who dissolves it⁵; and M stands for its Creator⁶ (32).

² That is, men, though phenomenally different, are in their ultimate and inner ground of being, one. Therefore, a man who seeks to harm a Brahmopāsaka Sādhu harms himself.

³ Mantra-Chaitanya is Chaitanya Shakti, and is the name for the Jñāna of the presiding Deva (Adhishthātri-devatā) of the Mantra. The "awakening" of the Mantra is in the consciousness of the Sādhaka. See "Garland of Letters" and "Shakti and Shākta," by Sir J. Woodroffe.

⁴ Vishnu, and so also the commentator on Shankarāchārya, Ānandalahari says:

Akāro Harirityāhurukāro Hara uchyate,
Makāro Brahmanah samjñā jāyate pranavastu vai.

⁵ Shiva.

⁶ Brahmā, the creative Manifestation of the Supreme Brahman. The three letters A, U, M are the component parts of the Pranava, which by the rules of Sandhi become "Om". This explanation is at variance with the Rudra-yāmala Tantra, which says that A is the letter of Brahmā, U that of Vishnu, and M that of Shiva. But the three are

The meaning of Sat is eternal changeless Being; of Chit, Consciousness; and of Ekam, One without a second. Brahman is so called because It is everywhere.¹ Now, O Devī! I have given You the meaning of the Mantra, which grants the fulfilment of desires. The awakening of the Mantra² is the knowledge of Him, Who is the pervading Devatā of the Mantra, and such knowledge, O Supreme one—Ekā mūrtistrayo devā brahma-vishnu-maheshvarāḥ. The latter is perhaps the better interpretation.

Tarkālangkāra says Om is formed by the union A, U, M, of which the first is Vishnu, the second is Maheshvara and the third Brahmā. By the Pranava these are known. The Goraksha-Saṁhitā says: "Ichchhā, Kriyā, Jñāna are Gaurī, Brāhmī, Vaishnavī. The threefold Shakti is immanent in (abides in) the world. Beyond these is the Shakti (according to another reading the Light—Jyotiḥ) Om." From the Pranava which is the Svarūpa of the Ādyā Shakti, these three Shaktis have emanated for the purpose of Creation, Maintenance and Dissolution. These three Shaktis are Ichchhā, Kriyā, Jñāna. Ichchhā is Gaurī (Mahākālī). She, united with Maheshvara and associated with Tamo-Guna, dissolves. Kriyā Shakti is Brāhmī (Mahāsarasvatī). She, united with Brahmā and associated with Rajo-Guna, creates. Jñāna Shakti is Vaishnavī. She, united with Vishnu and associated with Sattva-Guna, maintains. Here Chaitanya associated with Mūlaprakṛiti or Ādyā Shakti is the object of worship. It is Ādyā Shakti who divides Herself according to the three Gunas and becomes Ichchhā, Kriyā, and Jñāna Shaktis. And Chaitanya associated (Upahita) with Ādyā Shakti divides according to Gunas into Brahmā, Vishnu, Maheshvara. Brahmā united with Sāvitṛī creates, Vishnu united with Mahā-Lakshmī maintains and Maheshvara united with Gaurī dissolves the Universe. The Shaktis Ichchhā, Kriyā, Jñāna are but aspects of the Ādyā Shakti, as Brahmā, Vishnu and Maheshvara are but aspects of the Turiya Brahman associated with (Upahita) Ādyā Shakti. The Pranava therefore is expressive of Brahman as united with (Upahita) Mūlaprakṛiti which is the state of equilibrium (Sāmyāvasthā) of the Gunas. He is spoken of as Creator, Maintainer, Dissolver. Were Brahman not united with Prakṛiti then there would be no activity (Kartritva) in Him and no Chaitanya in Prakṛiti. By mutually entering into one another Prakṛiti acquires the Chaitanya of Brahman, and Brahman Kartritva of Prakṛiti. When separated they may both be called Jada. The meaning of the Mantra here is that the Pranava signifies the Chaitanya-maya-brahman united with Ādyā Shakti.

² Mantra Chaitanya (vide ante).

Lady! yields the fruit of worship to the worshipper (33-35). O Devī! the presiding Devatā of the Mantra is the omnipresent,¹ eternal,² inscrutable,³ formless, stainless,⁴ and ineffable Brahman (36). When introduced by the Bija⁵ of Sarasvatī,⁶ Māyā,⁷ or Kamalā,⁸ instead of the Mantra Om,⁹ it bestows various kinds of learning, or Siddhi in Māyā,¹⁰ or prosperity in every quarter (37). The Mantra may be varied either by the prefixing or omitting of Om, or by the placing of it before each word or every two words of the Mantra (38). Sadāshiva is the *Rishi*¹¹ of this Mantra.

² Sanātanam = Prāgabdhāvadhyamsarahitam, i.e., of which there was no absence in the past and of which there is no dissolution.

³ Avitarkyam = anūhanīyam, that is, about whom nothing can be said.

⁵ The "seed" Mantra, see Woodroffe's "Garland of Letters".

⁶ The Bija of Sarasvatī—Devī of vāk (speech)—is Aing.

⁷ Shakti of Brahma, whose Bija is Hring.

⁸ Lakṣmī—Devī of wealth, consort of Vishnu—whose Bija is Shring.

⁹ That is, the Pranava (Ong-kāra) is dropped, and the Bija of any of the Devīs named is substituted.

¹⁰ Bhārati reads it as "various kinds of learning, Māyā or prosperity in all quarters".

Thus the Mantra Aing Sach Chid Ekam Brahma bestows Learning, Hring Sach Chid Ekam Brahma bestows Siddhi in Māyā which according to Tarkālangkāra means actually Nirvāna-mukti and Shring Sach Chid Ekam Brahma bestows Prosperity. This verse as Bhārati says indicates the various ways in which the Mantra Om Sach Chid Ekam Brahma may be practised. It may be recited as a whole with or without the Pranava or it may be broken up into as many parts as there are words in it. Each again of these words may be used with or without the Pranava or any two of them and so on. Tarkālangkāra adds that the Mantra may be varied by substituting each of the three Bijas above-named when the Mantra becomes a Vidyā. Eighty-five different forms of Mantra may thus be obtained.

¹¹ That is, the inspired Teacher by whom it was originally "seen," or "to whom it was revealed".

The verse is called Anushtup,¹ and its presiding Devatā is the Supreme Brahman, Who is without attribute² and Who abides in all things. It avails for the attainment of Dharma, Artha, Kāma, and Moksha³ (39).

Now listen, dear One, whilst I speak to You of Karanyāsa⁴ and Aṅga-nyāsa⁵ (40). O great Queen and adored of the Devas, the Sādhaka should with great care and with observance of injunctions concerning Nyāsa place the words Om, Sat, Chit, Ekam, Brahma, on his thumb, threatening finger,⁶ middle, nameless,⁷ and little fingers respectively, followed respectively by the words *Namah, Svāhā, Vashat, Hung, and Vaushat*⁸; and he should next say Om

⁵ The ceremonial touching of various parts of the body (Aṅganyāsa) is as follows: Om Hridayāya Namah, Sat Shirasi Svāhā, Chit Shikhāyai Vashat Ekam Kavachāya Hum. Brahma Netratrayāya Vaushat. Om Sachchidekam Brahma Karatala-prishthābhyāṅg Phat.

⁶ i.e., the first, or index finger.

⁷ i.e., the fourth, or ring finger.

Sachchidekam Brahma over the palm and back of the hand, followed by the Mantra Phat (41, 42).

The Sādhaka should in the like manner, perform Aṅga-nyāsa¹ commencing with the heart and ending with the hands (43).

After this, whilst reciting the Mantra Om or the Mūla-mantra,² Prāṇāyāma³ should be performed thus : He should close the left nostril with the middle and the fourth finger, and then inhale through the right nostril, meanwhile the form of Fire. In the Lalitā-sahasra-nāma, verse 110, the Devī is addressed as Svāhā and Svadhā. The former Mantra is used in particular in the worship of Fire, and the latter in the oblation of water to Deva and Pitri. Different interpretations of Svāhā are given in the Prapanchasāra, Taittirīya-Shruti, Sāmaveda-Brahmana, and Yaska's Nirukta, for which see Bhāskararāya's Commentary on the Lalitā verse 110.

² Here it is "Om Sach-chid-ekam Brahma". In Shakti worship it may be the fifteen-syllabled Mantra (Pancha-dashi)—"Hring Shring, Kring Ādyā Kālikā Parameshvari Svahā." Devī is Herself the Mūla-Mantra (Mūla-mantrātmikā) (Lalitā-sahasra-nāma, verse 36).

³ The description follows.

On Prāṇāyāma Tarkālangkāra says that the ordinary procedure is to close the right nostril with the right thumb. Air is then drawn in by the left nostril. Whilst this is being done repeat sixteen times the Mantra or its first letter, the Pranava or the Māyā Bija. This is Pūraka. Then close left nostril also with the little and fourth fingers of the same hand (by this both nostrils are closed) and do Kumbhaka (retention of breath) doing Japa of the Mantra 64 times in manner aforesaid during such Kumbhaka. Then remove the thumb from the right nostril and exhale through it doing Japa 32 times. This is Rechaka (exhalation). This is the first Prāṇāyāma. The process is now reversed. Inhalation is done through the right nostril the left nostril being closed with the thumb of the left hand. This is the second Prāṇāyāma. Then a return is made to the first Prāṇāyāma which is the third Prāṇāyāma. A complete Prāṇāyāma consists of these three. A man who is short of breath and unable to do it as above may practise it doing Japa of the Mantra a fourth of the above-mentioned numbers (that is, 4, 16, 8 instead of 16, 64, 32). He who is unable to do even this may practise Prāṇāyāma doing Japa for a fourth of the last mentioned period, (that is, 1, 4, 2). The rule relating to Prāṇāyāma with the Brahma Mantra differs in that the right hand is alone used and the Japa is 8, 32 and 16 for Pūraka, Kumbhaka and Rechaka respectively.

making Japa¹ of the Pranava or the Mūla-mantra eight times.² Then, closing the right nostril with the thumb and shutting also the mouth,³ make Japa of the mantra thirty-two times. After that gently exhale the breath through the right nostril, doing Japa of the Mantra the while sixteen times.⁴ In the same way he should next perform these three acts first with the right nostril, and then repeat the same process with the left nostril. O adored of the Devas! I have now told Thee of the method of Prānāyāma to be observed in the use of the Brahma-Mantra (44-48). The Sādhaka should then meditate on the Supreme Brahman for the accomplishment of his desire as follows (49).

MEDITATION⁵

In the lotus of my heart I contemplate the Divine Consciousness,⁶ the Brahman without

³ This is Kumbhaka.

⁶ Chaitanya = Chetanam (Bhārati), also He who is Shabdabrahma as Pranava (Tarkālangkāra).

Tarkālangkāra says: Brahman should be meditated upon in the Lotus of eight Petals in the heart as it were the flame of a lamp undisturbed by any breeze. How can He who is everywhere the same and undivided Consciousness (Chinmaya) be the subject of meditation in the limited form of a flame? Again the one Brahman reflected in Māyā appears as the various Jivas, Devas, men, beasts, insects and so forth. If the Brahman be without distinction (Nirveshesha) why are there such differences as Deva, worm and so forth? The Devas who are Ānandamaya are the reflection (Ābhāsa) just as are the worms and moths. Then why are these differences perceived in the Nirveshesha Brahman? It is not unnatural to ask such questions. Brahman is omnipresent and the same everywhere. As the rays of the sun fall evenly in every part of the city of Calcutta so the lustre (Ābhāsa) of the Brahman rests on all things everywhere in the same manner. In this there is no difference. In Māyā are the three Gunas and nothing else. Sattva by reason of its purity is capable of receiving and reflecting the distinctions,¹ in whom are all powers² Knowable by Hari, Hara, and Vidhi,³ whom Yogis⁴ approach in meditation, Light. Tamas by reason of its impurity is unable to do so. In Rajas there are present partially the capacities of both. The rays of the sun fall on the earth, on whitewashed buildings, on polished articles of furniture, on swords, mirrors and gems but shows more powerfully on the whitewashed houses than on the earth, on the polish than on the house, on the sword than on the polish, on the gem (sunstone) than on the mirror. Consciousness (Chaitanya) resting on (Upahita) Mūla-prakṛiti which is the Brahman is like the sun and our Buddhi is like the sunstone (Sūryakāntamāni), our senses are like the mirror, the body like the sword, the five Mahābhūtas, insects and the like are like the earth. Each of these according to its degree of purity is capable of receiving the Light of Chidānanda in greater or less degree. In this way all things are in the Brahman which is Chaitanya but it receives it according to its purity and receptivity. When the rays of the sun fall upon the sunstone it acquires like the sun the powers of burning. When the Light of Chaitanya falls on Buddhi the Buddhi is awake and works. Chaitanya united with it (Upahita) in this way is called Vijnānamaya Puruṣa. It is this Puruṣa which does everything. It is He Who by the instrumentality of the senses sees and hears and so forth. His acting through the senses (Indriyas) is called Jāgradavasthā. When the senses are dissolved in the Vijnānamaya Puruṣa and the latter is in the Puritat Nāḍī which is as it were the sheath in which the heart Lotus is, that state is called Svapnāvasthā. When the Vijnānamaya Puruṣa is in the state of sameness (Tādātmyasambandha) then the state is Sushupti. The Dhyāna of Brahman detached from Māyā cannot however be had by this method because in that case no form or attribute is apprehended. By Samādhi (yoga) alone can the Brahman (attributeless) be directly realised (Sākṣhātkāra). Brahman united with Māyā is thought of as lustrous (Tejomaya) because of such union. Although Itself undetached It can by reason of Māyā be thought of as detached. In this sense It dwells in the heart of every creature as it were separate and individualised. By meditating on It is accomplished meditation on the collectivity of things (Samashti). The Dhyāna of Brahman should be done as above described or according to the rules of the Kulārava Tantra. There can be no worship of the detached Brahman. The latter can be realised by the power of Yoga alone.

¹ Nirvishesham = in whom there are no distinctions, that is devoid of Svagata, Svajātiya, and Vijātiya Bheda (Tarkālangkāra). The first being illustrated by the branches, leaves, flowers and fruit of one tree, the second by the difference between things of the same class such as a mango tree and a Bilva tree and the third the difference between things not of the same class such as a tree and a rock.

³ i.e., Vishnu, Shiva and Brahmā.

Him Who destroys the fear of birth and death,¹ Who is Being,² Consciousness² the Root of all the three worlds (50).

Having thus contemplated the Supreme Brahman, the Sādhaka should in a devout spirit, in order to attain union³ with Brahman, worship with offerings of his mind⁴ (51). For perfume let him offer to the Supreme Spirit the essence of the Earth,⁵ for flowers the Ether, for incense the essence of the Air, for light the essence of Fire, and for food⁶ the essence of Water⁷ (52). After mentally repeating the great Mantra⁸ and offering the fruit of it to the Supreme Brahman, the excellent disciple should commence external worship (53). Meditating with closed eyes on the Eternal Brahman, the worshipper should with reverence offer to the Supreme whatever be at hand, such as perfumes, flowers, clothes, jewels, food, and drink, after having purified them with the following (54, 55).

MANTRA

The vessel of offering is the Brahman and so is the offering therein. It is offered by Brahman into the Fire which is Brahman. To Brahman he will attain whose ¹ When He is known, the fear of death passes.

² Sachchitsvarūpam=He who ever is (Sadāsthāyī) and Jnāna. Sat=who ever is (Bhārati). Cf. Chhā 6—21. Sat eva idam agra āsīt and Asat eva idam agra āsīt.

⁴ As to these, see Chap. V, verses 41, 142-152.

⁶ Naivedya, offering of the eatables.

⁷ The five elements—(1) Kṣhiti, (2) Ap, (3) Tejas, (4) Marut, and (5) Vyoma—are offered in the mental worship with the object of purifying the gross body of the Sādhaka.

⁸ Viz., Om Sachchidekam Brahma.

mind is fixed on the Brahman by the performance of the rites which are Brahman¹ (56).

Then, opening the eyes, and inwardly and with all his power making Japa with the Mūla-mantra,² the worshipper should offer the Japa to Brahman³ and then recite the hymn that follows and the Kavacha⁴-mantra (57). Hear, O Maheshvari! the Hymn to Brahman, the Supreme Spirit, by the hearing whereof the disciple attains union with⁵ the Brahman (58).

STOTRA

Om! I bow to Thee, the eternal Refuge of all:

I bow to Thee, the pure Consciousness who art in the form of the universe.⁶

I bow to Thee Who art One without distinction⁷ and Who grants Liberation.

² Here "Om Sachchidekam Brahma". By 'fruit' is meant the merit of the repetition, etc.

⁷ Advaitatattvāya = Sajātiya-vijātiyātmatmagat-bheda-rahitatattvāya, that is, One in whom there are no distinctions (Bhāratī) as to which see p. 44, n. 1.

I bow to Thee, the Brahman¹ Whose nature it is to be outspread as the universe² (but Who art Thyself) beyond all Gunas.³ (59).

Thou art the only⁴ Refuge and Object of adoration.

Thou alone art in the form of the whole universe and art its Cause.⁵

Thou alone art Creator, Preserver, Destroyer of the world.

Thou art the sole immutable Supreme, Who art unchanging Consciousness⁶ (60);

Dread of the dreadful, Terror of the terrible.

Refuge of all beings, Purificator of all purificators.

Thou alone rulest the high-placed ones,⁷

Supreme over the supreme, Protector of the Protectors (61).

O Supreme Lord⁸ Who art manifest as the Form of all,
yet Thyself Unmanifest⁹

Who art everywhere,¹⁰ Who art Imperceptible by the senses, yet the very Truth.

² Vyāpine = Sakalavastuvyāpana-shilāya (Bhārati) translated as in

³ Nirgunāya = Sattvādigunarahitāya.

⁴ Ekam which may be read as one or the chief (Mukhya). He is the object of adoration (Varenyam) of those who are in fear of the pain of the circle of repeated births, and deaths (Janma-mṛtyu-duḥkhādibhīrubhirupāsaniyam).

⁵ He is both Upādāna-kāraṇa—that is, material cause, and Nimittakāraṇa or efficient cause. The Universe is within and is a form of, the Lord. See Pūnyānanda's Commentary on v. 1 of Kāmakaḷāvilāsa.

⁶ Nirvikalpa, a difficult word to translate in English but is the state opposed to limited experience in which there is sense of difference (Bheda-buddhi) resulting in duality and plurality of thoughts, man now thinking of this now of that. There is nothing of all this but unchanging Consciousness. Nirvikalpa = Nānāvidhakalpanā-shūnya.

⁷ Devas, Brahmā, and others.

⁸ Paresha as He is Lord over Brahmā and others.

⁹ Sarvarūpa aprakāśhin. Another reading is, Sarvva-rūpāvinashin,
“in the form of all things and imperishable”.

¹⁰ Anirdeshya = incapable of location; Shabdena nirdeshyātum aś-hakya (Bhārati).

Incomprehensible, Imperishable, All-pervading, Hidden and Formless.¹

Lord and Light of the Universe! save us from harm² (62).
On that One alone we meditate, that One is the sole object of our Japa.

To that One alone the Witness³ of the Universe we bow.
Refuge we seek with the One Who is our sole Eternal Support,

The Self-dependent⁴ Lord, the Vessel of safety in the Ocean of existence (63).

This is the five-jewelled⁵ Hymn to Brahman the Supreme Spirit. He who pure in mind and body⁶ recites this hymn is united with the Brahman⁷ (64). It should be said daily in the evening, and particularly on the day of the Moon.⁸ The wise man should read and explain it to such of his kinsmen as believe in Brahman⁹ (65). I have spoken to You, O Devi! of the bejewelled hymn of the Great Lord, O Graceful One! listen now to the Kavacha of the name Jagan-maṅgala¹⁰ by the wearing and reading whereof one becomes a knower of the Brahman (66).

² Apāya: Bhārati says this means any fall from devotion, understanding (Buddhi) and the like.

³ The Atman is not affected by pain or pleasure, but is a spectator only. ⁴ Nirālamba or without support.

⁸ Somavāra, i.e., Monday.

⁹ Tarkālangkāra says (p. 66): "I have heard that Raja Ram Mohan Roy under instructions from Hariharānanda Bhārati used to do worship of the Brahman every day in a lonely place and with the object of explaining Its Svarūpa once a week to devout friends and relatives established the Brāhma-Samāja."

¹⁰ World-beneficent. That is the Kavacha or protective Mantra of that name.

May the Supreme Spirit ¹ protect the head,
 May the Supreme Lord ² protect the heart,
 May the Protector of the world ³ protect the throat, May the All-pervading, All-seeing ⁴ Lord protect the face (67),
 May the Spirit of the Universe ⁵ protect my hands,
 May He who is Consciousness Itself ⁶ protect the feet, May the Eternal and Supreme Brahman protect my body in all its parts always (68).

The Rishi ⁸ of this world-beneficent amulet is Sadā-shiva; the verse is Anushtup ⁹, its presiding Devatā is the Supreme Brahman, and the object of its use is the attainment of Dharma, Artha, Kāma, and Moksha ¹⁰ (69). He who recites this protective Mantra ¹¹ of Brahman after doing Rishi-nyāsa ¹² attains knowledge of Brahman, and is one

¹ The one Brahman is here invoked by different names in order to protect different parts of the body. Supreme Self or Spirit or Paramātmā is thought of as in the Sahasrāra Padma in the head, Supreme Lord or Parameshvara is object of meditation in the heart. Protector of the world or Jagatpātā, the Vishnu aspect, is invoked to protect the throat so that the Sādhaka may utter the sacred names and Mantras of his Ishtadevatā.

⁴ Jagat-pātā.

⁵ Vibhu; Sarva-drik. As knower of all and of all generals the Lord is Sarvajña as knower of particulars He is Sarvavit.

⁸ By whom it was "seen". The name of the Mantra is Shri-Jaganmaṅgala.

⁹ A form of metre.

¹⁰ See ante, under v. 14.

¹² Rishinyāsa is done with this Mantra: Asya Shrijaganmaṅgalanāmaka-kavachasya Sadāshiva rishir anushtup chhandah Parabrahma devatā dharmārtha-kāmamokshāvāptaye Shrijaganmaṅgalākhyā kavachapāthe viniyogah. Shirasi Sadāshivāya rishaye namaḥ. Mukhe anushtup-chhandase namaḥ. Hridi Parabrahmane devatāyai namaḥ, directly with the Brahman¹ (70). If written on birch-bark and encased in a golden ball, it be worn round the neck or on the right arm, its wearer attains all kinds of powers² (71). I have now revealed to Thee the Kavacha of the Supreme Brahman. It should be given to the disciple who is worthy of favour, who is both devoted to the Guru and possessed of understanding³ (72). The excellent Sādhaka⁴ shall after reciting the Hymn and the Kavacha with reverence, bow to the Supreme (73).

THE SALUTATION

Om

I bow to the Supreme Brahman.

I bow to the Supreme Spirit.

I bow to Him Who is above all attributes.⁵

I bow to the eternal Being again and again (74).

Obeisance to the Supreme Lord may be by body or mind or by word as the Sādhaka wishes; but the one thing needful is purity of disposition⁶ (75). After worshipping in the manner of which I have spoken, the wise man should with his friends and kinsmen partake of the Holy food⁷ consecrated to Brahman the Supreme Spirit (76). In the worship of the Supreme Lord there is no need to

³ Dhimate. The word Dhīmān (the root Dhī is from Dhyai to think and meditate) denotes both understanding and meditative nature.

⁵ Nirguna—i.e., the Unconditioned Brahman.

⁷ Mahā-prasāda, i.e., consecrated offering.

invoke Him to be present or to desire Him to depart.¹ It² may be done always and in all places (77). It is of no account whether the worshipper has or has not bathed, or whether he be fasting or have taken food.³ But the Supreme Spirit should ever be worshipped with a pure heart (78). After purification by the Brahma-Mantra,⁴ whatever food or drink is offered to the Supreme Lord becomes itself purifying (79). The touch of inferior castes may pollute the water of Gaṅgā and the Shālagrāma,⁵ and other images and emblems but nothing which has been consecrated to the Brahman can be so polluted⁶ (80). After having dedicated it to Brahman with this Mantra, the Sādhaka with his people may eat of anything, whether cooked or uncooked (81). In the partaking of this food no rule as to caste or time need be observed. No one should hesitate to take the leavings from the plate of another, whether such another be pure or impure⁷ (82).

¹ As is done in the ordinary worship of any other Devatā. At commencement of worship of the image (Pratimā), or the Ghata, the Āvāhana Mantra and Mudrā is said and shown, thus invoking the presence of the Devatā, and at close there are Visarjana (dismissal) Mantra and Mudrā. In the case of Apratishthita (uninstalled) Devatā, the image is also thrown away.

Pūjayet Paramātmānam sadā nirmala-mānasah.

Bathing is necessary in other worships, as also fasting, but the worship of the Brahman for those competent is simply in spirit and in truth. It is not, however, everyone who is competent for the Brahma-Mantra. It is only for the Brahma-jñānī (see verse 132, post).

⁴ Which according to Bhāratī is Om Sachchidekam Brahma. According to Tarkālangkāra it is Brahmārpanam, etc., v. 56, ante.

⁷ Ceremonially by bathing, etc., or by caste. Usually leavings (Uchchhishta) are unclean.

Whenever and whatsoever the place may be, howsoever it may have been obtained, eat without scruple or inquiry the food dedicated to the Brahman (83). Such food, O Devi! even the Devas do not easily get, and it purifies even if brought by a Chandāla,¹ or if it be taken from the mouth of a dog (84). As to that which the partaking of such food effects in men and like creatures, what, O Adored of the Devas! shall We say of it? It is deemed excellent even by the Devas. Without a doubt the partaking of this Holy Food, be it but once only, frees the greatest of sinners² and all sinners of their sins (85-86). The mortal who eats of it acquires such merit as can only otherwise be earned by bathing and giving of alms at thirty-five millions of holy places (87). By the eating of it ten million times greater merit is gained than by the Horse-sacrifice,³ or indeed by any other sacrifice whatever (88). Its excellence cannot be described by ten thousand million tongues and a thousand million mouths (89). Wherever the Sādhaka may be, and though he be a Chandāla,⁴ he attains to union with the Brahman the very moment he partakes of the nectar⁵ dedicated to Him (90). Even Brāhmanas versed in the Vedānta should take food prepared by low-caste men if it be dedicated to the Brahman⁶ (91). No distinction of caste

³ Ashva-medha of the Veda (see the "Horse Hymns" in the Rig-Veda, Wilson, ii, 112, 121; also Yajur Veda Mādhyandini Shākhā, chap. xxii).

⁶ Brahmane bhāvitam = Brahmane arpitam (Bhāratī), should be observed in eating food dedicated to the Supreme Spirit. He who thinks it impure becomes a great sinner (92). It would be more tolerable, O Beloved! to commit a hundred sins or to kill a Brāhmana than to despise food dedicated to the Supreme Brahman (93). Those fools who reject food and drink made holy by the great Mantra cause the fall of their ancestors into the lower regions, and they themselves go headlong into the Hell of blind darkness,¹ where they remain until the Dissolution of things. No Liberation is there for such as despise food dedicated to Brahman (94-95). By the Sādhana² of this great Mantra, all acts of the Sādhaka become meritorious;³ in slumber merit is acquired.⁴ In this Sādhana any Āchāra which is to the liking of the Sādhaka may be followed⁵ (96). For such what need is there of Vedic practices, or of those of the Tantras? For him who is devoted to Brahman and who has realised that all is Brahman the rule to be followed is his own inclination⁶ (97). For them there is neither merit nor demerit in the performance or non-performance of the customary rites. In the Sādhana of this Brahma

³ Even if otherwise not so (Bhāratī).

⁵ The Sādhaka is not restricted to any Āchāra such as Veda, Vaishnava, Shaiva, etc. (Tarkālangkāra).

Mantra he meets neither obstacle nor failure¹ (98). By the Sādhana² of this Dharma, O Great Devī! man must be truthful, conqueror of the passions, devoted to the good of his fellow-men, unaffected by what may happen, pure of purpose, free of envy and guile, merciful and pure of mind, devoted to the service and seeking the pleasure of his parents, a listener ever to things divine,³ a meditator ever on the Brahman. His mind is ever turned to the search for Brahman. With strength of determination holding his mind in close control, he is ever conscious of the nearness of Brahman (99-101). He who is initiated in the Brahma Mantra will not lie or think to harm, and will shun to go with the wives of others (102). At the commencement of all that is done, let him say, "Tat Sat"⁴; and before eating or drinking aught let him say, "Be this dedicated to Brahman" (103). For the knower of Brahman, duty consists in action for the well-being of the world. This is the eternal Dharma⁵ (104).

I will now, O Shāmbhavi⁶! speak to Thee of the duties relating to Sandhyā⁷ in the practice of the Brahma-Mantra, whereby men acquire that real Wealth which comes to them in the form of Brahman (105). Wheresoever he may be, and in whatsoever posture,¹ the excellent and well-intentioned Sādhaka shall, at morning, noon, and eventide, meditate upon the Brahman in the manner prescribed. Then, O Devī! let him make Japa of the Gāyatrī² one hundred and eight times. Offering the Japa to the Devatā,³ let him make obeisance in the way of which I have spoken (106-107). I have now told Thee of the Sandhyā to be used by him in the Sādhana⁴ of the Brahma-Mantra, and by which the worshipper shall become pure of heart (106-108). Listen to Me now, Thou Who art figured with grace, to the Gāyatrī,⁵ which destroys all sin.

¹² The Chatur-varga.

Everything which is done, be it worship or sacrifice, bathing, drinking, or eating, should be accompanied by the recitation of the Brahma-Mantra (112). When arising at the middle of the fourth quarter of the night, and after bowing to the Preceptor who gave initiation in the Brahma-Mantra,¹ let it be recited with all recollection. Then obeisance should be made to the Brahman as aforesaid, after meditating upon Him. This is the enjoined morning rite² (113). For Purashcharana,³ O Beautiful One! Japa of the Mantra should be done thirty-two thousand times; oblation⁴ three thousand and two hundred times; the presenting of or offering water to the Devatā,⁵ three hundred and twenty times; sprinkling before worship⁶ thirty-two times; and four Brāhmanas⁷ should be feasted (114-115). In this Purashcharana⁸ no rule need be observed touching food or as regards what should be accepted or rejected. Nor need an auspicious time nor place for performance be selected (116). Whether he be fasting or have taken food, whether with or without bathing, let the Sādhaka, as he be so inclined, make Sādhana¹ with this most excellent Mantra (117). Without trouble or pain, without Hymn,² Amulet,³ Nyāsa,⁴ Mudrā,⁵ or Setu,⁶ or Kullukā⁷, without the worship of Ganesha as the Thief,⁸ and the like yet surely and shortly the most Supreme Brahman is met face to face (118-119).

In the Sādhana of this great Mantra no other Sangkalpa⁹ is necessary than the inclination of the mind thereto. In it what is enjoined is purity of disposition. The worshipper of Brahman, Oh Devī! should see Brahman in everything (120). In the Sādhana of this Mantra no evil or demerit follows from any omission therefrom. This

Sādhana of the great Mantra is the rectification of it (121). In this terrible and sinful Kali Age¹ devoid of Tapas² and so difficult to traverse, the very seed of Liberation is the Sādhana of the Brahma-Mantra (122). In various Tantras and Āgamas I have prescribed differing modes of Sādhana, but these, O Great Devī! are beyond the powers of the feeble men of this Age³ (123). For these, O Beloved! are short-lived, without enterprise, their life dependent on food,⁴ covetous, eager to gain wealth, restless in mind, so unsettled in their intellect that it is without rest even in its attempts at Yoga.⁵ Incapable, too, are they of suffering and impatient of the austerities of Yoga. For the happiness and Liberation of such have been ordained the Way of Brahman (124-125). O Devi! verily and verily I say to Thee that in this Age there is no other way to happiness and Liberation than that by initiation in Brahma-Mantra; I again say to Thee there is no other way (126). The rule in all the Tantras is that, that which is prescribed for the morning⁶ should be done in the morning, Sandhyā⁷ thrice daily, and worship⁸ at midday, but, O Auspicious One! in the worship of Supreme Brahman⁹ there is no other rule but the inclination of the worshipper (127). Since in Brahma-worship rules are but servants and the prohibitions are of no account who will seek shelter in any other? (128). If the disciple can obtain a Guru who is a knower of Brahman, placid and of steady mind, let him clasp his lotus-like feet, and supplicate him in a devout spirit as follows (129):

SUPPLICATION TO THE GURU

O merciful one! Lord of the distressed! to thee I have come for protection; cast then the shadows of thy lotus-like feet over my head, O thou whose wealth is fame¹ (130).

Having thus prayed to and worshipped his Guru with all his powers, let the disciple remain before him in silence with folded hands (131). The Guru will then carefully and in manner enjoined examine the signs and qualities of the disciple,² kindly call the latter to him, and give to the good disciple³ the great Mantra (132). Let the wise Guru⁴ sitting on a seat, with his face to the East or to the North, place his disciple on his left, and gaze with compassion upon him (133). The Guru, after doing Rishi-nyāsa,⁵ will then place his hand on his disciple's head, and for the Siddhi⁶ of the latter do Japa⁷ of the Mantra one hundred and eight times (134).

² The Guru examines the disciple to see whether he is suited to receive the Mantra, and this is done by watching his demeanour and character, etc. This has been given in detail in the Kulārṇava Tantra, Shārada Tilaka and other works.

⁴ Jñānī = Brahma-jñānavān.

⁵ See Woodroffe's "Shakti and Shākta".

The excellent Guru, gem of kindness, should next whisper the Mantra seven times into the right ear of the disciple if he be a Brāhmaṇa, or into the left ear if he be of another caste (135). O Kālikā¹! I have now described the manner in which instructions in Brahma-Mantra should be given. For this there is no need of Pūjā, and his Sangkalpa² should be mental only (136). The Guru should then raise the disciple, now become his son, who is lying prostrate at his lotus-feet, and say with affection the following (137).

REPLY OF THE GURU

Rise, my son, thou art liberated : Be ever devoted to the knowledge of Brahman.³ Conquer thy passions : May thou be truthful, and have strength and health always (138).

Let the excellent disciple on rising make an offering⁴ of his own self, money or a fruit, as he may afford. Remaining obedient to his preceptor's commands, he may then roam the world like a Deva (139). Immediately upon his initiation into this Mantra he becomes united with the Brahman⁵. What need, then, O Deveshi! for such an one to practise various kinds of Sādhana⁶? O Dearest One! I have now briefly told You of the initiation into the Brahma-Mantra (140). For such initiation the merciful mood of the Guru is alone necessary (141). The worshipper of the Divine Power,¹ of Shiva,² of the Sun,³ of Vishnu,⁴ Ganesha,⁵ Brāhmanas versed in the Vedas⁶ and all other castes may be initiated (142).

It is by the grace of this Mantra, O Devī! that I have become the Deva of Devas, have conquered Death, and have become the Guru of the whole world. By it I have done whatever I will, casting from Me ignorance and doubt (143). Brahmā,⁷ the Brahmarshis,⁸ the Devas,⁹ the Devars^{his}¹⁰ first did Sādhanā of this Mantra having received it from Me. The Munis¹¹ obtained it from the Devars^{his} and the Rājars^{his}¹² from the Munis. All these.

⁶ Vipras. The stages in the life of a Brāhmana are, Shūdra by birth, Dvi-ja (=twice born) after the Upanayana ceremony, Vipra when he is versed in Vedic knowledge, and Brāhmana when he has the knowledge of the Brahman. In the true sense anyone who knows the Brahman is Brāhmana, as the case of Vishvāmitra illustrates. Bhārati says that v. 142 states that all persons be they Brāhmanas or of inferior caste initiated or otherwise have competency (Adhikāra) for initiation into the Brahma-Mantra.

⁸ Brahmarshis: Rishis or Seers mind-born sons of Brahmā such as Bhrigu.

⁹ Such as Indra and others.

¹⁰ Rishis who are devas such as Nārada.

¹¹ Munis, Vyāsa, and others. "He whose heart is not distressed in adversity, in whom all joy in prosperity is lost, from whom passion, fear, and wrath have passed away, he is called a Muni fixed in meditation" (Bhagavad-Gītā, chap. ii, verse 56). A more specific definition is 'Mananāt munir uchyate' (a Muni is so called on account of his Manana—that is, of his thought, reasoning, and independent investigation, which follows on hearing, or Shravana, and which is itself followed by Nididhyāsana, or profound contemplation on the conclusion—Siddhānta—arrived at after Shravana and Manana).

¹² Rājars^{his}: Kings who became Rishis such as Janaka, Rituparna and others.

O beloved, by Sāadhanā of this Mantra attained union with Brahman by the Mercy of the Paramātmā (144-145).

In the initiation with this Brahma-Mantra, O Great Devī! there are no restrictions. The Guru may without hesitation give his disciple his own Mantra, a father may initiate his sons, a brother his brothers, a husband his wife, a maternal uncle his nephews, a maternal grandfather his grandsons¹ (146-147). Such fault as elsewhere there is in other forms of initiation, in the giving of one's own Mantra, by a father or other near relative, does not exist in the case of this great and powerful Mantra (148). He who has heard it, however it may be, from the lips of one initiate in the knowledge of Brahman,² is purified, and attains the state of Brahman, and is affected neither by virtue nor sin (149). The householders of the Brāhmana and other castes who pray with the Brahma-Mantra should be honoured and worshipped as being the greatest of their respective classes (150).

Brāhmanas at once become like those who have conquered their passions,³ and lower castes become equal to Brāhmanas: therefore let all worship those initiate in the

³ Yatis = Paribrājakas or those who have conquered their desires and are detached from the world, Brahma-Mantra, and thus knowers of Brahman¹ (151). They who insult them incur the sin of slaying Brāhmanas, and go to a terrible Hell, where they remain as long as the Sun and Stars endure (152). To revile and calumniate a worshipper of the Supreme Brahman is a sin ten million times worse than that of killing a woman or bringing about an abortion (153). As men by initiation in the Brahma-Mantra become freed of all sins, so, O Devī ! also may they be freed by the worship of Thee (154).

CHAPTER IV

THE WORSHIP OF SHAKTI

HAVING listened with attention to that which has been said concerning the worship of the Supreme Brahman, the Supreme Īshvarī¹ greatly pleased again thus questions Shangkara (1).

Shrī Devī said :

O Lord of the Universe and my Lord !² I am bathed with contentment in the nectar of Thy words concerning the excellent worship of the Brahman, which lead to the well-being of the world and to Brahman,³ and give light,⁴ intelligence,⁵ strength, prosperity⁶ and happiness (2-3). Thou hast said, O Ocean of Mercy ! that as union with the Brahman⁷ is attainable through worship of Him, so it may be attained by Sāadhanā of Me⁸ (4). I wish to know, O Lord ! of this excellent worship of Myself, which as Thou sayest is the cause of union of the worshipper with the Brahman (5). What are its rites, and by what means may it be accomplished ? What is its Mantra, and what the form of its meditation ¹ and mode of worship ? ² (6). O Shambhu ³ ! who but Thee, Lord among Physicians of earthly ills, ⁴ is fit to speak of it, from its beginning to its end, and in all its detail agreeable as it is to Me and beneficent to all humanity ? (7).

Hearing the words of the Devī, the Deva of Devas, Husband of Pārvatī, ⁵ was delighted, and spoke to Her thus : (8).

Shrī Sadāshiva said :

Listen, O Thou of high fortune and destiny, to the reasons why Thou shouldst be worshipped, and how thereby the individual becomes united with the Brahman ⁶ (9). Thou art the very Parā Prakriti ⁷ of Brahman the Shakti or Shakti without Brahman. Worship of Brahman is directed towards Brahman as united with Shakti and worship of Shakti is directed towards Shakti as united with Brahman. Therefore the worship of Brahman and worship of Shakti are one and the same. That being so the fruit to be gained by Brahmasādhana is the same as that to be gained by Shakti-sādhana.

⁵ Daughter of Parvata, the mountain Himālaya. A name of the Devī.

⁶ Here is given the reason why the Sādhana of the Parameshvari leads to Brahmasāyujya, namely, that Her Svarūpa is that of the Brahman since they are essentially one.

⁷ The Parā (Supreme) Prakriti and Paramātmā or Supreme Consciousness are united as one.

Paramātmā,¹ and from Thee has sprung the whole Universe—O Shivā—its Mother² (10). O gracious One! whatever there is in this world, of things which have and are without motion, from Mahat³ to an atom, owes its origin to

² On this verse Tarkālangkāra comments as follows: Paramātmā and Parabrahman=Turiya Brahman beyond the three Purushas, viz., the Vishva, Virāt and Jāgrat state, the Taijasa, Hiranyagarbha and Svapna state, and the Avyākṛita, Prājña and Susupti state (Avasthā) of which states the Purushas are Abhimānī. Here Sadāshiva is describing Pārvatī who is an Angsha of Mūlaprakṛiti inseparable from it. Turiya Brahman and Mūlaprakṛiti are in direct immediate connection (Sākshāt-sambandha, i.e., nothing intervenes—they are one immediately). The Sāmyāvasthā of the three Gunas when at rest (Nidrāsthāna) or the Nirguna state=Mūlaprakṛiti. On Kshobha or disturbance of equilibrium of the Gunas there arises from the Tāmasik part of Mūlaprakṛiti Maheshvara and Mahākālī; from the Rājasik part Brahmā and Mahāsarasvatī, and from the Sāttvik part Mahāviṣṇu and Mahālakṣmī. These are not in direct connection with Parabrahma but only mediately so (Paramparāsambandha) through the medium of the Gunas. In Pralaya all Gunas are dissolved in Mūlaprakṛiti when nothing else exists and as a consequence the eternal connection between Brahman and Mūlaprakṛiti is established. At the time of Kshobha of the Gunas, the latter appear separately and Prakṛiti takes on two aspects—the pure (Vishuddha) and non-pure (Malina). The first is Parā Prakṛiti, Vidyā, or Māyā and the second is Aparā Prakṛiti, Avidyā or Ajnāna. The Chaitanya to which is ascribed (Upahita) Parāprakṛiti is the omnipotent, omniscient Īshvara or Shiva, and the Chaitanya to which Aparāprakṛiti is ascribed is Ajnāna, Jiva. And so the Panchadashī says (I, 15-17) "Prakṛiti which is Sattva Rajas Tama Guna is of two kinds, being according to the purity or non-purity of Sattva (Prakāshāt-maka) guna, Māyā or Avidyā. The Chidātmā reflected on Māyā and controlling Her is the Omniscient Īshvara. The Chidātmā reflected on Avidyā and subservient to it by reason of her diversity (Vaichitrya) becomes many as Jivas.

³ Mahadādi, the Tattva Mahat, and the others of the Sāmkhya Philosophy. This word does not, as is sometimes supposed, mean "great" (Mahat), but is derived from the Vedic "Mahas," or "Maghas," which means "Jyotiḥ," or "Light". (Sāmkhya darshana by Umesha Chandra Batavyāla.) Tarkālangkāra says: From Prakṛiti originated Mahat-Tattva: from Mahat Ahangkāra: from Ahangkāra the eleven Indriyas and the five Tanmātras and from the latter the five Mahābhūtas. These are the 24 Tattvas of the Sāṅkhya Darshana. Combination of substance (Yāugika srishti) does not produce any new Tattvas. In the case of the earth and jar and gold and ornament there is no difference in substance. The process according to Tantra is extremely wonderful so much so that the knowing of it produces Divya-jnāna. It is not possible however to explain it in a short compass. The Nyāya and Sāṅkhya are not so subtle as this. The philosophers differ but the Tantrik doctrine conflicts with none. He who desires to know it and get thereby a glimpse of the Brahman should get instruction in the Uttara Āmnāya from a good Guru; he will then gain the highest end of man.

Thou art four-armed, two-armed, six-armed, and eight-armed, and holdest various missiles and weapons for the protection of the Universe ⁴ (17). In various Tantras I have spoken of the Sādhana of different Mantras ⁵ and Yantras, ⁶ and the like appropriate to the respective different forms assumed by Thee as also to the three different disposition of men ⁷ (18). In this Kali Age there is no Pashu-bhāva : Divya-bhāva is difficult of attainment, but the practices relating to Vira-sādhana ⁸ yield visible fruit (19).

² A class of Asuras, sons of Danu, daughter of Daksha, and Kashyapa. There are sixty-one, of which eighteen are principal.

³ Here the question "If I am in reality formless (Nirākārā) then why do I assume different forms ?" is anticipated and answered.

⁸ The worship suited to men in whom the passionate Guṇa (Rajas) prevails. See as to this passage Introduction to Vol. VI, "Tāntrik Texts". Tarkālangkāra's note is that as in the Kaliyuga Virabhāva alone exists, the rules of Virasādhana alone yield immediate fruit and should be practised.

In this Kali Age, O Devī! success is achieved by Kaulika worship ¹ alone, and therefore should it be performed with every care (20). By it, O Devī! is acquired knowledge of Brahman, and the mortal who has gained it, is of a surety whilst living ² freed from future births and exonerated from the performance of all religious rites (21). According to human knowledge the same thing appears to be pure and same impure, ³ but when Brahma-jñāna has been acquired there is nothing either pure or impure (22). For to him who knows that the Brahman is in all things and eternal, what is there that can be impure? (23). Thou art in the form of all, and above all Thou art the Mother of all. If Thou art pleased, O Queen of the Devas! then all are pleased ⁴ (24).

Before the Beginning of things Thou didst exist in the form of Tamas which is beyond both speech and mind, and of Thee by the creative desire of the Supreme Brahman was the entire Universe born ⁵ (25). This Universe, from

³ For him who is endowed with Brahma-jñāna, who sees the Brahman in everything, there is no distinction.

Jñānena medhyam akhilam amedhyang jñānato bhavet, Brahma-jñāne samutpanne medhyāmedhyang na vidyate.

⁴ The Devī exists in the form of all things (Sarvarūpīnī) and is the true nature of all things (Sarvasvarūpā). As Mūlaprakṛitī She is the Mother (Jananī) of all. She is Vishva Virāt, Taijasa Hiranyagarbha, Avyākṛita Prājña and Avyakta. She is the Root of the whole universe. As by watering the roots, the branches, leaves, flowers and fruits of a tree are nourished, in the same way if She is pleased then Brahmā, Vishnu and others are all pleased (Tarkālangkāra).

⁵ The Maitrī Upanishad (v. 52) says: Tamo vā idam agra āsit: tatpare syāt: tatpareneritang: vishamatvam prayāti: etad vai rajas: tadrajaḥ khalvīritang vishamatvam prayāti; etad vai sattvasya rūpam: tat sattvam eva īritang rasaḥ.

Verily this was at first Tamas alone. It abode in the Supreme. Then being set in motion by the Supreme it passes into inequality (loss of equilibrium). This is Rajas. This Rajas being moved passes into inequality. Then is the form of (or condition which is) Sattva.

Mahat¹ down to the gross elements,² has been created by Thee, since Brahman, Cause of all causes, is but the efficient Cause³ (26). It is Pure Being, Changeless, Omnipresent, Pure Consciousness unattached to,⁴ yet existing in all things (27). It acts not, neither does It enjoy. It moves not, neither is It motionless. It is true Being⁵ and

This Sattva being set in motion there is Rasa (Rasa=Chidānanda-prakāsha). On this Tarkālangkāra says that the word Tamas here means Mūlaprakṛiti: that is at the time of Pralaya (Dissolution) Tamo Guna retracts (Samhāra) the whole world. Then Sattva Guna as manifested is merged in Rajas and Rajas in Tamas which alone remains and then merges in Mūlaprakṛiti. By this I understand him to mean that Rajas works to suppress Sattva which becomes latent to bring into full action Tamas when all manifestation ceases. Then before the beginning of the next "Creation" or Production (Sṛishti) there is a stir (Kṣhobha) in the Gunas of Prakṛiti. Tamo Guna appears first: then Rajas: then Sattva. In the Shāradā this Tamas has been called Shakti: Cf. "Eternal Shiva is Nirguna and Saguna. The first is He who is Prakṛiter anyah or the other of Prakṛiti," that is, "He and She are one but here He is considered as other than Her. (Rāghava Bhaṭṭa says Prakṛiteh is used in the genitive not ablative case). Saguna is He who is with Kalā (that is, Mūlaprakṛiti). From Paramashiva who is Sachchidānanda and Sakala issued Shakti, from Shakti issued Nāda and from Nāda Bindu". Here the Paramashiva who is united with Kalā or Mūlaprakṛiti Shakti is Tamo Guna. Some also call it Mūla Ajnāna. By Nāda is meant Mahat-tattva which is threefold according to the Gunas. These three Nādas are Avyakta Maheshvara, Avyakta Brahmā and Avyakta Vishnu.

² Earth, Water, Fire, Air, and Ether.

³ Nimitta—that is, Instrumental or Efficient Cause, as opposed to Upādāna or Material Cause. Prakṛiti is the latter, whilst Puruṣha is the former. Prakṛiti cannot move without the Puruṣha. The proximity of the latter affects the Rajoh guna or stirring passionate quality in Prakṛiti, and with this stirring the Evolution of matter commences. Under the influence of the gaze of Puruṣha, Prakṛiti commences the world-dance.

⁴ Nirlipta, as a drop of water on the lotus-leaf. The creator unlike the creature is not affected by His Māyā.

Consciousness, without beginning or end, Ineffable and Incomprehensible (28).¹

Thou the Supreme Yoginī² dost, moved by His mere desire,³ create, protect, and withdraw this world with all that moves and is motionless therein (29). Mahākāla,⁴ the Dissolver of the Universe, is Thy form. At the Dissolution of things, it is Kāla Who will devour all (30), and by reason of this⁵ He is called Mahākāla, and since Thou devourest Mahākāla Himself, it is Thou who art the Supreme Primordial Kālikā (31).⁶

Because Thou devourest Kāla, Thou art Kālī, because Thou art the Origin of and devourest all things Thou art called the Ādyā Kālī⁷ (32). Resuming after dissolution Thine own nature, dark and formless,⁸ ineffable and inconceivable Thou alone remainest as the One (33). Though having a form, yet art Thou formless; though Thyself without beginning, multiform by the power of Māyā,¹ Thou art the Beginning of all, Creatrix, Protectress, and Destructress that Thou art (34). Hence it is, O Gentle One! that I have said to Thee that whatsoever fruit is attained by the initiate in the Brahma-Mantra, the same may be had by the Sāadhanā of Thee (35).

² Mahā-yoginī. Mahā-yoginī is a title of Shiva. Yoginī is derived from Yoga Shabda with the suffix nin. Here Yoga means the collectivity of all that is. Yoginī is She who shines therein (see commentary to v. 2, ch. IV, Yoginīhṛidaya). That commentary says that Yoginī is Tripurasundarī who is Svasamvit. Her redness is Her Vimarsha.

According to the differences in place, time, and capacity of the worshippers I have, O Devī! spoken of Sāadhanā suited to the mode of life governing them and their dispositions² (36). Where men perform that worship which they are competent³ to perform, there they participate in the fruits of worship, and being freed from sin will cross the Ocean of Being (37). By merit acquired in many previous births the mind inclines to Kaula doctrine, and he whose soul is purified by such worship himself becomes Shiva⁴ (38). Where there is abundance of enjoyment, of ¹ By and of which the universe is created.

² All men are not to follow the same form of Sāadhanā; as men differ in their character and ability so does the Sāadhanā. It is useless to prescribe a high vedāntik Sāadhanā for an ignorant and untrained intellect, what is prescribed for it is what it can understand and carry out. There are therefore differences in Āchāra, that is, the Rules governing conduct, way of life such as Veda, Vaishnava and Shaiva Āchāras. There are also differences of disposition (Bhāva) namely Pashu, Vira and Divya. Thus no Pashu is competent for Gupta-Sāadhanā or the secret ritual, the form of Sāadhanā must be determined after reference to all the circumstances of the particular case. This is the doctrine of Adhikāra or competency. See note below.

⁴ Bahū-janmārjitaiḥ puṇyaiḥ kulāchāre matir bhavet, what use is it to speak of Yoga,¹ and where there is Yoga there is no enjoyment, but the Kaula² enjoys both³ (39).

If one honours but one person versed in the knowledge of the essence of Kula doctrine,⁴ then all the Devas and Devis are worshipped—there is no doubt of that (40). The merit gained by honouring a Kaulika is ten million times that which is acquired by giving away the world with all its gold (41). A Chandāla versed in the knowledge of Kaulika doctrine excels a Brāhmana, and a Brāhmana who is wanting in such knowledge is beneath even a Chandāla⁵ (42).

³ Yatrāsti bhoga-bāhulyang tatra yogasya kā kathā
Yoge'pi bhogavirahah Kaulastūbhayam ashnute.

This is a fundamental principle of the Tantrik method. The Kaula thus enjoys both Bhoga and Yoga, the worship being with enjoyment. Yoga is the union of Prāna and Apāna, of seed and ovum, of "Sun" and "Moon," of Nāda and Bindu, of Jivātmā and Paramātmā. So also the Rudra-yāmala and the Maṅgala-rāja-stava say: "Where there is worldly enjoyment there is no Liberation; where there is Liberation, there is no worldly enjoyment. But in the case of excellent devotees of Shrisundarī both Liberation and Enjoyment are in the hollow of their hands."

⁵ One of the degraded castes engaged in work on the cremation-ground, bone-collecting, and the like. Their touch is pollution.

I know of no Dharma superior to that of the Kaulas, by adherence to which man attains Divine Experience¹ (43). I am telling Thee the truth, O Devī! Lay it to the heart and ponder over it. There is no doctrine superior to the Kaulika doctrine, the most excellent of all (44). This is the most excellent path kept hidden by reason of the crowd of Pashus,² but when the Kali Age advances this pathway will be revealed (45).

Verily and verily I say unto you that when the Kali Age reaches the fullness of its strength there will be no Pashus, and all men on earth will be followers of the Kaulika doctrine (46). O beauteous One!³ know that when Vedic and Purāṇic initiations cease then the Kali Age has become strong (47). O Shivā! O Peaceful One! when virtue and vice are no longer judged by the Vedic rules, then know that the Kali Age has become strong (48).

O Sovereign Mistress of Kaula doctrine! when the Heavenly Stream⁴ is at some places broken, and at others diverted from its course, then know that the Kali Age

Yasyānushthāna-mātrena Brahma-jñānī naro bhavet.

The second line gives the reason for the assertion made in the first. He has divine experience (Brahmajñāna).

² Men of the animal disposition in whom Tamas Guna prevails. See A. Avalon's "Shakti and Shākta". A man who is Pāsha-baddha that is bound by the eight fetters (Pāsha) that is Kula, Shīla, Moha, Lajjā, Ghrinā, Dayā, Varna, Bhaya and devoid of true knowledge of the Real (Tattva-jñāna) is a Pashu. The latter is of three kinds: best (Uttama), middling (Madhyama) and low or worst (Adhama). The first are those who faithfully follow Vedāchara, Vaishnavāchāra, and Shaivāchāra and are not hostile to any Devatā. The last are those who are hostile to the Devas and act as they please in neglect of the injunctions of Dharma Shāstra. The second class are between these two. Kulamārga is kept hidden by reason of the great number of these three classes of Pashu.

has become strong (49). O wise One! when kings of the Mlechchha race¹ become excessively covetous, then know that the Kali Age has become strong (50). When women become difficult of control, heartless and quarrelsome, and disparagators of their husbands, then know that the Kali Age has become strong (51). When men become subject to women and slaves of lust, oppressors of their friends and Gurus,² then know that the Kali Age has become strong (52). When the fertility of the earth has gone and yields a poor harvest, when the clouds yield scanty rain, and trees give meagre fruit, then know that the Kali Age has become strong (53). When brothers, kinsmen, and companions, prompted by the desire for some trifle, will strike one another, then know that the Kali Age has become strong (54). Even when the open partaking of flesh and liquor will pass without condemnation and punishment, yet secret drinking will still prevail, then know that the Kali Age has become strong³ (55).

As in the Satya, Tretā, and Dvāpara Ages wine and the like⁴ could be taken (openly), so they may be taken in the Kali Age in accordance with the Kaulika Dharma⁵ (56). The Kali Age cannot harm those who are purified by truth, who have conquered their passions and senses, who are

² Guru includes, besides spiritual teachers, others who are deserving of respect. Thus mother and father are called Mahāguru, and the husband is the Mahāguru of the wife.

³ This eating and drinking is the eating and drinking of non-Kaulas (see next verse), for the sake of animal appetite only.

open in their ways, without deceit, are compassionate and follow the Kaula¹ doctrine (57). The Kali Age cannot harm those who are devoted to the service of their Guru, to the lotus of their mothers' feet, and to their own wives (58). The Kali Age cannot harm those who are vowed to and grounded in Truth, adherents of the true Dharma,² and faithful to the performance of Kaulika rites and duties (59). The Kali Age cannot harm those who give to the truthful Kaulika Yogī the elements of worship,³ which have been previously purified by Kaulika rites (60).

The Kali Age cannot harm those who are free of malice, envy, hypocrisy, and hatred, and who are firm in the faith of Kaulika⁴ Dharma (61). The Kali Age cannot harm those who keep the company of Kaulikas, or live with Kaulika devotees,⁵ or serve the Kaulikas (62). The Kali Age cannot harm those Kaulikas who, whatever they may appear outwardly to be,⁶ yet remain firm in their adherence to Kaula¹ Āchāra, and worship Thee according to its doctrine (63). The Kali Age cannot harm those who perform their ablutions, charities, penances, pilgrimages, devotions,² and offerings of water³ according to the rules of Kulāchāra⁴ (64).

The Kali Age cannot harm those who perform the ten purificatory ceremonies,⁵ such as the blessing of the womb,⁶ obsequial ceremonies of their fathers,⁷ and other rites according to Kaulika ritual (65). The Kali Age cannot harm those who respect the Kula-tattva, Kula-dravya⁸ and Kula-yogī⁹ (66).

The Kali Age is but the slave of those who are free of all crookedness and falsehood, men of candour, devoted to the good of others, who follow Kaulika ways (67). In spite of its many blemishes, the Kali Age possesses one great merit, that from the mere resolve¹ of a Kaulika if sincere, desired result ensues (68). In the other Ages, O Devī! effort of will produced both religious merit and demerit, but in the Kali Age men by intention acquire merit only, and not demerit² (69). The slaves of the Kali Age, on the other hand, are those who know not Kulāchāra,³ and who are ever untruthful and the persecutors of others (70). They too are the slaves of the Kali Age who have no faith in Kulāchāra,³ who lust after others' wives, and oppress the faithful followers of Kaulika³ doctrine (71).

In speaking of the customs of the different Ages, I have, O Gentle One! O Pārvati! briefly recounted to please Thee the signs of the dominance of the Kali Age (72). When the Kali Age is made manifest, all Dharma⁴ is enfeebled and Truth alone remains; therefore should one be truthful⁵ (73). O Thou Virtuous One! know this for certain, that whatsoever man does with Truth⁶ that bears,⁷ fruit (74). There is no Dharma higher than Truth,¹ there is no sin greater than falsehood ; therefore should man seek protection under Truth with all his soul (75). Worship without Truth is useless, and so too without Truth is the Japa² of Mantras and the performance of Tapas.³ It is in such cases just as if one sowed seed in salt earth (76).

The Shloka is Stuti-vāda, or honorific speech and means that in former Ages men's intentions had result in good or evil as they wished, but in the present Age, whilst good intentions are quickly realised, from bad intentions evil is slow to result; for the Kali Age, though a degraded Age, is also a favoured one. The child himself may be a weakling, but the greater its infirmities the greater the Mother's help and favours.

Truth is the appearance of the Supreme Brahman ; Truth is the most excellent of all Tapas³ ; every act is rooted in Truth. Than Truth there is nothing more excellent (77). Therefore has it been said by Me that when the sinful Kali Age is dominant, Kaula ways⁴ should be practised truthfully and without concealment⁵ (78). Truth is divorced from concealment. There is no concealment without untruth. Therefore is it that the Kaulika-sādhaka should perform his Kaulika-sādhana openly (79). What I have said in other Kaulika Tantras about the concealment⁵ of Kaulika-dharma not being blameworthy is not applicable when the Kali Age becomes strong⁶ (80).

In the (First or) Satya Age, O Devī ! Virtue possessed the four quarters of its whole ; in the Tretā Age it lost one-quarter of its Virtue ; in the Dvāpara Age there was

It is said "at night" not for concealment, but as denoting the particular form of worship then done. See Ch. X, verse 111. In this verse, Bhārati says, a question is anticipated and answered.

of Virtue but two quarters, and in the Kali Age it has but one (81). In spite of that Truth will remain strong, though Tapas¹ and Charity become weakened. If the one quarter which is Truth goes Virtue goes also, therefore of all acts Truth should be the abiding support (82). O Sovereign Mistress of the Kaula-Dharma²! since men can in this Age have recourse to Kaulika Dharma only, if that doctrine be itself infected with untruth, how can there be Liberation? (83). With his soul purified in every way by Truth, man should, perform all acts enjoined by his caste and stage³ of life, in the manner shown by Me (84). O Maheshi¹! if when the Kali Age has become very powerful any act be done in violation of My precepts, then that which happens is the very contrary of that which is desired (92). Initiation of which I have not approved destroys the life of the Sādhaka² and an act of worship not so approved is as fruitless as oblations poured on ashes,³ and the Deva whom he worships becomes angry or hostile, and at every step he encounters danger (93). Ambikā⁴! he who during the dominance of the Kali Age, knowing My ordinances, yet performs his religious observances in other ways, is a great sinner (94). The man who performs any Vrata,⁵ or marries according to other ways, will remain in a terrible Hell so long as the Sun and Moon endure (95). By his performance of Vrata he incurs the sin of killing a Brahmana, and similarly a boy invested with the sacred thread becomes degraded.⁶ He merely wears the thread, and is lower than a Chandāla⁷ (96), and so too the woman who is married according to other ways than Mine is to be despised, and, O Sovereign Mistress of the Kaulas⁸! the man who so marries is her associate in wrong, and is day

Their children are bastards,³ and disqualified for all religious, ancestral, and Kaulika⁴ observances and rites (99). To an image dedicated by rites other than those prescribed by Shambhu⁵ the Deva never comes. Benefit there is none either in this or the next world. There is but mere waste of labour and money (100).

A Shrāddha performed according to other rites than those prescribed by the Āgamas is fruitless, and he who performs it will go to Hell together with his Pitris⁶ (101). The water offered by him is like blood, and the funeral cake⁷ like dung. Let the mortal then follow with great care the precepts of Shangkara⁸ (102). What is the need of saying more? Verily and verily I say to You, O Devī! that all that is done in disregard of the precepts of Shambhu⁸ is fruitless (103). For him who follows not His precepts there is no future merit. That which has been already acquired is destroyed, and for him there is no escape from Hell (104). O Great Ruler⁹! the performance of daily and occasional duties in the manner spoken

MANTRAS AND PURIFICATION

SHRĪ SADĀSHIVA said:

Thou art the Ādyā Paramā Shakti,¹ Thou art all power.² It is by Thy power³ that We (the Trinity) are powerful⁴ in the acts of Creation, Preservation, and Dissolution. Endless and of varied colour and form are Thy appearances, and various are the strenuous efforts whereby (Thy Sādhakas) may realise them. Who can describe them? (1-2). In the Kula Tantras and Āgamas⁵ I have, by the aid of but a small part of Thy mercy and with all My powers, described the Sādhana and Archana⁶ of Thy appearances; yet nowhere else is this secret Sādhana revealed. It is by the grace of this (Sādhana), O Blessed One⁷! that Thy mercy in Me is so great (3-4). Questioned by Thee I am no longer able to conceal it. For Thy pleasure, O Beloved! I shall speak of that which is dearer to Me than even life itself (5). To all sufferings it brings relief. It

² Sarva-shakti-svarūpī. That is the Devī is the one Shakti which manifests itself in different forms.

⁵ See "Principles of Tantra."

⁷ Kalyāṇī. This word has elsewhere been interpreted to mean "Giver of Liberation"—Mokṣadāyini.

wards off all dangers. It gives Thee pleasure, and is the way by which Thou art most easily obtained (6). For men rendered wretched by the taint of the Kali Age,¹ short-lived and unfit for strenuous effort, this is the greatest wealth (7). In this (Sādhana which will be described) there is no need for a multiplicity of Nyāsa,² for fasting or other practices of self-restraint.³ It is simple and pleasurable, yet yields great fruit to the worshipper (8). Then first listen, O Devī! to the Mantroddhāra⁴ of the Mantra, the mere hearing of which liberates man from future births while yet living⁵ (9).

By placing "Prānesha" on "Taijasa," and adding to it "Bherundā" and the Bindu, the first Bija⁶ is formed.⁷ After this, proceed to the second (10). By placing "Sandhyā" on "Rakta," and adding to it "Vāmanetra" and Bindu, the second Bija is formed.⁸ Now listen, O Blessed One! to the formation of the third Bija.

⁴ See note, ch. iii, 11, ante.

⁶ Or Mantra. As to the meaning of Bija Mantra see Woodroffe's "Garland of Letters".

⁷ For secrecy the letters are given different names which are only known to the learned. They may however also be got from the Bija-koshas one of which is published as Tantrābhidhāna in vol. I of my series of "Tāntrik Texts". Prānesha means "the Lord of Life," and signifies the letter Ha. Ha-kāra may mean either Vishnu or Shiva, or the latter alone, according to the Mantrābhidhāna. Ha-kāra is the Bija of Ākāsha (Vyoma)—Shiva being Mahākāsha-rūpī: in the form of the Great Ether. Taijasa (Tejas) means Fire, and signifies the letter Ra (Rang being the Bija of Fire). Bherundā, an attendant of Durgā, signifies the long vowel i. Thus, Ha + Ra = Hra + i = Hri + the Bindu (point or sign Anusvāra) = Hrīng.

⁸ Sandhyā = Sha, Rakta = Ra, Vāma-netra = the long vowel i, and Bindu is the point Anusvāra. Thus, Sha + Ra = Shra + i = Shri + the Bindu = Shring. As to the significance of Bindu see "Garland of Letters".

“Prajāpati” is placed on “Dīpa,” and to them is added “Govinda” and Bindu.¹ It yields happiness to the worshippers: After making these three Bījas add the word Parameshvari² in the vocative, and then the word for Vahni-kāntā.³ Thus, O Blessed One! is the Mantra of ten letters formed.⁴ This Vidyā⁵ is the Supreme Devī, is the substance which is all Mantras⁶ (11-13).

The most excellent worshipper should for the attainment of wealth and all his desires make Japa of each or all of the first three Bījas⁷ (14). By omitting the first three Bījas the Vidyā⁸ of ten letters becomes one of seven.⁹ By prefixing the Bija of Kāma,¹⁰ or the Vāgbhava,¹¹

² Title of the great Devī, as the Supreme Lord.

³ Consort of Vahni—Fire—that is, the Mantra “Svāhā,” used in making oblation to Fire or at the conclusion of the feminine Mantras (see post).

⁸ Feminine Mantra (vide ante).

⁹ That is, omitting the first three letters, Hring, Shrīng and Kring. The Mantra is then Pa-ra-me-shva-rī Svā-hā.

¹⁰ The Bija of Kāma—Deva of Desire—is Klīng.

or the Tāra,¹ three Mantras of eight letters each or formed² (15).

At the end of the word³ in the vocative in the Mantra of ten letters the word Kālike⁴ should be uttered, and then the first three Bijas,⁵ followed by the name of the Wife of Vahni⁶ (16). This Vidyā⁷ is called Shodashi,⁸ and is concealed in all the Tantras.⁹ If it be prefixed by the Bija of Badhū¹⁰ or by the Pranava,¹¹ two Mantras of seventeen letters each are formed¹² (17).

O Beloved! there are tens of millions upon tens of millions,¹³ nay an hundred millions,¹⁴ nay countless Mantras that Thou hast. I have here but shortly stated twelve of them¹⁵ (18). Whatever Mantras are set forth in the various Tantras, they are all Thine, since Thou art the

² That is, to the Mantra of seven letters thus formed either of the following three Mantras are added—that is, Klīng, or Aing, or Om—then separate Mantras of eight letters each are formed, which are Klīng Parameshvari Svāhā, Aing Parameshvari Svāhā, Om Parameshvari Svāhā.

³ i.e., Parameshvari.

Ādyā Prakriti ¹ (19). There is but one mode of Sādhana in the case of all these Mantras, and of that I shall speak for Thy pleasure and the benefit of humanity (20).

Without Kulāchāra, ² O Devī! the Shakti-Mantra ³ is powerless to give success, and therefore the Sādhaka should practise Shakti Sādhana with Kulāchāra rites (21). O Ādyā ⁴! the five essential Elements in the worship of Shakti have been prescribed to be Wine, ⁵ Meat, ⁶ Fish, ⁷ parched Grain, ⁸ and the Union of man with woman ⁹ (22). The worship of Shakti without these five elements ¹⁰ is but the practice of evil magic. ¹¹ That Siddhi which is the object of Sādhana is never attained thereby, and obstacles

¹⁰ Ordinarily called the Pancha Makāra (Five M's), as to which see "Shakti and Shākta," ante. They are here called Pancha-tattva, and elsewhere Pancha-dravya.

² On this verse Tarkālangkāra says what Shiva says is plainly this : By the poison which kills all animals, by that same poison the physician destroys disease. The root of Homeopathy is to cure illness by that which causes illness. Amongst us also there is the tradition that poison is destroyed by poison. What then is that which makes man sin and die before his time the object of contempt of all : The first amongst these causes are wine and woman ; meat, fish, Mudrā (fried rice, gram and other such things taken along with drinks) are accessories. These five Tattvas are the primary cause of the terrific incurable disease which is Sangsāra. Man under the influence of wine and the like becomes devoid of manliness and worthless. The stupefying power of wine and woman is so great as to attract even the pious and wise and hurl them into the abyss of darkness and ignorance. Here Shiva prescribes the poison which eradicates poison. We know as other Sādhakas do that this Homeopathic system of Shiva is infallible and yields speedy results. He who thirsts for wine or lusts after woman can be cured by this treatment within a very short time. But the physician, that is the Guru, must be experienced and skilful. A slight error in the administration of the poison may lead to fatal result. On this account Shiva has said that the path of Kulāchāra is more difficult than it is to walk on the edge of a sword or to embrace the neck of a tiger. Here we give a popular or exoteric explanation of the Tattvas. But if the esoteric meaning of them be also known then it will be seen that in the matter of Sāadhanā they are absolutely necessary. No one who is not a Tattva-Jnānī can master their esoteric meaning. On this account Shiva has prohibited the disclosure of the Sāadhanā to ordinary people. We have ourselves seen people who claim to be Kaulas but as a fact they are no better than drunkards and libertines. O Reader, blame not Kulāchāra on seeing these erring men. A libertine and drunkard can never be a Kaula. The Kaula method is unique. He cannot be a libertine and drunkard. On seeing a woman he sees his mother and Ishtadevatā in her and in either mind or body makes obeisance to her. The saints Gaurāṅga, Nityānanda and Advaita are brilliant examples of the true Kaula. In the Mahābhārata and Vishnu-purāṇa it has been said that desire cannot be quenched by the enjoyment of objects of that desire. On the contrary desire flames up like fire when Ghee is thrown upon it. This is very true. No one says that the drinking of poison will not kill. But the physician administers poison in such a wonderful way that it does not kill the patient but on the contrary the poison in the body is destroyed. The way in which the Guru administers the poison of wine and thus destroys the poison of Sangsāra cannot be disclosed before the unworthy (Anadhikāri) and so this is prohibited by Shiva.

Unless he has performed the morning rites ¹ a man is not qualified to perform the others. And therefore, O Devi! I shall first speak of those which are to be performed in the morning (25). In the second half of the last quarter of the night ² the Sādhaka should rise from sleep. Having shaken off drowsiness, he should seat himself in appropriate posture and meditate on the Guru as being in his head : ³

DHYĀNA

As two-eyed and two-armed, situate in the white lotus of the head ⁴ (26); clad in white raiment, engarlanded with white flowers, smeared with sandal paste. With one hand he makes the sign which dispels fear, and with the other that which bestows blessings. He is calm, and is the image of mercy. On his left his Shakti, holding in her hand a lotus, embraces him. He is smiling and gracious, the bestower of the fulfilment of the desires of the Sādhaka (27-28).

O Kuleshvari ⁵! the Sādhaka should, after having thus meditated upon his Teacher and worshipped him with the articles of mental worship, ⁶ do Japa with the excellent Vāgbhava-Bija ⁷ (29).

¹ Prātaḥ-kṛitya, such as bathing, morning prayers, etc. (vide post).

After doing Japa¹ of the Bija as best lies in his power, the wise disciple should, after placing the Japa² in the right palm of his excellent Guru, bow to him, saying meanwhile the following (30) :

Obeisance to the Shri Guru (31-32).

The disciple, having thus made obeisance to his Guru, should then meditate upon his Ishta-devatā,⁷ and worship Her as aforesaid,⁸ inwardly reciting the *Mūla-mantra*⁹ meanwhile (33). Having done this to the best of his

The gusts of air rush after him, and congregate upon him as women in an assembly. Hasting forward, he never reels. Friend of the waters first born, holy, in what place was he born! In the morning meditate upon Her in Her Brāhmī form,¹ as a Maiden of ruddy hue, with a pure smile, with two hands holding a gourd² full of holy water in one hand and in the other a string of crystal beads, clad in the skin of a black antelope, seated on a Swan (56). At midday meditate upon Her in Her Vaishnavī form,³ of a dark blue colour,⁴ youthful, with full and rising breasts, situated in the Solar Disc, with four hands holding the conch-shell, discus, mace, and lotus, seated on Garuḍa, garlanded with flowers⁵ to the knees (57-58). In the evening the Yati should meditate upon Her as of a white colour, clad in white raiment, old and long past her youth, with three eyes, beneficent, propitious, seated on a Bull, holding in Her lotus-like hands a noose, a trident, and a skull⁶ (59-60), and making the gesture of granting boons.

⁴ Shyāma-varṇā. According to Commentator on Shatchakranirūpana, v. 21, it means of the colour of gold.

Having thus meditated on the great Devī Gāyatrī, and offered water three times with the hollow of his joined hands, the worshipper should make Japa with the Gāyatrī mantra either ten or a hundred times (61). Listen now, O Queen of the Devas! while I out of my love for Thee recite the Gāyatrī (62).

After the word "Ādyāyai" say "Vidmahe," and then "Parameshvaryai dhīmahi; tannaḥ Kālī prachodayāt" ¹. This is Thy Gāyatrī which destroys all great sins (63). The inward recitation of this Vidyā ² thrice daily obtains the fruit of the performance of Sandhya. Water should then be offered to the Devas, Rishis, ³ and the Pitris ⁴ (64). First say the Pranava, ⁵ and then the name of the Deva (the Rishi or the Pitri) in the accusative case, and after that the words "Tarpayāmi namaḥ" ⁶. When however, oblation is offered

¹ "Let us think upon Ādyā; let us meditate on Parameshvarī (the Supreme Devī). May Kālī direct us (in the path of Dharma, Artha, Kāma, and Moksha)". Ādyā, Parameshvarī, and Kālī are one and the same. To the Shākta reciting this Gāyatrī the Ādyā is the only Divinity he thinks of, knows, and contemplates. To Her alone his whole soul is bent with a prayer for the attainment of the fourfold aim of sentient being. Bhārati reads: "May Kālī Whom we seek to know and on Whom we meditate that we may attain the Ādyā Parameshvarī, may She Who is verily the Cause of this universe, direct us in the path of Dharma, Artha, Kāma and Moksha."

The Mantra for the offering is given in the verse which follows and runs: Om Devān tarpayāmi Namaḥ, Om Rishīn tarpayāmi Namaḥ, Om Pitrīn tarpayāmi Namaḥ, Hrīm Ādyāng Kāling tarpayāmi Svāhā, for Devas, Rishis, Pitris and Ādyā Shakti respectively (Bhārati). Tarkālakāra says the mode of Tarpana is not fully given, but following the authority of other Tantras it should be done with the Tattva Mudrā (formed by the union of the thumb and ring finger of the left hand). In doing Tarpana (as in Rahasya tarpana) to a male Devatā it should be done in the Sādhaka's to Shakti, the Māyā Bija¹ should be said in place of the Pranava, and in lieu of Namaḥ the Mantra Svāhā² (65).

After reciting the Mūla-mantra,³ say "Sarva-bhūta-nivāsinyai," and then "Sarva-svarūpā" and "Sāyudhā" in the dative singular, as also "Sāvaranā" and "Parāt-parā," and then "Ādyāyai, Kalikāyai, te, idam arghyam : Svāhā". (When the Mantra will be :)⁴

Hṛīṅ, Shrīṅ, Krīṅ, to Thee the Supreme Devī, Thou Who dwelleth in and art in the form of all things, Who art surrounded by Thy attendant Devatās, and Who bearest all Thy insignia, Who art above even the most high, to Thee, Who art the Ādyā Kālikā, I offer this oblation : Svāhā (66-67).

Having offered this Arghya to the Mahādevī the self-controlled Sādhaka should make Japa with the Mūla-mantra with all his powers, and then place the Japa in the left hand of the Devī⁵ (68). Then let the Sādhaka bow to the Devī, take such water as is needed for the

⁴ The Mantra is thus: "Hṛīṅ. Shrīṅ, Kṛīṅ, Parameshvari, Svāhā : Sarva-bhūta-nivāsinyai Sarva-svarūpāyai Sāyudhāyai Sāvaranāyai Parātparāyai Ādyāyai Kalikāyai te idam arghyam : Svāhā."

On his arrival there let him wash his hands and feet, and then make in front of the door the Sāmānyārghya² (69-70). The Sādhaka should draw a triangle, and outside it a circle, and outside the circle a square, and after worshipping the Ādhāra-shakti place the vessel on the figure³ (71).

Let him wash the vessel with the Weapon-Mantra,⁴ and while filling it with water let him say the Heart-Mantra.⁵ Then, throwing flowers and perfume into the water, let him invoke the waters of the holy places into it (72). Worshipping Fire, Sun, and Moon in the water of the vessel, let him say⁶ the Māyā Bija⁷ over it ten times (73). The Dhenu and Yoni Muḍrās⁸ should then be shown.⁹

² Sāmānyārghya, the common or universal oblation—that is, the oblation which is to serve for the whole ritual worship which follows. The following verses to the seventy-fourth explain it.

⁹ That is, over the vessel containing the Arghya.

This is known as Sāmānyārghya.¹ With the water and flowers of this oblation the Devatā of the entrance to the place of worship should be worshipped (74). They are Ganesha, Kshetrapāla,² Vatuka,³ Yoginī,⁴ Gaṅga, Yamunā, Lakshmī, and Vānī⁵ (75). The Sādhaka, lightly touching that part of the door-frame which is on his left, should then enter the place of worship with his left foot forward, meditating the while on the lotus-feet of the Devī (76). Then, after worship of the presiding Devatā of the site, and of Brahmā in the south-west corner, the place of worship should be cleansed with water taken from the common offering⁶ (77). Let the good Sādhaka then by steadily gazing⁷ in front of him with winkless eyes remove all celestial obstacles,⁸ and by the repetition of the Weapon-Mantra⁹ and springling of water remove all obstacles in the Antariksha¹⁰ (78).

Striking the ground three times with his heel, let him drive away all earthly obstacles, and then fill the place of

He should then proceed to purify the elements of his body.⁴ The good Sādhaka should place his hands in his lap with the palms upwards, and fix his mind on the Mūlādhāra Chakra⁵ and rouse Kundalinī by uttering the Bija "Hūṅ". Having so roused Her, he should lead Her with Prithivī⁶ by means of the Hangsa Mantra to the Svādhishthāna Chakra,⁷ and there unite⁸ the Tattva (of Prithivi or Earth and Then let him dissolve Prithivī as also odour, and the organ of Smell into the Tattva of Water.² Dissolve Water and Taste, as also the sense of Taste itself,³ into the Tattva of Fire (95). Dissolve Fire and Form, and the sense of Sight itself,⁴ into Air.

Let Air and all connected therewith⁵ and Touch, as also the sense of Touch itself be dissolved into Ether⁶ (96). Dissolve Ether along with Sound into Ahangkāra⁷ and the latter into Mahat,⁸ Mahat itself into Prakriti, and Prakriti Herself into Brahman (97). Let the Sādhaka, having thus dissolved all the Tattvas,⁹ then think of a black man in the left cavity of his abdomen the embodiment of all sin.¹⁰ He is of the size of a thumb, with red beard and red eyes, holding a sword and shield, angry with his head ever held low (99).

² The Guna of Prithivī is smell. This Guna and the sense of smell is dissolved in Water. Odour is the objective and the sense of Smell the subjective side of Prithivī. Both are dissolved in "Water" in the Svādhishthāna.

³ The tongue. The objective physical quality of Water affects us as Taste. Subjectively the Tattva is the sense of Taste through the organ the tongue.

⁴ The eyes. Both objective Fire and Form and subjective Vision are dissolved in Air.

⁶ Vyoma—that is, the void in which Ether is.

⁸ Mahat, or the Mahat-tattva, that is, Buddhi.

¹⁰ Pāpātmakam deham = pāpam ātmani svasmin yasya evam bhūtam deham (Bhārati)—the body wherein sin abides. This is the Pāpapurusha. See "Sinful body" next verse.

Then the foremost of Sādhaka should meditate on the smoky-coloured Vāyu Bija¹ as in his left nostril, and as he inhales through that nostril mentally repeat it sixteen times, and thus dry the sinful body (100). Next, meditating on the red Bija of Agni² which is in the navel, the (Sādhaka's) body with all its sinful inclinations should be burnt up by the fire born of the Bija, assisted by sixty-four Kumbhakas³ (101). Then, thinking of the white Varuna Bija⁴ in his forehead, let him bathe (the body which has been so burnt) with the nectar-like water dropping from the Varuna Bija by thirty-two repetitions thereof whilst exhaling⁵ (102).

Having thus bathed the whole body from feet to head, let him consider that a new born Deva body has come into being (103). Then, thinking of the yellow Bija of the Earth⁶ as situate in the Mūlādhāra circle,⁷ let him strengthen his body by that Bija and by a steadfast and winkless gaze⁸ (104).

² That is, Rang—Bija of Fire.

³ Kumbhaka. The technical name of inspiration is Pūraka: of expiration, Rechaka; and the restraining or holding of breath is known as Kumbhaka. Here, then, there are to be sixty-four Kumbhakas, at the same time sixty-four repetitions of the Agni Bija, that is, the period is one requiring sixty-four repetitions of the Bija.

⁴ That is, Vang—Bija of Water.

⁵ Rechaka, which is also repetitions of Varuna Bija, is to be performed thirty-two times.

⁸ Divya-dristi. Here ends the rite of Bhūta-shuddhi, and the Text proceeds to the rite known as Jivanyāsa (see verses 106-108). Tarkā-langkāra says that in this verse Jivanyāsa is only given in brief. The full procedure is as follows. After Bhūta-shuddhi, the Sādhaka places his hand on his heart and says "He I am" (So'ham). Thereafter he puts Kula Kundalinī and others in these places and with his hand on the heart recites the following Mantras—Ang, Hring, Krong, Yang, Rang, Lang, Vang, Shang, Shang, Sang, Haung Haung, Hangsa^h, Shrīmadādyā-Kālikāyā^h prānā iha prānā^h. (The Prānas or vital airs of the glorious primordial Kālikā are the vital airs here). Then repeating the Bijās as above says Shrīmadādyā Kālikāyā jīva iha sthita^h. ¹ That is, "He I am". Sa^h=he, Aham=I. The two words, when combined, according to the rules of Sandhi, become So'ham, or the unity of the individual and Supreme Spirit.

² Literally, "Place the vital air of the Devī into his body." Taddehe Devyā^h prānān nidhāpayet. The Sādhaka puts into the newly formed body of his the life of the Devī. He realises in his body the identity of himself with Her. This Shloka concludes Jīva-nyāsa, and then next proceeds to Mātrikā-nyāsa (see "Shakti and Shākta").

Having placed the letters according to the rules of Nyāsa, the Sādhaka should next meditate upon Sarasvatī :

To these Manu adds (vii, 43) a fifth—Ātma-vidyā, Knowledge of the Spirit. Others divide Vidyā into fourteen sections: Four Vedas, Six Vedāṅgas, Purānas, the Mīmāṃsā, Nyāya, and Dharma-shāstra, or Law. Others, again, add the four Upa-vedas, making the division eighteen. The Vedāṅgas are Shikshā (Science of proper articulation), Kalpa (ceremonial), Vyākaraṇa (linguistic analysis, or Grammar), Nirukta (explanation of Vedic words), Jyotiṣa (Astronomy), and Chhandas (Metre). These are regarded as auxiliary to, and in this sense as part of, the Vedas. Some people interpret Vidyā to mean the Mudrā of that name.

⁵ Svādhishthāna Chakra of six petals, situate at the root of the organ of generation. The six petals contain the letters Ba, Bha, Ma, Ya, Ra, La. Its Shakti is Rākinī.

⁷ See Woodroffe's "Shakti and Shākta". In the text only Oshtha (upper lip) is mentioned, but the practice is as described in the work cited.

⁸ Kakud. The hump of the bull is called Kakud. Here it means the portion of the back between the two shoulder-blades, where a hump, if it existed, would be, heart, (four) joints of the legs, ends of legs, and on all parts from the heart to the two arms, from the heart to the two legs, from the heart to the mouth, and from the heart to the different parts as above indicated, Prānāyāma should be performed¹ (116-118). Draw in the air by the left nostril whilst inwardly uttering the Māyā Bija² sixteen times, then fill up the body by Kumbhaka by stopping the ¹ See "Serpent Power" and Woodroffe's "Shakti and Shākta". Mode of doing Mātrikā nyāsa is as follows. With middle and third finger place letter A on forehead and say Ang Namah. With first, middle and third fingers put round the mouth and say Āng Namah. With thumb and third place I on right eye and say Ing Namah. Same fingers on left eye Īng Namah. Back of thumb on right ear Ung Namah and left ear Ūng Namah. Little finger and thumb on right nostrils Rīng Namah: on left nostrils Rring Namah. First, second, third on right cheek Lling Namah: on left Ling Namah. Middle finger upper lip Eng Namah. On lower lip Aing Namah. Third fingers upper teeth Ong Namah. Lower teeth Aung Namah. Middle finger head Āng Namah. Third finger on opened mouth Ah Namah.

Then passing to the consonants, with middle, third and little fingers joined together place on right shoulder Kang, on elbow Khang, on wrist Gang. With same fingers place on lower forms of fingers of right hand Ghang and on tips of fingers Ngang in the same way on left arm place Chang, Chhang, Jang, Jhang and Nyang. Then on right leg on hip-joint knee ankle, lower joints and tips of toes place Tang, Thang, Dang, Dhang, Nang and on the left place Tang, Thang, Dang, Dhang and Nang. With same fingers on right side place Pang on left Phang, on back Bang. With thumb middle third and little fingers place Bhang on navel. On belly place Mang with all the fingers. On the heart put Yang saying Tvagātmane Namah with the palm of the hand. On the right shoulder with palm put Rang saying Asrigātmane Namah. With palm place Lang on the hump saying Māngsātmane Namah. On left shoulder place Vang with palm saying Meda ātmane Namah. From the heart to the right shoulder place Shang saying Asthyātmane Namah. From the heart to the left shoulder Shang saying Majjātmane Namah. From heart to right leg place Sang saying Shukrātmane Namah. From heart to left leg place Hang and say Prānātmane Namah. From heart to belly place Llang and say Jīvātmane Namah. From heart to mouth place Kshang and say Paramātmane Namah. This is the Vahiruyāsa of Mātrikā (Tarkālangkāra). For those who cannot do the prescribed Mudrās a flower may be used. (Cf. Ullāsa, iii, 44 et seq.)

passage of both the nostrils with the little, third finger, and thumb whilst making Japa of the Bija sixty-four times, and, lastly, exhale the air through the right nostril whilst making Japa of the Bija thirty-two times¹ (119-120). The doing of this thrice through the right and left nostrils alternately is Prānāyāma.

After this has been done, *Rishi-nyāsa*² should be performed (121). The *Rishis*³ of the Mantra are Brahmā and the Brahmarshis,⁴ the metre is of the Gāyatrī and other⁵ forms, and its presiding Devatā is the Ādyā Kālī (122).⁶ The Bija is the Bija of the Ādyā,⁷ its Shakti is the Māyā Bija,⁸ and that which comes at the end⁹ is the Kamalā Bija¹⁰. Then the Mantra should be assigned¹¹ to the head, mouth, heart, anus, the two feet, and all the parts

¹ This is Pūraka, Kumbhaka, Rechaka. The air inhaled by Pūraka increases in volume by the heat of the body five times during Kumbhaka, and, when exhaled, two-fifths only passes out, and the remaining three-fifths is retained, the object of Prānāyāma being the increase of the vital forces and the lightness of the body. The more the air (vital breath) is kept in, the lighter becomes the body and the stronger the vitality.

² As to the meaning of Nyāsa see "Shakti and Shākta".

³ Rishi, the inspired Teacher by whom it has been originally seen—that is, to whom it has been revealed.

⁴ Mind-born sons of Brahmā.

⁵ Ushnik, Anushtup, Brihatī, Pangkti, Trishtup, and Jagatī, are with Gāyatrī, the seven metres.

⁶ VV. 122, 123 give the Rishyādi-Nyāsa of the Mantra that is the Rishi-Nyāsa and other kinds of Nyāsa which are required to be done.

⁷ I.e., Krīṅg.

⁸ I.e., Hrīṅg.

⁹ I.e., the Kīlaka.

¹⁰ I.e., Shrīṅg.

¹¹ Nyāsa. To these different parts these Bijas should be assigned—that is, when the Mantra is said, it is thought of as being located in the head, mouth, etc., the hands touching the part in question. Vīnyaset = Nyāsa should be done = should be placed.

of the body (123).¹ The passing of the two hands three or seven times over the whole body from the feet to the head, and from the head to the feet, making Japa meanwhile of the Mūla-mantra,² is called Vyāpaka-nyāsa,³ which yields the declared result (124).

O Beloved ! by adding in succession the six long vowels to the first Bija⁴ of the Mūla-mantra, six Vidyās⁵ are formed. The wise worshipper should in Aṅga-kalpanā⁶ utter in succession these or the Mūla-mantra⁷ alone (125), and then say "to the two thumbs," "to the two index fingers," "to the two middle fingers," "to the two ring fingers," "to the two little fingers," "to the front and back of the two palms," concluding with Namah, Svāhā, Vashat, Hūṅ, Vaushat, and Phat in their order respectively⁸ (126).

⁷ Hrīṅ Shrīṅ Krīṅ Parameshvari Svāhā.

⁸ These verses speak of Aṅgushthādi-shadaṅga-nyāsa, beginning with thumb as Kara-nyāsa. The Mantras are Hrāṅ Aṅgushthābhyāṅ

When touching the heart¹ say "Namah," when touching the head, "Svāhā," and when touching the crown lock say "Vashat". Similarly when touching the two upper portions of the arms, the three eyes² and the two palms, utter the Mantras Hūṅ and Vaushat and Phat respectively. In this manner Nyāsa of the six parts of the body should be practised, and then the Vīra should proceed to Pīthanyāsa³ (127-128). Then let the Vīra⁴ place in the Lotus of the Heart,⁵ the Ādhāra-shakti,⁶ the Tortoise,⁷ Namah, Hrīṅ Tarjanībhyāṅ Svāhā, Hrūṅ Madhyamābhyāṅ Vashat, Hraṅg Anāmikābhyāṅ Hūṅ, Hraung Kanishthābhyāṅ Vaushat, Hrah Karātala-prishthābhyāṅ Phat.

Kara Nyāsa is done as follows: Hrāṅg Namah to the two thumbs, Hrīṅg Svāhā to the two first fingers, Hrūṅg Vashat to the two middle fingers, Hraṅg Hūṅ to the two third fingers, Hraung Vaushat to the two little fingers Hrah Phat to the palm and back of the hand. In ordinary Kara Nyāsa the thumbs and fingers abovementioned are used. But the method is different in different Sampradāyas.

In vv. 125, 126 direction is given as regards Karanyāsa and Amganyāsa.

² The central eye, situated in the forehead between the other two. The eye of Wisdom (Jnāna-chakshu).

³ Here the Pīthas take the place of the Mātrikā. These Pīthas are the ten from Ādhāra Shakti to Padmāsana.

⁴ From here to verse 135 Pītha-nyāsa is dealt with.

⁵ Hridayāmbuje. The Lotus, with all it contains, is called Ānanda Kanda (vide post). This is the Sthūla aspect for worship of that which exists in the twelve-petalled lotus.

² Prithvī, or Prithivī, Devī Earth. Supported by Shesha. In the body it is in Mūlādharma below which in the lower limbs are the previous supporting Shaktis.

³ Sudhāmbudhi.

⁵ A Tree with scented flower in the Heaven of Indra. One of the five celestial Trees in the garden of Indra—viz., Mandāra, Pārijāta, Santāna, Kalpa-vriksha, Hari-chandana. Here a tree in the Isle of Gems.

⁶ Chintāmani-griha. Chintāmani is that gem which yields all objects desired. Of that the chamber or house is built in the Isle of Gems. In the house of Chintāmani, which is on the northern side of Shringāra-vana, all is Chintāmani. In the commentary on the Gaudapāda Sūtra (No. 7) the Chintāmani house is said to be the place of origin of all those Mantras which bestow all desired objects (Chintita). The Lalitāsahasra-nāma speaks of the Devī as residing there (Chintāmani-grihantahsthā).

and in their order, Dharma,¹ Jñāna,² Aishvarya,³ and Vairāgya⁴ (131), and the excellent worshipper should place the negatives of these qualities on the mouth, the left side, the navel, and the right side respectively⁵ (132). Next let him place in the heart, Ānanda Kanda,⁶ Sun, Moon, Fire,⁷ the Three Gunas⁸ preceded by the first of their letters with the Bindu added thereto⁹, the filaments and pericarp of the Lotus, and the eight Nāyikās¹⁰ of the Pithas on the petals. The eight Nāyikās are Maṅgalā, Vijayā, Bhadrā,

³ Dominion and Power.

⁴ Dispassion, the state of freedom from all desires.

⁵ The Mantra is: Dakṣa-skandhe Dharmāya Namaḥ, Vāma-skandhe Jñānāya Namaḥ, Vāma-katau Aishvaryāya Namaḥ, Dakṣa-katau Vairāgyāya Namaḥ, Mukhe Adharmāya Namaḥ, Vāma-pārshve Ajñānāya Namaḥ, Nābhau Anaishvaryāya Namaḥ, Dakṣa-pārshve Avairāgyāya Namaḥ.

⁷ By Sūrya, Soma, and Hutāshana (Eater of Oblations) are meant the Sthūla aspect of "Sun," "Moon" and "Fire" in the head: as to which see Chapter so-named in Woodroffe's "Garland of Letters" and "Serpent Power". In the early stage of Sādhana the Devatā is here invoked. On attainment of Yoga-siddhi the lotus is merged in the Sahasrāra.

¹⁰ That is, the Sādhaka says: Sang Sattvāya Namaḥ, Rang Rajase Namaḥ, and Tang Tamase Namaḥ.

Jayantī, Aparājitā, Nandinī, Nārasimhī, Vaishnavī.¹ The eight Bhairavas² are Asitāṅga, Chanda, Kapālī, Krodhā, Bhīṣhana, Unmatta, Ruru, Saṁhārī. These should be placed on the tips of the petals of the lotus and then after Pīṭhan-yāsa is done in this way Prānāyāma should be done (133-135).

Then the Sādhaka should, after forming his hands into the Kachchhapa Mudrā,³ take perfume and flower, and, placing his hands held in the same Mudrā on his heart, meditate upon the eternal Devī (136). The nature of meditation upon Thee, O Devī! is of two kinds, according as Thou art thought of as formless or with a form.⁴ As formless Thou art ineffable and incomprehensible, unmanifest, all-pervading. Of Thee it cannot be said that Thou art either this or like this. Thou art omnipresent, transcendent, attainable only by Yogīs through austerities such as the many acts of self-restraint and the like (137-138).⁵ I will next speak of meditation upon Thee in ¹ The ceremony is accompanied by the following Mantra : Hridaye Ānanda-kandāya Namaḥ, Sūryāya Namaḥ, Somāya Namaḥ, Agnaye Namaḥ, Saṅg Sattvāya Namaḥ, Raṅg Rajase Namaḥ, Taṅg Tamase Namaḥ, Kesarebhyo Namaḥ, Karnikāyai Namaḥ, Hritpadma-patrebhyo (to the petals of the heart lotus) Namaḥ, Maṅgalāyai Namaḥ, Vijayāyai Namaḥ, etc. Hritpadma-patrāgrebhyo (to the tips of the petals of the heart lotus) Namaḥ, Asitāṅgāya Namaḥ, etc.

² He of the black body, the Fierce One, the Wearer of skulls, the Angry One, the Terrific One, the Mad One, Ruru, and the Destroyer. These Bhairavas are aspects or emanations of the God Shiva (see notes under ch. II. v. 23 and ch. VI. v. 2). Some texts read Bhayaṁkara for Unmatta.

⁴ Dhyāna is Sa-rūpa or A-rūpa.

⁵ Shama = control of the inclinations (Antahkarana). Dhyāna is of two kinds, namely, Sthūla gross or with form and Sūkṣma or subtle. If the Brahman is thought of with form and attributes then it is Sthūla Dhyāna. Dhyāna of the formless (Nirākāra) and attributeless (Nirguṇa) is Sūkṣma Dhyāna. The latter again is of two kinds : (a) Bindudhyāna, (b) Shūnyadhyāna. The Bindu or Point has neither length nor height nor depth nor breadth. It is however united with Māyā (Māyāyukta).

corporeal form in order that the mind may learn concentration, that the desired end be speedily achieved, and that the power to meditate according to the subtle form may be aroused ¹ (139).

The form of the greatly lustrous Kālikā, Mother of Kāla,² Who is without form, is imagined according to Her qualities ³ and actions ⁴ (140).

DHYĀNA

I adore the Ādyā Kālikā Whose body is of the hue of the (dark) rain-cloud, upon Whose forehead the Moon gleams, the three-eyed One⁵ clad in crimson raiment,⁶ Whose two hands are raised—the one to dispel fear, and

It is from this Bindu that Brahmā, Vishnu and Maheshvara and others originated. Meditation on that which is undifferentiated (Aparichchhinna), attributeless, formless, changeless, incomprehensible Sat Chit Ānanda is Shūnyadhyāna. This is beyond the scope of mind and speech. When by Yoga practice another "sense" is awakened then Yogīs by Yoga-power experience the Bindu or Shunya. This is called Brahma-sākshātkāra (Tarkālangkāra).

¹ That is, the meditation of the Devī as the Formless One. Dhyāna is of two kinds. Some speak of three kinds of Dhyāna; Sthūla, Sūkshma and Para. The Gheranda Sanghitā speaks of three forms of Dhyāna—Sthūla, Jyotih, and Sūkshma.

³ Sattva, Rajas and Tamas.

⁴ Creation, Preservation, and Destruction, Anugraha and Nigraha or Nirodha. In this verse is given the answer to the anticipated question. "One may meditate on form in Sthūla Dhyāna but how can there be Sthūla Dhyāna of Her who is formless without beginning or end?"

⁵ Symbolising the Past, Present and Future of Time, of whom she is the Mother.

the other to bestow blessing¹—Who is seated on a red lotus in full bloom, Her beautiful face radiant, watching Mahā-Kāla,² Who, elated with the delicious wine of the Madhūka flower,³ is dancing before Her (141).

After having meditated upon the Devī in this manner and placed a flower on his head, the Sādhaka should with all devotion worship Her with the articles of mental worship (142). Let him offer the Lotus of the heart⁴ for Her seat, the Ambrosia trickling from the Lotus of a thousand petals⁵ for the washing of Her feet, and his mind as offering⁶ (143). Then let him offer the same ambrosia as water for rinsing of Her mouth and bathing of Her body, and the essence of the Ether as raiment of the Devī, the essence of smell for the perfumes, his own heart⁷ and vital airs,⁸ fire,⁹ and the Ocean of nectar respectively as the flowers, incense, light and food offerings (of worship). (144-145.)

² Shiva as the destroyer or as the embodiment of Time. In Tantrarāja (ch. 36, v. 40) Shiva says "whatever the letters in the word Kāla signify that is my body."

⁴ The eight-petalled lotus—Ānanda-kanda (see verse 133, ante).

⁵ The Lotus which is situated in the Brahma-randhra (Cavity of Brahma) is called Sahasrāra (the thousand-petalled).

⁶ Arghya = offering of worship.

⁹ Tejastattva in Manipura. The ocean which follows (Sudhāmbudhi) is one of the seven oceans by which the universe is surrounded.

Let him offer the Sound in the Anāhata Chakra¹ for the ringing of the bell, the essence of the Air for the fan and fly-whisk,² and the functions of the Senses and the restlessness of the mind for the dance before the Devī³ (146). Let various kinds of flowers (of mind) be offered for the attainment of purity of mind⁴: Amāya,⁵ Anahangkāra,⁶ Arāga,⁷ Amada,⁸ Amoha,⁹ Adambha,¹⁰ Advesha,¹¹ Akshobha,¹² Amātsarya,¹³ Alobha,¹⁴ and thereafter the five flowers—namely, the most excellent flowers, Ahimsā,¹⁵

² Chāmara, which is used in the worship of the image.

⁴ Bhāva-siddhi. That is leading to Shuddha-bodha or Brahma-jñāna. Svābhipreta-padartha-nishpatti (Bhāratī).

⁶ Absence of egotism. Ahangkāra = Ātmani atipriyatvābhimānaḥ.

⁷ Detachment. According to Bhāratī = absence of anger.

⁸ Absence of pride = Dhanavidyādi-nimittakan chittasyag utsukātvam (Bhāratī).

⁹ Freedom from delusion. Viveka—Power to discriminate the real and unreal, coupled with dispassion.

¹⁰ Absence of duplicity: straightforwardness or absence of hypocrisy (Dambha = Kapatata).

¹¹ Want of all enmity.

¹² Freedom from mental disturbance or repentance.

¹³ Absence of envy.

¹⁵ Harmlessness. No oppression of others.

Indriya-nigraha,¹ Dayā,² Kshama,³ and Jnāna.⁴ With these fifteen flowers, which are fifteen qualities of disposition,⁵ he should worship the Devī (147-149).

Then let him offer (to the Devī) the Ocean of Ambrosia,⁶ a mountain of meat and fried fish, a heap of parched food,⁷ grain cooked in milk with sugar and ghee, the Kula nectar,⁸ the Kula flower,⁹ and the water which has been used for the washing of the Shakti.¹⁰ Then, having sacrificed all lust and anger, the cause of all impediments, let him do Japa (150-151).

The Mālā (rosary) prescribed consists of the letters of the alphabet, strung on Kundalinī¹¹ as the thread (152). After reciting each of the letters of the alphabet from A¹²

² Mercy, pity, kindness. The desire to remove the pain and suffering of others without hope of reward.

⁴ Spiritual knowledge. Knowledge of what is essential and non-essential (Sārāsāravivekanaipunya).

⁸ Kulāmṛita nectar produced by means of Shakti. It is defined by Hariharānanda as Shakti-ghatitam amṛitavishesham.

¹² Which is called Shṛī-kantha. The letter A is so called because it is an equivalent of Vishnu, and Shṛī-kantha is one of His names.

to La, with the Bindu¹ superposed upon each, the Mūla-mantra² should be recited. This is known as Anuloma.³ Again, beginning with La and ending with A, let the Sādhaka make Japa of the Mantra. This is known as Viloma.³ *Kṣha-kāra*⁴ is called the Meru⁵ (153-154).

Japa should be done of the Mūla-mantra⁶ eight times adding it to each of the last letters of the eight group of letters⁷ and having thus done one hundred and eight Japas the same should be offered (to the Devī⁸) with the following (155)

MANTRA

O Ādyā Kālī! Who abidest as the Spirit in all,⁹ Who art the innermost Light,¹⁰ O Mother! accept this inner Japa of my heart.¹¹ I bow to Thee (156).

Having offered the Japa, with the foregoing Mantra, he should mentally prostrate himself, touching in his mind the ground with the eight parts¹² of his body. Having concluded the mental worship, let him commence the outer worship (157).

² Hṛīṅ, Shrīṅ, Kṛīṅ, Parameśhvari Svāhā.

³ That is, the ordinary order, as Viloma is the reversed order.

I am now speaking of the consecration of the Vishesh-ārghya,¹ by the mere placing whereof the Devatā is exceedingly pleased. Do Thou listen (158). At the mere sight of the cup of this offering the Yoginīs,²

¹ The Visheshārghya is the special offering, as contrasted with the Sāmānyārghya, placed in front of the room where worship is being performed.

² Attendants of numerous kinds of the Devī, who is Herself called Yoginī. Generally however the Yoginīs are the Āvarana Devatās of various classes. The Yoginīs (see Jñānārṇava Tantra, Ch. XVI, 140 et seq., also Tantrarāja, Tāntrik Texts, Vol. VIII) are of nine classes as appearing in the nine Chakras of the great Shriyantra, viz. (proceeding from the outermost Chakra, inwards) Prakatā, Guptā, Guptatārā, Atiguptatārā, Kula-kaulā, Nigarbhā, Rahasyā, Parārahasyā, Parāpararahasyā. The first is in the outermost Chakra called Trailokya-mohana and the last in the innermost, called Sarvānandamaya. In the same order the names of the Devatā worshipped are Tripurā, Tripureshī, Tripurasundarī, Tripuravāsini, Tripurāshī, Tripuramālīnī, Tripura-siddhā, Tripurāmbā, Mahātripurasundarī. The names of the Chakra in the same order are: (1) Trailokya-mohana; (2) Sarvāshāpūraka;
(3) Sarvasaṅkshobhana, (4) Sarva-saubhāgyapradā; (5) Sarvārtha-sādhaka; (6) Sarvarakshākara; (7) Sarvaroghara; (8) Sarva-siddhipradā; (9) Sarvānandamaya.

In (1) are eight Yoginīs, viz., Brāhmī, Māheshvarī, Aindrī, Kaumārī, Vaishnavī, Vārāhī, Chāmunda, Mahālakshmi, eight Mātrikā Yoginīs and eight Siddhis. Worship is of these as it is of the others in their respective Chakras.

In (2) there are sixteen, viz., Kāmākarshinī, Buddhyākarshinī, Ahmākārkarshinī, Shabdākarshinī, Sparshākarshinī, Rūpākarshinī, Rasākarshinī, Gandhākarshinī, Chittākarshinī, Dhairyākarshinī, Smrityākarshinī, Nāmākarshinī, Bījākarshinī, Ātmākarshinī, Amritākarshinī, Sharīrākarshinī.

In (3) there are eight, viz., Anāṁgakusumā, Anāṁgamekhalā, Anāṁgamadanā, Anāṁgamadanāturā, Anāṁgarekhā, Anāṁgaveginī, Anāṁgāṅgkushā, Anāṁgamālīnī.

In (4) there are fourteen, Sarvasaṅkshobhinī, Sarvavidrāvinī, Sarvākarshinī, Sarvāhlādinī, Sarvasammohinī, Sarvastambhinī, Sarvajambhinī, Sarvavashankarī, Sarvaranjinī, Sarvonmādinī, Sarvārtha-sādhani, Sarvasampattipūrīnī, Sarvamantramayī, Sarvadvandvakshayangkarī.

In (5) there are ten, viz., Sarvasiddhipradā, Sarvasampatpradā, Sarvapriyangkarī, Sarvamaṅgalakārīnī, Sarvakāmapradā, Sarvasaubhāgyadāyinī, Sarvamṛityuprashamanī, Sarvavighnanivārīnī, Sarvām-gasundarī, Sarvaduḥkhavimochanī.

He should then place in front of the special offering, on bael leaves¹ Dūrvā grass,² flowers, and sun-dried rice³ dipped in red sandal paste (167).

Having invoked the holy waters (of the sacred Rivers into the Arghya) by the Mūla-mantra and Angkusha-mudrā, the Sādhaka should meditate upon the Devī as in it and worship Her with incense and flowers, and make Japa of the Mūla-mantra twelve times (168). After this let him display over the Arghya⁴ the Dhenu Mudrā,⁵ and the Yoni Mudrā,⁶ incense sticks and light. The worshipper should then pour a little water from the Arghya into the vessel⁷ kept for that purpose, and sprinkle himself and the offering therewith. The vessel containing the offering⁸ must not, however, be moved⁹ until the worship is concluded (169-170). O Thou of pure Smiles! I have now spoken of the consecration of the special offering.¹⁰

I will now pass to the Yantra-rāja¹¹ which grants the aims of all human existence¹² (171).

¹² Samasta-purushārtha—i.e., the fourfold aim of existence—Dharma, Artha, Kāma, Moksha.

Draw a triangle with the Māyā Bīja¹ within it, and around it two concentric circles (the one outside the other). In the space between the two circumferences of the circles draw in pairs the sixteen filaments, and outside these the eight petals of the lotus, and outside them the Bhū-pura,² which should be made of straight lines with four entrances, and be of pleasing appearance (172-173). In order to cause pleasure to the Devatā³ the disciple should (reciting the Mūla-mantra⁴ the meanwhile) draw the Yantra either with a gold needle, or with the thorn of a bael tree on a piece of gold, silver, or copper, which has been smeared with either the Svayambhu, Kunda, or Gola flowers,⁵ or with sandal, fragrant aloe,⁶ Kungkuma,⁷ or with red sandal paste. It may also be made by a clever carver on crystal, coral, or lapis lazuli (174-176).

After it has been consecrated by auspicious rites, it should be kept inside the house; and on this being done all wicked spirits, all fear from (adverse) planets, and diseases are destroyed; and by the beneficent influence of this Yantra the worshipper's house becomes the source of happiness. With his children and grandchildren, and with happiness and dominion,¹ he becomes a bestower of gifts and charities, a protector of his dependants, and his fame goes abroad (177-178). After having drawn the Yantra and placed it on a jewelled altar² in front of the worshipper, and having worshipped the Devatās of the Pītha³ according to the rules of Pītha-nyāsa, the principal Devī⁴ should be adored in the pericarp of the Lotus⁵ (179).

⁴ Vide ante, note under v. 16.

I will now speak of the placing of the jar⁶ and the formation of the circle of worship⁷ by the mere institution of which the Devatā⁸ is well pleased, the Mantra⁹ becomes fruitful, and the wishes⁹ of the worshipper are accomplished (180). The jar is called Kalasha, because

⁴ Mūla-Devatā : here Ādyā Shakti or Kālī.

⁵ i.e., the lotus in the Yantra.

⁹ Mantra-siddhi and Ichchhā-siddhi,

Vishvakarmā¹ made it from the different parts² of each of the Devatās (181).

It should be thirty-six fingers breadth (in circumference) in its widest part, and sixteen in height. The neck should be four fingers breadth, the mouth six fingers, and the bottom five fingers breadth. This is the rule for the design of the Kalasha (182). It should be made either of gold, silver, copper, bell-metal, mud, stone, or glass, and without patch or blemish. In its making all miserliness³ should be avoided, since it is fashioned for the pleasure of the Devas (183). A Kalasha made of gold, one of silver, one of copper, and one of bell-metal give prosperity, emancipation, contentment, and nourishment respectively to the worshipper. One of crystal is good to produce Vashīkarana,⁴ and one of stone to produce Stambhana.⁵ A Kalasha made of mud is good for all purposes. Whatever it is made of it should be clean and of pleasing design (184, 185).

³ Vitta-shāthya = parsimony, that is, one who is able to afford a costly metal should not make it of a cheap material.

⁵ Stambhana is another of such powers, such as stopping forces of nature, making a person speechless, etc. The other powers are Māraṇa, Uchchātana, Vidveshana, Svastyayana (Shāntikriyā). Tarkālangkāra says that the defect of a stone jar is that wine kept therein in a short time loses its elating qualities in a considerable measure. Hence in some Tantras it is prohibited. Possibly the stone here spoken of is a variety free from this defect.

⁶ Brahma-randhra, i.e., a small circle like °. The Hexagon is a figure made of two equilateral triangles one with the apex upwards and the other downwards. Some Tantras speak of a triangle within the hexagon.

the circle a square (186). These figures should be drawn either with vermillion or Kula flower¹ or red sandal paste; the Devatā of the support should then be worshipped thereon by the (187)

MANTRA

Hrīng, salutation to the Shakti of the Support² (188). The support³ for the jar should be washed with the Mantra Namah, and placed on the Mandala, and the jar⁴ itself with the Mantra Phat, and then placed on the support (189).

Let the Sādhaka then fill the Kalasha with wine, uttering meanwhile the Mūla-mantra preceded by the letters of the alphabet—commencing with the letter Ksha and ending with A with the Bindu superimposed⁵ (190). The wise one realising in himself the presence of the Devī⁶ should worship the Mandalas of Fire, Sun, and Moon in the support, in the jar and in the wine⁷ in the manner already described (191). After decorating the jar with vermillion, red sandal paste, and a garland of crimson flowers,⁸ the worshipper should perform Panchīkarana⁹ (192).

³ The tripod (see ante).

⁴ Kalasha. This term, as well as Ghata, are used in the text for the Kalasha, which in the translation is employed throughout.

⁵ The Viloma Mātrikā followed by the Mūla-mantra Hrīng Shrīng Krīng Parameshvari Svāhā. Viloma Mātrikā is the Mātrikā (letters) uttered in a reversed order, beginning with Kshang and ending with Ang. Japa should be done of this when filling the jar with wine.

⁶ Devī-bhāva-parāyana—that is, the mind and body are full of the presence of the Devī.

⁸ Such as the Jabā Pushpa, the Tāntrika Shākta flower of the Devī.

⁹ Literally, mixing of five things, or the doing of five ceremonies. The ceremony is described in the next verse.

Strike the wine-jar with a wisp of Kusha grass, saying Phat; then, whilst uttering the Bija Hung, veil it by the Avagunthana Mudrā¹; next utter the Bija Hrīng, and look with unwinking eye upon the jar, then sprinkle the jar with the Mantra "Namah". Lastly, whilst reciting the Mūla-mantra, smell the jar three times:² this is the Panchīkarana ceremony³ (193).

Making obeisance to the jar, purify the wine⁴ therein by throwing red flowers into it, and say the following (194)

MANTRA

Om, O Devī Sudhā! The Supreme Brahman, One without a second⁵ is verily both gross⁶ and subtle.⁷ By That I destroy Thy sin of slaying a Brāhmana which attached to ³ Tarkālangkāra says that whatever is done in Pūjā has a meaning. The ritual significance of Panchīkarana is to make the wine in the jar the celestial nectar (Divyasudhā) which manifests Brahman-bliss. This Kāraṇa (wine or cause) is the Ajnāna which is the cause of the material world produced of the collectivity of the five subtle Bhūtas. The Sādhaka in doing Panchīkarana (making fivefold) of the five unmixed (Apanchikrita) Bhūtas first of all realises sound the property of Ākāsha by striking the jar. Then he limits or condenses Ākāsha by the veiling gesture (Avagunthana Mudrā) and mentally realise the sense of touch. Then by looking with winkless eyes he unites Tejas with the last and sees form. Thereafter by dropping a little water he realises taste. Lastly thinking of the earth-element he becomes aware of smell which is the property of Prithivī. By smelling this celestial nectar the Nādis of the Sādhaka are purified and then impurities are thrown out through Pīngalā to a distance.

² Gandham trirdadyāt, which literally means offer scent three times. The translation given in the text is that of Tarkālangkāra, who supports it by the observation that the practice amongst all the different communities (Sampradāya) of Tāntrika Sādhakas is to close the right nostril and to inhale the scent from the Kalasha three times by Īdā, and then to exhale it by Pīngalā to a place away from the jar.

⁷ Sūkshma.

Thee (the wine) by reason of the death of Kacha¹ (195). O Devī (Sudhā) Who hast Thy abode in the region of the Sun,² and Thy origin in the dwelling-place of the Lord of Ocean,³ Thou who art one with the Amā⁴ Bija, mayest Thou be freed from the curse of Shukra (196). O Devī! as the Pranava which is the seed of the Vedas is one with the Bliss of Brahman,⁵ may by that truth be destroyed Thy sin of slaying a Brāhmana (197)

MANTRA⁶

Hrīm :⁷ The Hangsa⁸ dwells in the pure sky.⁹

² The allusion is to the concealment of Amrita by the Devas in the Sūrya-mandala (Mahābhārata, Ādi Parva).

³ Varuna. As to the Churning of the Ocean, from which Amrita was produced, see Mahābhārata, Ādi Parva, chap. xviii. The place of Varuna is the ocean.

Hrīm Hangsah Shuchisad Vasur Antarikshasat

Nrisad Varasad Ritasad Vyomasad Abjā

Gojā Ritajā Adrijā Ritam Brihat.

Rigveda Samhitā Mandala 4, Adhyāya 4, Sūkta 40, Rik 5, Max Muller, 1st Ed., Vol. III, p. 195; and Yajurveda X, 24 and XII, 24. See also Kathopanishad, V. 2. As to the Mantra cf. Ait. Br., 420; Sh. Br., 5. 4-3, 22, 6, 7, 3, 11.

⁷ This is the Māyā Bija which Tantra prefixes to the Vedic Mantra. See Woodroffe's "Garland of Letters".

⁸ Shankara (Commentary on Kathopanishad) says that Hangsa is either Sūrya the solar deity or Paramātmā (of whom it is a form). Sūrya is Āditya so called, according to Sāyana, from Hanti (= Gachchhati) because he is in perpetual motion and also because he destroys Ahambhāva. Hangsa is the Ajapā Mantra said in breathing. By the Sun all life is maintained. Hangsah is So'ham reversed.

⁹ Shuchisat or dweller (as the Sun) in the sky (Shankara). By this its position in Svah is shown (Sāyana). Or is in the sun in the sky (Tarkālangkāra).

It is in the air and in the middle region.¹

It² is in the sacrificial³ and Gārhapatya⁴ and household⁵ fires.

It is honoured in the guest.⁶

It is in man,⁷ in the great and worshipful ones.⁸ It is in Rita,⁹ in the ether,¹⁰ in the waterborn,¹¹ in the earthborn.¹²

¹ Vasur Antarikshasat. Its light pervades the airs. Sāyana says it is Vasu because it dwells (Vas) everywhere as does the all-pervading air (Vāyu) in the middle region, the Bhuvah or Antarisha. Shankara says Vasu is He who maintains the beings of the world and Antarikshasat—who (in the form of Vāyu, (air) dwells in the space mid Heaven (Svah) and Earth (Bhū).

² Hotā Vedisat Atithir Duronasat. The Mantra now goes on to show that the Supreme is not only in Heaven (Svah) and the mid-region between Heaven and Earth (Antariksha) but also on Earth (Bhū).

³ Hotā is as Shankara says fire or who dwells in the senses and experiences sounds and so forth.

⁴ The Gārhapatyāgni is kept constantly burning by a class of Brāhmanas. According to Shankara, Vedisat=who is on the altar which is the Prithivī.

⁶ Atithir is a guest so called because he does not stay longer than one Tithi that is fifteenth part of the lunar half month. Shankara says it means here Somarasa.

⁸ Varasat. Shankara says the reference is here made to Brahmā and other Devas. Tarkālangkāra interprets Varasat as the Sūrya Mandala or solar circle.

⁹ Ritasat. The term Rita means the Brahman, Truth (Satya) or Yajna (Sacrifice). That which is there is Ritasat (Sāyana). Shankara says Ritasat=He who is in Yajna or in Veda which is Satyasvarūpa.

¹⁰ Vyomasat (Shankara).

¹¹ Abjā. Shankara says that this means who is in waterborn things such as shellfish and other aquatic animals. Tarkālangkāra says that the reference is made to the submarine fire Vadavāgni or to the Vidyudagni in water.

¹² Gojā such as (Shankara says) rice and other things grown on earth. Tarkālangkāra says the fire which is in the stones and the like.

It is seen in *Rita*¹ who rises from the eastern mountain² who is Rita.³

The great⁴ all-pervading Cause of all.

Exchange the vowel of the Varuna Bīja⁵ for each of the long vowels,⁶ then say "Salutation to the Devī Ambrosia, who is freed from the curse of Brahmā."⁷ By the repetition of the entire Mantra seven times, the curse of Brahmā is removed (198-199). Substituting in their order

² Adriajā: That is Udayāchala from behind which the sun is said to rise. It sets behind Astāchala. He as Āditya arises therefrom and goes thereto (Tarkālangkāra). According to Shankara this means "Who is the rivers which have their source in the mountains."

³ Ritam = Satyam or that which the Vedas prove (Shankara). It is said by Sāyana to be the Brahmatattva or great consciousness (Mahānubhava). Tarkālangkāra says it is known as the Truth Reality which is everywhere and which can neither be hidden nor limited. It is the all-pervading Brahmatattva whose Sattā or Being is everywhere seen (Upalabdha).

⁴ Brihat as He is the Cause of all (Sarva-kāraṇa) according to Shankara. Brihat comes from the root Brih or Brinh which is the root of the word Brahman. The object of the Mantra is to establish the unity of the Paramātmā without attributes, the Saguna Īśvara and of all things which have proceeded from Him. As used here it indicates the unity of the Devī Sudhā (wine) with all the Devatās mentioned in the Mandala. Wine is Tārā Devī in liquid form (Dravamayī). The Devī who thus manifests is displayed in all things in Īśhwari the sovereign Lady the Cause and Ruler of all and in her Svarūpa as Chinmayī one with the Supreme Shiva or Paramātmā.

⁵ That is, Vang Bīja of the Lord of Waters.

⁷ Brahma-shāpa-vimochitāyai Sudhā-devyai Namaḥ. Brahmā, under the influence of liquor, lusted after his own daughter, and therefore cursed it, saying that he that should drink it was as guilty as one who killed a Brāhmana, and would go to hell. "Non-Tāntrikas say that, even when the curses are removed, wine should not be drunk, to which the Tāntrikas reply that Pashus are ignorant (Ajnāni), and that if their views were correct then no one should make Japa of the Gāyatrī, which also is afflicted with three curses. Yet, after the curses are removed, worshippers make Japa of the Gāyatrī" ("Pancha-tattva-Vichāra," by Nilamani Mukhyopādhyāya, Calcutta, p. 19).

⁵ The Mantra is thus : Krāṅ, Krīṅ, Krūṅ, Kraiṅ, Krauṅ, Krah Sudhā-Krishna-shāpang mochayāmṛitam srāvaya srāvaya : Svāhā.

⁶ Shiva and His Shakti are so called when the worshippers are in a joyful mood. The Tantrāntara gives the following meditations on Ānanda Bhairava and Ānanda Bhairavī. The former is lustrous like ten million suns and cool like ten million moons. The Deva has five faces with three eyes in each and eighteen arms. He is on a Brahma-padma in the middle of the ocean of nectar. His throat is blue. He is decked with ornaments and seated on a bull. He holds a skull and Khatvāṅga (The club surmounted by the skull ; a piece of wood half burnt from a funeral pyre is also so called) and makes a music with bell and drum (Damaru). He holds the noose (Pāsha), goad (Angkusha), mace (Gadā), spear (Mushala), sword (Khadga), shield (Khetaka), axe (Pattisha), hammer (Mudgara), trident (Shūla) and staff (Danda). He holds a Vajra (Thunderbolt) and a severed head and makes the Mudrā (gesture) of granting boons and dispelling fear.

Ānandabhairavī, the Devī Sudhā, should be meditated upon as lustrous as a hundred thousand million moons white as snow and the Kunda flower. She has five faces with three eyes in each and eighteen arms. She is eager to give joy to all, She is large-eyed smiling and seated in front of the Devadevesha. The rest is as above.

MANTRA

“ Ha - Sa - Ksha - Ma - La - Va - Ra - Yūṅ : To Ananda-Bhairava : ¹ Vashat ” (202).

In the worship of the Ananda-Bhairavi the Mantra is the same, except that its face is reversed, and in place of the Ear the left Eye should be placed, and then should be said “ Sa - Ha - Ksha - Ma - La - Va - Ra - Yīṅ : To the Sudhā Devī : Vashat ” ² (203).

Then, meditating upon the union of the Deva and Devī ³ in the wine, and thinking that the same is filled with the ambrosia of such union, Japa should be made over it of the Mūla-mantra twelve times (204). Then, considering the wine to be the Devatā, ⁴ handfuls of flowers should be offered with Japa of the Mūla-Mantra. Lights and incense-sticks should be waved before it to the accompaniment of the ringing of a bell ⁵ (205). Wine should be always thus purified in all ceremonies, whether Pūjā ⁶ of the Devatā, Vrata, ⁷ Homa, ⁸ marriage, or other festivals (206).

MANTRAS AND RITES

SHRI DEVĪ said :

As Thou hast kindness for Me, pray tell Me, O Lord ! more particularly about the Pancha-tattva¹ and the other observances of which Thou hast spoken (1).

Shrī Sadāshiva said :

There are three kinds of wine which are excellent—namely, that which is made from molasses,² rice,³ or the Madhūka flower.⁴ There are also various other kinds

³ Paishtī.

made from the juice of the palmyra and date tree, and known by various names according to their substance and place of production. They are all equally appropriate in the worship of the Devatā (2, 3).

Howsoever it may have been produced, and by whomsoever it is brought, the wine, when purified, gives to the worshipper all Siddhi. There are no distinctions of caste in the taking of wine so sanctified¹ (4). Meat, again, is of three kinds, that of animals of the waters, of the earth, and of the sky. From wheresoever it may be brought and by whomsoever it may have been killed, it gives without doubt, pleasure to the Devatās (5). The wish of the Sādhaka determines what should be offered to the Devatās.² Whatsoever he himself likes, the offering of that conduces to his well-being (6). Only male animals should be killed in sacrifice.³ It is the command of

It is on this account that it is helpful in Sādhana of the Brahman who is Sachchidānanda and it is on this account that the knower of Brahman looks upon it as sacred and worships it.

¹ On this verse Tarkālangkāra says that in one of the Tantras it has been said that shortly after the churning of the ocean the inexhaustible jar of Amṛita or nectar was placed in the hands of Ganesha. Whenever any of the Devatās wanted to drink the nectar, Ganesha would pour it out for him. In this way he got no leisure. On one occasion Ganesha became very tired and some impurity (Mala) came out of his trunk, out of that a man came. Because he came out of the trunk (Shunda) he was called a Shaundika or brewer. Ganesha placed the jar of nectar in the hands of this man and granted him the following boon, viz., that as the Devatās churned the ocean after throwing into it drugs and other substances and thus produced nectar so the brewer and his descendants would put into water different things and churning it would produce nectar which they were to give to other people but never drink it themselves. In the drinking of this no one should make any distinction of caste. If the brewer of the present day make wine from the prescribed articles according to the method laid down in the Tantras then man becomes long lived and free of ailments. Old men by the use of wine become young again.

i.e., The wish of the Sādhaka is the main factor in determining what should be offered to the Devatā.

³ Vali-dāna. As to male animals, see Sh. Br., XI, 7, 1, 3,

Shambhu that female animals should not be slain (7). There are three superior kinds of Fish—namely, Shāla, Pāthina,¹ and Rohita.² Those which are without bones are of middle quality, whilst those which are full of bones are of inferior quality. The latter may, however, if well fried, be offered to the Devī (7-8).

There are also three kinds of parched food, superior, middle, and inferior. The excellent and pleasing kind is that made from Shāli rice,³ white as a moonbeam, or from barley or wheat, and which has been fried in clarified butter.⁴ The middling variety is made of fried paddy and the like. Other kinds of fried grain are inferior (9-10). Meat, fish, and parched food, fruits and roots, or anything else offered to the Devatā along with wine, are called Shuddhi⁵ (11). O Devī! the offering of wine without Shuddhi, as also Pūja and Tarpana (without Shuddhi), become fruitless, and the Devatā is not propitiated (12). The drinking of wine without Shuddhi is like the swallowing of poison. The disciple is ever ailing, and lives for a short time and dies⁶ (13). O Great Devī! when the weakness of the Kali Age becomes great, one's own Shakti or wife should alone be known as the fifth Tattva, This is devoid of all defect⁷ (14). O Beloved of My Life! in

³ A variety of rice of very small grain and very white.

⁵ The meat, fish, grain, etc., are called Shuddhi. Shuddhi is also commonly used for anything which is eaten to take away the taste after drinking wine, such as salt or pān-leaf. Milk and water cannot be used as Shuddhi. As to the effect of drinking without Shuddhi, see verse 13.

⁷ Shesha-tattvang Maheshāni ! nirvīrye prabale Kalau.

my injunctions relating to this (the last Tattva) I have spoken of Svayambhu and other kinds of flower.¹ As substitutes for them, however, I enjoin red sandal paste (15). Neither the Tattvas nor flowers, leaves, and fruits should be offered to the Mahādevī unless purified. The man who offers them without purification goes to hell (16).

The Shri-pātra² should be placed in the company of one's own virtuous Shakti;³ she should be sprinkled with the purified wine⁴ or water from the common offering⁵ (17). (For the sprinkling of the Shakti use the)— the Sādhārānī (one who is common). This Tantra (according to the present text) discountenances Shaktis of the second and third kind, and ordains that the Shakti should be the wife of the Sādhaka (worshipper). With her the fifth Tattva or coition (maithuna) should be done.

other Shaktis who are present should be worshipped and not enjoyed¹ (20).

The worshipper should then, in the space between himself and the Yantra, draw a triangle with the Māyā Bija² in its centre, and outside the triangle and in the order here stated, a circle, a hexagon, and a square (21). The excellent disciple should then worship in the four corners of the square the Pithas, Kāma-rūpa,³ Pūrṇa-shaila Jālandhara, Uddīyāna, with the Mantras formed of their respective names, preceded by Bījas formed by the first letter of their respective names, and followed by Namah⁴ (22).

² i.e., Hṛīṅ.

³ These Pithas are the correspondences in the outer world (Bāhyatah) of the four Shāktik manifestations of the general Vimarsha Shakti called Ambikā, Vāmā, Jyeshthā, Raudrī. The first denotes the "seeing" of the Divine Mother of Her own forthcoming (Sphurana) when She is Parā Vāk. Vāmā is the state when she is outward turned (Unmukhī) Shakti being then in its seed or Bija state. She is then Ichchhā Shakti and pashyantī in which she is in the form of a goad (Angkusha). Jyeshthā is Jñāna Shakti, Madhyamā Vāk, in the form of a straight line (Rijurekhā). Raudrī is Kriyā Shakti and Vaikhari Vāk in the form of Shṛīṅgāta (Pyramidal and triangular) and as Saṁhāra Shakti is in the form of Bindu in the return movement (Pralaya). These Pithas are the Kanda, Pada, Rūpa and Rūpātita respectively. The first is the root of the Sushumnā Nāḍī or Mūlādhāra. Pada is Haṅsa in Anāhata chakra the seat of Jīva. Rūpa is Bindu in Ajnā Chakra, Rūpātita is Nishkala in the Brahmrandhra. The outer subtle manifestations are here the inner Chakras of the body. The gross Chakras are the holy places, named in the Text, great seats of Shākta worship.

See Nityāśodhashikārṇava, vi—36 to 42 verses and Commentary of Bhāskararāya. This part of the Nityā is also known as Yoginihṛīdaya. (Ānandāshrama Series of Sanskrit Texts, vol. 56, pp. 209-212.)

⁴ Thus, Pūṅ Pūrṇa-shailāya Pithāya Namah, Ung Uddīyānāya Pithāya Namah, Jāṅg Jālandharāya Pithāya Namah, Kāṅg Kāma-rūpāya Pithāya Namah. These Pithas are in the Sādhaka's own body and are Shaktis and forms of Shakti. See Nityāśodhashikārṇava, Ch. VI, vv. 37-42.

Then the six parts of the body should be worshipped in the six corners of the hexagon.¹ Then worship the triangle,² with the Mūla-Mantra, and then the Shakti of the Support with the Māyā Bija and Namah³ (23). Wash the receptacle with the Mantra Namah, and then place it (as in the case of the jar) on the Mandala, and worship in it the ten Kalās of Vahni with the first letters of their respective names as Bijas (24). These Kalās,⁴ which are ten in number—viz., Dhūmrā, Archih, Jvalinī, Sūkshmā, Jvālīnī, Vishphulīnginī, Sushrī, Surūpā, Kapilā, Havya-kavya-vahā⁵—should be uttered in the Dative singular, and followed by the Mantra Namah (25-26).

Then worship the region⁶ of Vahni⁷ (in the Ādhārā or receptacle) with the following ¹ The Mantra which is used is as follows: Hrāṅg Hridayāya (to the heart) Namah, Hrīṅg Shirase (to the head) Svāhā, Hrūṅg Shikhāyai (to the crown lock on the head) Vashat, Hraṅg Kavachāya (to the upper body) Hung, Hraṅg Netra-trayāya (to the three eyes) Vaushat, Hrah Kara-tala-prishthābhyāṅ (to the back and palm of the hands) Phat. Kavacha means literally armour, but the action of the worshipper is to cover the arms over the chest, touching the shoulders with the hands. It is thus translated "upper body".

Filling the rest of the cup with water taken from the special offering, he should worship with a well-controlled mind the sixteen digits⁷ of the Moon, saying as Bijas each of the sixteen vowels before each of the sixteen digits spoken in the dative singular, followed by the Mantra Namah (32).

⁶ The first word of the next verse.

⁷ Image of Kula: Brahma-rūpinī (cf. Kula=Sanātana Brahman).

⁸ Svachchhanda-Sphuranām—The words are difficult to translate but the sense seems as stated. Svachchhanda=of one's own will independently, spontaneous, natural; Sphurana=bursting forth and joy. That is the joy or thrill which is a form of Brahman bliss.

Svachchhandasphuranām atra nidhehi kularūpinī.

¹⁰ A name of Kāma=God of Love. That is the Svarūpa of the nectar which is in Kāma. Kāma is here the cosmic Kāma the Will or Desire which produced the universe with all its desires. It is nectar for Nectar is the source of life and joy accompanies it. This cosmic Will is in the individual sexual desire from which proceeds individual life. The interpretation adopted is that of Hariharānanda Bhārati. Tarkālangkāra's runs as follows: Although this liquid substance is for those who have desire do Thou yet place in it the nectar which is Brahman Bliss.

¹¹ Amrita=here Brahmānanda (Bhārati).

Anaṁgasthāmritākāre shuddhajñānakalevare

Amritatvaṁ nidhehyasmin vastuni klīnnarūpinī.

O Thou, who art That!¹ do Thou make² this Arghya one in substance with That, and having become the Kulamrita,³ manifest in me⁴ (40).

Bring into this great cup, which is full of wine, the essence of ambrosia produced from the essence of all that is in this world with all its differing kinds of taste⁵ (41).

I offer as oblation into the Fire of the Supreme Self (Parāhantāmaye) the excellent nectar of Thisness (Idantā)⁶

⁴ i.e., Bring me joy.

⁶ Ahantāpātra-bharitam idantāparamāmritam :

Parāhantāmaye vahnau homa-svikāra-lakṣhanam.

Aham = I. Ahantā = "I-ness" (Ahangkāra). Idam = this. Idantā = Thisness. These two as duality are offered to the one supreme Self beyond "I" and "This". See as to Idantā, Taitt.-Up. Cf. Jñānārṇava Tantra, XXI, v. 25.

A is the first and Ha the last letter of the alphabet, Ma (M) being the usual terminal; Aham then represents all the letters of the alphabet which is the manifested Shabda Brahman. Aham = Jivātmā; Parāham = Brahman. So it is said Tato'hamnāma abhavat. (Br.-Up., 1, 4, 1, 55, 4). When a man is asked "who are you?" (Kastvam) he replies "it is I" (Aham) and then gives his name. When he says Aham or I he affirms that he is Brahman. He refers to his individual self when he gives his name. "This" arises when the Ātmā as "I" posits itself over against it. Idantā = universe which is in the Aham and yet appears separate from it. Parāhantā = the Supreme "I-ness" as Paramātmā. By this Mantra the Sādhaka endeavours to realise the oneness of the individual self (Ahantā) with the Supreme Self (Parāhantā). The joy (Ānanda) which is in the wine is a form of the supreme Bliss (Paramānanda) of which it is a manifestation.

with which the cup of I-ness is filled. (Ahantāpātra-bharitam).

Having thus consecrated the wine with the Mantra, think of the union ¹ in it of Shiva and Shivā ² and worship it by waving lights and burning incense-sticks before it ³ (43).

This is the consecration of the Shri-pātra ⁴ in Kaulika worship. Without such purification the disciple is guilty of sin, and the worship is fruitless ⁵ (44). The wise one should then, according to the rules prescribed for the placing of the common offering, ⁶ place between the jar and the Shri-pātra, the Guru-pātra, the Bhoga-pātra, the Shakti-pātra, the Yoginī-pātra, the Vira-pātra, the Vali-pātra, the Pādyā-pātra and the Āchmaniya-pātra ⁷ making nine cups in all (45-46).

Then, filling the cups three-quarters full of wine from the jar, a morsel of Shuddhi ⁸ of the size of a pea should be placed in each of them (47). Then, holding the cup between the thumb and the fourth finger of the left hand, taking ⁹ the morsel of Shuddhi ⁸ in the right hand, and making the Tattva-mudrā, Tarpana should be done. This is the practice which has been enjoined (48). Taking an excellent drop of wine from the Shrīpātra and a piece¹ of Shuddhi,² Tarpana³ should be made to the Deva Ānanda-Bhairava and the Devī Ānanda-Bhairavi⁴ (49).

Then, with the wine in the Guru-pātra, should be offered oblations to the line of Gurus:⁵ in the first place to the Sādhaka's own Guru seated together with his wife on the lotus of a thousand petals, and then in the same way to the other three Gurus who are the Parama Guru, the Parāpara Guru, the Parameshthi Guru successively.⁶ In offering oblations to the four Gurus, the Vāgbhava Bija⁷ should first be pronounced, followed in each case by the name of each of the four Gurus⁸ (50). Then, with wine from the Bhoga-pātra, the worshipper should, in the lotus of his heart, offer oblations to the Ādyā-Kālī. In this oblation Her own ² See p. 145, note 5.

³ Oblation. Made for the satisfaction of the Devatās or Pitris, the word being derived from Trip = to please or gratify.

⁵ Guru-santati. The Parama Guru is the Guru's own Guru; Parāpara Guru is the Guru of the latter; Parameshthi Guru is the Guru of the last.

⁷ i.e., Aing.

Bija¹ should precede, and Svāhā should follow Her name.² This should be done thrice (51).

Next, with wine taken from the Shakti-pātra, oblation should be similarly offered to the Aṅga Devatās and the Āvarana Devatās³ of the Devī (52). Then, with the wine in the Yoginī-pātra, oblation should be offered to the Ādyā-Kālikā carrying all her weapons and with all Her followers.

Then should follow the sacrifice to the Vatukas⁴ (53). The wise Sādhaka should draw on his left an ordinary rectangular figure, and after worshipping it, place therein food with wine, meat, and other things (54). With the Bijas of Vāk, Māyā, Kamalā,⁵ prefixed to the Mantra :

² Kṛīṅg Ādyāṅg Kāling tarpayāmi Svāhā. Bhāratī says that the Mantra for the Tarpana of the Devī is—Hṛīṅg, Shrīṅg, Kṛīṅg, Parameshvari Svāhā Ādyāṅg Kāling tarpayāmi Svāhā.

⁴ Between the Tarpana to the Devī, as in verse 53, and before the sacrifice to Vatuka, the practice is to perform—(1) Tattva-shuddhi, which is done by seven Mantras, in each of which the following pentads: Prāṇa, Apāṇa, Vyāṇa, Udāna, Samāna-Prithivī, Ap, Tejas, Vāyu, Ākāsha—Prakṛiti, Ahankāra, Buddhi, Manas, Shrotra—Tvak, Chakṣhu, Jihvā, Ghrāṇa, Vachas—Pāṇi, Pāda, Pāyu, Upastha, Shabda-Sparsha, Rasa, Rūpa, Gandha, Ākāsha—Vāyu, Tejas, Salila, Bhūmi, Ātmā are mentioned by name, with the prayer that the same may be purified, and a declaration by the worshipper that he is the Jyotiḥ (Light) and free from sins ; (Jyotiḥ aham virajā vipāpmā) and (2) Tattva-svikāra ; and (3) Bindu-Svikāra. See Bhakta's edition, at p. 226. These rites are described at p. 227. Verse 54 describes the mode of sacrifice.

⁶ i.e., Bija of Vatuka.

⁷ Aṅg, Hṛīṅg, Shrīṅg, Vang, Vatukāya Namaḥ.

Summarising Tarkālangkāra's Commentary : in Tattva-Svikāra a triangle is drawn on the palm of the right hand. A piece of Shuddhi of the size of a pea is placed upon it. This is taken up with thumb and Vatuka should be worshipped in the East of the rectangle, and then offering should be made to him (55).

Then, with the

MANTRA

offering should be made to the Yoginīs,¹ on the South (56), and then to Kshetra-pāla² on the West of the rectangle, with the preceded by the letter Ksha, to which in succession the six middle finger of left hand. Uttering the Mūla-mantra together with the words Shiva, Shakti, Sadāshiva, Ishvara, Vidyā, Kalā, the Sādhaka says “I purify the gross body with Ātmā-Tattva” (that is, the Tattvas of the 36 Tattvas from Prakṛiti to Prithivī). Then he consumes the Shuddhi. He next takes up another piece of Shuddhi and uttering the Mūla-mantra together with the words Māyā, Niyati, Shuddha-vidyā, Rāga, Puruṣa says “I purify the subtle body of Vidyā-Tattva” (that is, the Tattvas from Māyā to Puruṣa of the 36 Tattvas). He consumes the Shuddhi. Then he takes a third piece of Shuddhi and saying the Mantra as before with the words commencing with Prakṛiti and ending with Bhūmi says “With the Shiva Tattva (i.e., the Tattvas of the 36 commencing with Shiva Tattva and ending with Sadvidyā Tattva) I purify my paradeha” (that is, causal body). Then saying the Mūla-mantra and all the 36 Tattvas the vowels and consonants says “I purify the Jīva the Āshraya of which (in which) are the Tattvas with all the Tattvas.”

In Bindu Svīkāra, the Sādhaka realises that Kundalinī extends from the Mūlādhāra to the tip of the tongue and so meditating on Her becomes filled with Her presence (Tanmayo bhavet : that is, becomes Her). Then taking the Bindu from the Bhogapātra uttering meanwhile the appropriate Mantra he should say “The liquid burns (Jvalati) I am the Light (Jyotiḥ). The Light is flaming (Jyotiḥ jvalati). Brahma am I (Brahmāhamasmi) He I am (So’ham) I am I (Aham eva aham). I make offering (Juhomi) Svāhā. Then taking the Bindu he says “I will speak of the Pratyakṣa Brahma, of Rītam Satyam. May He protect me. May he protect the speaker. May he protect me, May he protect the speaker. Svāhā.” Then having taken Bindu as before he says: Om Chhandasām rishayo yachchhando hyamritā bhūvasā mandro medhayā sprinotu bhuvi sruvam menopāyatu Svāhā.

long vowels are added with the Bindu¹ (57). Following this, offering should be made to Gana-pati on the North, with the Mantra formed by adding to the letter Ga the six long vowels in succession with the Vindu thereon, followed by the name of Ganesha in the dative singular, and ending with Svāhā.² Lastly, offering should be made inside the rectangle to all Bhūtas,³ according to proper form (58-59).

Uttering "Hrīṅ, Shrīṅ, Sarva-vighna-kribdhyah," add "Sarva-bhūtebhyah," and then "Hūṅ Phat Svāhā"; this is how the Mantra is formed⁴ (60). Then an offering to Shivā⁵ should be made in manner ordained with the following

MANTRA

Om, O Devī! O Shivā, O Exalted One, Thou art in the form of the final Conflagration⁶ at the Dissolution of things, deign to accept this sacrifice, and to reveal clearly to me the good and evil which I am to receive. Hrīṅ, ¹ The Mantra is—Kshāṅg, Kshīṅg, Kshūṅg, Kshaing, Kshaung, Kshah Kshetra-pālāya Namah. The offering to Vatuka consists of food with wine.

² i.e., Gāṅg, Gīṅg, Gūṅg, Gaing, Gaung, Gah Gana-pataye Svāhā.

⁵ This is Shivāvali or offering to the jackal. The word means a jackal, and in the commentary of Bhārati the word is said here to be the equivalent of Phet-kārikā (=Howling), which means a jackal. There is a well-known Tantra of this name. The jackal accompanies the Devī, and feasts on the leavings. It is a Tāntrika usage to feed female jackals at and after midnight. The jackal feeds on carcasses and frequents cremation grounds and hence is emblematic of final dissolution, O Holy One ! I have now described to Thee the mode of formation of the circle of worship ¹ (and the placing of the cups ² and other rites) (61-62). Then, making with the two hands the Kachchhapa-Mudrā, ³ let the Sādhaka take up with his hands a beautiful flower scented with sandal, fragrant aloes, and saffron and holding it against his heart, let him meditate upon the most supreme Ādyā ⁴ in the lotus of his heart (63-64).

The Sādhaka should next lead the Ādyā Kālī (in the heart) along the path ⁵ which leads to Brahman and which is within the Sushumnā Nāḍī ⁶ to the great lotus of a thousand petals ⁷ and there make Her joyful ⁸ (by Her union with Her Lord). Then bringing Her forth through his nostrils (as if another Ādyā Kālī ⁹ emanates from Her) as light from light let the Sādhaka place Her on the flower ¹⁰

² The Shrī-pātra and other Pātras.

(which is in his hand). The Sādhaka versed in the Mantra with firm faith should then place the flower¹ on the Yantra,² and with folded hands pray with all devotion to his *Ishta-devatā*³ thus (65-66)

MANTRA

O Queen of the Devas ! Thou who art easily attained by devotion.⁴ Remain here, I pray Thee, with all Thy following, the while I worship Thee (67).

Kṛīṅg, O Ādyā Devī Kālikā ! come here⁵ with all Thy following, come here, stay here, stay here (68) ; place Thyself here, and be Thou detained here. Accept my worship (69).

Having thus invoked (the Devī) into the Yantra,⁶ the Life⁷ of the Devī should be infused therein by the following Pratishthā Mantra (70)

MANTRA

Āṅg, Hṛīṅg, Kṛōṅg, Shrīṅg, Svāhā : May the Life⁸ of this *Devatā*⁹ be here : Āṅg, Hṛīṅg, Kṛōṅg, Shrīṅg, Svāhā :

⁸ Prānāh-Life. Life presupposes the presence in the body of the five vital airs, namely, Prāna, Apāna, Samāna, Udāna, and Vyāna, ⁹ i.e., Ādyā Kālī.

Having recited the above three times, and having in due form placed the Life⁴ (of the Devī) in the Yantra⁵ with the Lelihāna⁶ Mudrā, with folded palms, he (the worshipper) should say (75)

MANTRA

O Ādyā Kālī ! hast Thou had a good journey ? Is this coming pleasing to Thee ? O Parameshvari ! mayest Thou be seated on this seat⁷ (76) ?

Then, for purification of the Devatā whilst repeating the Mūla-Mantra, the Sadhaka should sprinkle thrice the water of the special oblation⁸ over the Devī, and next make ⁶ Literally, showing the Lelihāna-Mudra. Lelihāna is derived from the root Liha=to lap, to lick. It is also a name of Shivā. Lelihāna-Mudrā is of two kinds. In the Dakṣiṇā-mūrti-Samhitā it is described to be as follows: Hold the index, middle, and ring finger straight downward; hold the little finger out straight. The thumb should touch the root of the ring finger. Bhāratī refers to the Dakṣiṇā-mūrti-Samhitā. The other kind is as follows: The two closed fists are placed near the two ears, the mouth is opened wide, and the tongue protruded and moved about. In the notes in the Edition of Bhakta it is said by Tarkālangkāra that it is the practice among worshippers to show Lelihāna-Mudrā, Khadga (sword) Mudrā, Munda (head) Mudrā, Vara-Mudrā, and Abhaya-Mudrā after Prāna-pratishthā.

Nyāsa¹ with the six limbs of the Devī. This ceremony is called Sakalikriti. Then Devī should be worshipped with all the sixteen offerings (77). These are: water for washing the feet, water for the offering, water for rinsing the mouth and for Her bath, garments, jewels, perfume, flowers, incense-sticks, lights, food, water for washing the mouth,² nectar,³ pān,⁴ water of oblation,⁵ and obeisance. In worship these sixteen offerings are needed (78-79).⁶

Uttering the Ādyā Bija,⁷ and then saying "This water is for washing the feet of the Ādyā: To the Devatā Namah," offer the water at the feet of the Devī. In making the offering of Arghya the same should be placed at the head of the Devī and the Mantra should end with Svāhā (80). Then the Sādhaka versed in Mantra should offer the water for rinsing the mouth⁸ to the mouth of the Devī and the Mantra should end with the word Svadhā and then the worshipper should offer to the lotus-mouth of the Devī, Madhu-parka⁹ with the Mantra ending with the word Svadhā. He should then offer water to rinse the mouth a second time with the Mantra ending with "Vang

he should ring the bell with his left hand, and, whilst so ringing it, he should take up the incense-stick with his right hand, and wave it up to the nostrils of the Devī.²

¹ Bael-leaves are also offered.

² Ārati is done by waving the light and incense-stick in an elliptical circle in front of the image, the top of the circle being under the nostrils or the eyes (see next verse).

Then, placing the incense-stick on Her left, he should raise and wave the light ten times before the Devī¹ from Her feet up to Her eyes (84-86). Then, taking the Cup and the Shuddhi² in his two hands, the Sādhaka should, whilst uttering the Mūla-Mantra, offer them to the centre³ of the Yantra (87).

The worshipper, after reciting the Mūla-Mantra,⁶ should say: "This cooked food, with all other necessities, I offer to the Ādyā-Kālī, my Ishta-devī." He should then say: "O Shivā! partake of this offering" (91). Then he should make the Devī eat the offering by means of the five Mudrās called Prāṇa, Apāṇa, Samāna, Vyāna, and *Udāna*⁷ (92).

Next, form with the left hand the *Naivedya*⁸-Mudrā, which is like a full-blown lotus. Then, whilst reciting the Mūla-Mantra, the jar filled with wine should be offered to the Devī for Her to drink. After that again offer of water for rinsing the mouth, and following that a threefold oblation should be made to the Devī with wine from the

The six parts of the body⁴ of the Devī should then be worshipped at the four corners of the Yantra,⁵ and in front and behind it in their order; and then the lines of Gurus should be worshipped⁶ (97). Then, with scent and flowers, ⁶ There are three lines of Guru—Divyaugha (Heavenly line). Siddhaugha (Siddha line), Mānavaugha (Human line or type). The Gurus of the first class are four—Mahādevānanda-nātha, Mahūkālānanda-nātha, Bhairavānanda-nātha, Vighneshvarānanda-nātha. There are five of the second, class, and ten of the third class. See Tantrarāja, Ch. I, where names of the Gurus of the Sādhakas of Tripurā are given. These three lines are Āvarana of the Ishtadevatā. When a Sādhaka does Sannyāsa then the Guru selects for him out of the names of his Ishtadevatā group (the Kaulāvadhūta need not do Sannyāsa) such name as he is qualified to receive. Some Gurus select a name from the eight Bhairavas and add ānandanātha to it.

³ Cf. Chapter v, verse 134.

Tarkālangkāra gives the Mantras for the Tarpana of the four Kulagurus. He says that in almost all Tantras the rule is to worship and do Tarpana of the fifteen Yoginīs and eight Shaktis. The former are Kālī, Kapālinī, Kullā, Kurukullā, Virodhiṇī, Viprachittā, Ugrā, Ugraprabhā, Dīptā, Nīlā Ghanā, Valākā, Mātrā, Mudrā, Mitā. The latter are Brāhmī, Nārayanī, Māheshvarī, Chāmundā, Kaumārī, Aparājitā, Vārāhī and Nārasimhī. The Mantra for worship is Ong Kālīdevyambā Shripādukāṅg puṇyāmi Namaḥ Svāhā and so with the rest, when saying the Mantra wine is taken from the Yoginīpātra and cup is held in the left hand with Tattva Mudrā. The Shuddhi is similarly held in the right hand. The two hands are united and Tarpana is done on an inverted triangle drawn on the Sādhaka's heart. The Tarpana of the other Yoginīs is done in the same way.

weapons¹ outside the Bhū-pura, and then Tarpana should be made to them (103).

After worshipping the Devī with all the offerings,² the Sādhaka should make sacrifice of an animal to Her (104). The ten approved beasts which may be sacrificed are—deer, goat, sheep, buffalo, hog, porcupine, hare, iguana,³ tortoise and rhinoceros (105); but other beasts may also be sacrificed if the worshipper so desires (106). The Sādhaka versed in the rules of sacrifice should select a beast free from disease and defect, and, placing it before the Devī, should sprinkle it with the water from the Visheshārghya,⁴ and by the Dhenu-Mudrā⁵ should make it into nectar.⁶

Let him then worship the goat (sheep, or whatever other animal is being sacrificed) with (the Mantra) "Namah⁷ to the goat, which is a beast," and with perfumes, flowers, vermillion, food, and water. Then he should whisper into the right ear of the beast the Gāyatrī Mantra, which severs the bond of its life as a beast ((107-108). The Pashu-Gāyatrī, which liberates a beast from its life of a beast,⁸

² Upachāra, that is offerings beginning with Pādya.

³ Godhā (in Bengali, Go-sarpa). Sometimes cocks and pigeons are sacrificed. According to the Nīla Tantra and Annadā-kalpa, a triangular Yantra representing the Yoni of the Devī is drawn on a mud platter, and the head of the bird is held in such a way that when severed the blood falls on the Yantra, and is then offered to Vatuka, the Yoginīs, etc.

⁷ Namah Chhāgāya pashave.

⁸ The sacrifice is as much for the benefit of the beast sacrificed as for the benefit of the sacrificer, since the beast, though sacrificed, is as follows: After the word "Pashupāshāya" say "Vidmahe," then, after the word "Vishvakarmane," say "Dhīmahī," and then "Tanno jīvaḥ prachodayāt".¹

MANTRA

Let us bring to mind the bonds of the life of a beast. Let us meditate upon the Creator of the Universe. May He liberate thee from out of this life (of a beast) (109-110).

Then, taking the sacrificial knife,² the excellent Sādhaka should worship it with the Bija "Hūṅg," and worship Vāgīshvarī and Brahmā at its end, Lakshmī and Nārāyaṇa³ at its middle, and Umā and Maheshvara⁴ at the handle (111-112). Then the sacrificial knife should be worshipped with the attains after death a higher state of existence. The sacrificer says to the beast the Gāyatrī of release.

² Khadga: A heavy knife with a straight blade and a curved end like a crescent. The cutting is done with the straight blade.

³ Vishnu—a compound word made of Nāra (water) and Ayana (abode)—"He Whose abode was in water in the beginning of the creation." The Supreme Lord first created water, on which He reposed Himself. It is said also that the Lord descended on earth as the Sages Nara and Nārāyaṇa, sons of Mūrti—daughter of Dakṣha and Dharmma (Shrīmad-bhāgavata, ii, 77). According to the Kālikā Purāṇa, Nārāyaṇa is the Simha portion of the Nara-simha Avatāra. Vāgīshvarī is a name of Sarasvatī.

⁴ Shiva—"the Great Lord."

Then, dedicating it with the Mahāvākya¹ he should with folded hands, say: "May this dedication to Thee be according to the ordained rites" (114).

Having thus offered the beast to the Devī, it should be placed on the ground² (115). The worshipper then, with devotion to the Devī, should sever the head of the beast with one sharp stroke. This may be done either by the worshipper himself or by his brother, brother's son, a friend,³ or a kinsman,⁴ but never by one who is inimical (116). The blood, when yet warm, should be offered to the Vatukas.⁵ Then⁶ the head with a light on it⁷ should be offered to the Devī with the following:

MANTRA

"Kṛing: This head with the light upon it I offer to the Devī: Namaḥ"⁸ (117).

¹ Mahā-vākya—ordinarily means a great Vedic saying pre-eminently "Tat tvam asi"; but here Vākya = Samkalpa, declaration, expression of purpose of rite, i.e., the following Mantra: Vishnurong tatsat adya (to-day; here the worshipper inserts the date, month, Paksha, or half of the lunar month, and the position of the Sun in the Zodiac) samastā-bhīpsita-padārtha-siddhi-kāmaḥ (desirous of obtaining success and the object of all desires; here is given the name and Gotra of the performer of the sacrifice) aham Ishṭa-devatāyai pashum imam sampradade (I give away to the Ishṭa devatā this beast). Hariharānanda Bhārati.

² Hitherto the animal has been standing, but before sacrifice it is raised and held before the Devī, and then placed on the ground.

³ Su-hrid—a well disposed person.

⁴ Sapinda—an agnate.

⁵ See p. 28, note 1. The Mantra for offering to the Vatukas is: Ong eshaḥ kavoshna-rudhira-valiḥ Vatukādibhyo Namaḥ.

⁷ After the head is severed, a light is placed on it between the horns.

⁸ Kṛing Eshaḥ sa-pradipa-shīrsha-valiḥ: Shṛīmadādyā-Kālikāyai Devyai Namaḥ.

This is the sacrificial rite of the Kaulikas¹ in Kaula worship. If it be not observed, the Devatā is never pleased (118). After this, Homa² should be performed. Listen, O Beloved One! to the rules which relate to it (119). The worshipper should, with sand, make on his right a square, each side of which is one cubit. Let him, then, while reciting the Mūla-Mantra,³ gaze at it, stroke it with a wisp of Kusha grass, uttering the Weapon-Bīja,⁴ and then sprinkle it with water to the accompaniment of the same Bīja (120).

Then, veiling it with the Kūr̥chcha⁵ Bīja, he should say: "Obeisance to the Sthandila of the Devī," and with this Mantra worship the square⁶ (121). Then, inside the square three lines should be drawn from East to West, and three lines from South to North, of the length of a Prādesha.⁷ When this has been done, the following Devatās, (whose names are hereinafter given) should be worshipped over these lines (122). Over the lines from West to East worship Mukunda,⁸ Īsha,⁹ and Purandara:¹⁰ over the lines from South to North, Brahmā, Vaivasvata,¹¹ and Indu¹² (123).

Then a triangle should be drawn within the square, and within the triangle the Bija Hsauh¹ should be written. Outside the triangle draw a hexagon, outside this a circle, and outside the circle a lotus with eight petals, and outside this a (square) Bhū-pura,² with four entrances; so should the wise one draw the excellent Yantra³ (124). Having worshipped, with the Mūla-Mantra⁴ and with offerings of handfuls of flowers, the space thus marked off⁵, and washed the articles⁶ for the Homa sacrifice with the Pranava,⁷ the intelligent one, should, after first uttering the Māyā Bija,⁸ worship in the pericarp of the lotus the Ādhāra-shakti⁹ and others,¹⁰ either individually

Piety, Knowledge, Dispassion, and Dominion¹ should be worshipped in the Agni, Īshāna, Vāyu, and Nairrita corners of the Yantra respectively,² and the negation of the qualities in the East, North, West, and South respectively, and in the centre Ananta and Padma³ (126-127). Then let him worship Sun with his twelve digits, and Moon with her sixteen digits,⁴ and, on the filament commencing from the East,⁵ worship Pītā, and then Shvetā, Arunā, Krishnā, Dhūmrā, Tibrā, Sphulīnginī, Ruchirā, in their order, and in the centre Jvalinī⁶ (128-129). In the worship of these *Pranava*⁷ should

In this way the seven Tongues² of Fire, Hiranya and others, should be worshipped (145-146). The worshipper should next adore the six Limbs of Vahni,³ uttering the word "of a thousand rays" in the dative singular, and also "obeisance to the heart".⁴

Then the wise one should worship the forms of Vahni (147). The eight⁵ forms are Jāta-veda and others (148). Then the eight Shaktis—namely, Brāhmī⁶ and others,

² i.e., Kālī, Karālī, Mano-javā, Su-lohitā, Sudhūmra-varnā, Ugrā or Sphulīnginī, Pradīptā. The Mantra is Ong Vahner Hiranyādi-sapta-jihvābhyo Namah.

³ Fire. The worshipper should do Hridayādi-shadaṅga-nyasa of Fire. The first Mantra applicable to the heart is given. The rest is understood (see next note).

⁶ i.e., Brāhmī, Nārāyaṇī, Māheshvarī, Chāmundā, Kaumārī, Aparā-jitā, Vārāhī, Nārasimhī (cf. Ashta-nāyikās, Ch. v, 134 and Ch. vi, 100). The Ashta-nāyikās are also Ashta-mātris, or eight Mothers, the eight Nidhis¹—namely, Padma and others, and the ten Dik-pālas²—namely, Indra and others should be worshipped (149).

After worshipping the Thunderbolt and other weapons,³ the sacrificer should take two blades of Kusha grass of the length of the space between his stretched-out thumb and forefinger,⁴ and place them lengthwise in the Ghee⁵ (150). He should meditate on the Nāḍī Idā⁶ in the left part of the Ghee, and on the Nāḍī Piṅgalā⁷ in the right portion, and on the Nāḍī Sushumnā⁸ in the centre, and with a well-controlled mind take Ghee from the right side, and offer it to the right eye of Fire⁹ with the following

² Regents of the Quarters—Indra, Agni, Yama, Nairrita, Varuna, Vāyu, Kuvera, Īshāna, Brahmā, and Vishnu (Ananta).

⁴ Prādesha.

⁷ See last note.

Then, saying Namaḥ, take the Ghee again from the right side, say first the Pranava,⁴ and then the

These, with Om and the Gāyatrī, are according to Manu, the principal part of the Vedas. By these, says Yājñavalkya, the Most High, the Source of all, should be worshipped. To remove doubt whether or not that cause, Homa sacrifice should be performed (155-156). Then he should offer oblations thrice with the

MANTRA

Om, O Vaishvānara, Jātaveda, come hither, come hither, O Red-eyed One! fulfil all my works Svāhā¹ (157).

Then, invoking the Ishta-Devatā with the proper Mantra into the Fire, let him worship Her and the Pītha-Devatā.² Twenty-five oblations should then be offered uttering the Mūla-Mantra with Svāhā at the end, and, contemplating on the union (or identity) of his own Self with Vahni and the Devī, eleven more oblations should be offered with the Mūla-Mantra. Oblations should next be made to the Anga-Devatās (158-159).

Then, with a mixture of Ghee, Tila-seed, honey, or with flowers and bael-leaves, or with (other prescribed) articles, oblation³ should be made for the attainment of one's desire. This oblation should be made according to one's ability not less than eight times, and with every attention and care (160-161). Then, reciting the Mūla-Mantra ending with Svāhā, complete oblation should be made (with a full ladle⁴) with fruits and leaves.⁵ Then the worshipper, with the signified by Om, exists separately from the effects, the text of the Vyāhṛiti is next read explaining that God, the sole Cause, eternally exists pervading the Universe (Rām Mohan Rāy, "Prescript for Worship by Means of the Gāyatrī," 1827).

³ This should also be with the Mūla-Mantra ending with Svāhā.

⁴ Literally, Pūrṇāhuti should be offered—i.e., complete oblation made with a full ladle, in testimony of the completion of the rite, ⁵ Leaf ; Tāmbūla or Pān-leaf (Bhārātī).

Samhāra-Mūdrā,¹ transferring the Devī from the Fire to the lotus of his heart (162), should say "Pardon me," and dismiss² Him who feeds on oblations.³ Then, distributing presents,⁴ the Mantrin should consider that the Homa has been duly performed (163). Then the excellent worshipper should place between the eyebrows what is left over of the oblations⁵ (164). This is the ordinance relating to Homa in all forms of Āgama⁶ worship.

After performance of Homa the worshipper should proceed to do Japa⁷ (165). Now, listen, O Queen of the Devas! to the mode of doing Japa by which the Vidyā⁸ is pleased. During Japa, the Devatā, the Guru, and the Mantra should be fully realised as one (166). The letters of the Mantra are the Devatā, and the Devatā is in the form of the Guru. He who worships them as one and the same, his is the highest success⁹ (167).

³ Hutāshana—i.e., Vahni, Fire.

⁴ Dakṣhinā. At the conclusion of Homa the officiating priest tells the assembled people to consider that everything has been faultlessly done. This is Achchhidrāvadhārana ("Kṛitam idam homakarmā-chchhidram astu").

⁸ i.e., the Devī Ādyā Shakti.

⁹ Siddhi. As the Mantra is made of letters, the Devatā has a celestial and the Guru a human body it may be asked, says Tarkālangkāra, where is their identity. He answers. Suppose in three houses three images of Jagaddhātṛi are worshipped. If I bow to the materials

The worshipper should then meditate upon his Guru as being in his head, the Devī in his heart, the Mūla-Mantra in the form of Tejas¹ on his tongue, and himself as identified² with the glory of all three (168). Japa should then be done of the Mūla-Mantra seven times adding to the beginning and at the end of it the Tāra.³ Having done this, Japa should be done of it with the Mātrikā letters placed before and after it⁴ (169). The wise worshipper should make Japa of the Māyā-Bija⁵ over his head ten times, and of the Pranava ten times over his mouth, and of the Māyā-Bija again seven times in the lotus of his heart, and then perform Prāṇāyāma⁶ (170).

of these images then obeisance to them is obeisance to three separate things. But I did not bow to the materials. I do not bow before life is placed in the image (Jīvan-yāsa). I bow to the one Jagaddhātṛī who is invoked into all the three images. The Guru again is not merely a human being. As the material of the image is the place of the Devatā so is the human form of the Guru. The Mantra is the body of the Devatā and is therefore the place (Adhishthāna) of the Devatā. Now eliminate the material of the image, the human form, and the letter form or Shabdabrahman of the Mantra and look for the object of worship. That is the one Brahman in the form of all three. The Guru, Devatā, and Mantra are one and the same Brahman.

² Mantra and Devatā are one: Mantrārṇā Devatā proktā, Devatā Gururūpinī. See Woodroffe's "Garland of Letters".

⁶ Breath control (See "Serpent Power"). Making Japa (as in verse 169) of the Mūla-Mantra, preceded and followed by the Pranava, is called Ashaucha-bhaṅga (=breaking or removing uncleanness), and making Japa as above with the Mātrikā Bija in the Mani-pūra is called Nirvāṇa. Making Japa over the head is Kullukā (see Chapter iii, 119); making Japa of the Pranava is Mukhashodhana (purification of the mouth); making Japa of Māyā-Bija in the heart is Setu (bridge). Meditating on the Mūlamantra with the Bija Hūm before and after it, in the Sahasrāra, in the Heart, in the Mūlādhāra and then again in the Sahasrāra is called Mantrachaitanya. To do Japa seven times of the Mūlamantra preceded and followed of the Bija Īṅ is Nidrābhaṅga.

Then, taking a rosary of coral, or other substance, let him worship it thus :

MANTRA

O Rosary,¹ O Rosary, O great Rosary, thou art the form of all Shaktis.² Thou art the repository of the fourfold blessings.³ Do thou therefore be the giver to me of all success.⁴

Having thus worshipped the rosary, and also made oblation⁵ to it thrice with wine taken from the Shri-pātra,⁶ accompanied by recitation of the Mūla-Mantra, the worshipper should, with well-controlled mind, make Japa one thousand and eight, or at least one hundred and eight times (171-173). Then, doing Prāṇāyāma, he should offer into the left lotus-hand of the Devī the fruit of his Japa,

To meditate on the Ishtadevatā from feet to head as composed of the letters of the Mantra is called Mantrārtha-bhāvanā.

To do Japa of the Bija Krīṅg or Ong Krīṅg in the heart or throat seven times is called Mahāsetu. To meditate on the Guru in the head and on the Ishtadevatā in the heart and to think of the Yonirūpā Bhagavati as pervading one from the head to the Mūlādhāra and the reverse and then doing Japa of the Bija Eng ten times is Yonimudrā. Doing Japa of the Mantra seven times formed by three repetitions of the Bija, three of the Pranava and three of the Bija again is Jihvā-shodhana. Prāṇayoga is done by Japa seven times of the Bija preceded and followed each time by Hrīṅg. Dīpanī is Japa of the Bija seven times preceded and followed in each case by the Pranava. Doing this seven times is Ashaucha-bhāṅga. There are other terms such as Mantra-shikhā which relate to Japa-rahasya.

O Great Queen!⁴ Thou Who protectest that which is most secret, deign to accept this my Japa. May by Thy grace, success attend my effort.

After this, let him with folded hands recite the Hymn⁵ and the Protective Mantra⁶ (174-176). Then the Sādhaka with the special oblation⁷ in his hand should go round the Devī, keeping Her to his right, say the following, and dedicate his Self⁸ to Her by offering Vilomārghya⁹ (177).

MANTRA

Om: Whatsoever ere this I have done through the vital airs, mind or body, whether when awake, in dream or dreamless sleep, whether by mind, word or deed, whether by my hands, feet, belly, or organ of generation, whatsoever I have thought or said—may all that be an offering to Brahman. Me and all that is mine I lay at the lotus-feet of the Ādyā Kālī. Ong Tat Sat¹. After saying this dedication should be made of the Self.² (178-181).

Then, with folded hands, let him supplicate his *Ishta-devatā*³ and reciting the Māyā-Mantra,⁴ say:

MANTRA

“O Primordial Kālikā! I have worshipped Thee with all my powers and devotion,” and then saying, “Forgive me,” let him bid the Devī go.⁵ Let him then with his hands formed into *Samhāra-Mudrā*⁶ take up a flower, smell it, and place it on his heart (182-183). A triangular figure well and clearly made should next be drawn in the North-East corner, and there he should worship the Devī *Nirmālya-vāsini*⁷ with the ⁸ Hring Nirmālya-vāsinyai Namah.

Then, distributing Naivedya¹ to Brahmā, Vishnu, and Shiva, and all the other Devas, the Sādhaka and his Shakti should partake of it (185). Then, placing his Shakti² to his left, on a separate seat or on the same seat with himself, he should take a pleasing cup (186). The cup should be so formed as to hold not more than five and not less than three Tolās (about two ounces) of wine, and may be of either gold or silver (187), or crystal, or made of the shell of a cocoa-nut. It should be kept on a support³ on the right side of the plate containing the Shuddhi⁴ (188).

Then either the gentle Sādhaka himself or his brother's sons should serve the sacred food⁵ and wine among the worshippers according to the order of their seniority⁶ (189). The purified wine should be served in the drinking-cups, and the purified food in plates kept for that purpose,

² The wife or other woman with whom the worship is done.

³ i.e., a tripod.

⁴ i.e., the Shuddhi-pātra, or dish containing the prepared meat, fish, etc., the cup being called Pāna-pātra.

⁶ Here, seniority=priority in initiation and not in years. The practice is, as given in the Kaulikārchana-dīpikā, as follows: The worshipper first serves his own Guru, then the Shakti of the Guru, then his own Shakti, then the elders on the right and the juniors on his left, and then he helps himself. In Kālikula, the Shakti of the Guru is served before the Guru. If in a Chakra a Sādhaka has a Mahāpātra (cup made of human skull) the wine should be put into that first.

Manu says that a man is not old because his hairs are grey. The Devas call him old who though young in years is possessed of wisdom (Jñāna). In ascertaining seniority the Pūrṇābhishikta is senior to the Shaktābhishikta. The Kramadīkshita is senior to the Pūrṇābhishikta. The Sāmraṇyābhishikta is senior to the Kramadīkshita. Mahāsāmraṇya is superior to Sāmraṇya, Sāmraṇyātīta is superior to Mahāsāmraṇya. The Pūrṇadīkshita is superior to the former. Of the Pūrṇadīkshita, he who is a Pūrṇayogī, who is fully adept in Mantra and Yoga is above all. The Guru of the particular Chakra is above the Pūrṇayogī. He is above all as representing the Ādiguru.

and then food and drink should be taken with such as are present at the time (190). First of all, some Shuddhi should be eaten to make a foundation¹ (for the wine which is to be drunk). Let the assembled worshippers then joyously take up each his own cup filled with excellent nectar.

Then let them take up each his own cup and meditate upon the Kula-Kundalinī,² who is the Chit,³ and who is spread from the Mūlādhāra⁴ lotus to the tip of the tongue, and, uttering the Mūla-Mantra,⁵ let each, after taking the others' permission, offer it as oblation to the mouth of the Kundalī⁶ (191-193). When the Shakti is of the household,⁷ the smelling of the wine is the equivalent of drinking it. Worshippers who are householders may drink five cups only (194).⁸ Excessive drinking prevents the attainment of success by Kula worshippers⁹ (195).

They may drink until the sight or the mind is not affected.¹ To drink beyond that is bestial² (196). How is it possible for a sinner who becomes a fool through drink and who maligns the Sādhaka of Shakti to say "I worship the Ādyā Kālīkā"³? (197). As touch⁴ cannot affect food and the like offered to Brahman, so there is no distinction of caste in food⁵ offered to Thee (198).

As I have directed, so should eating and drinking be done. After partaking of food offered⁶ to Thee, the hands should not be washed,⁷ but with a piece of cloth or a little water remove that which has adhered to the hands (199). Lastly, after placing a flower from the Nirmālya⁸ on his head, and wearing a Tilaka mark⁹ made from the remnants of the oblation on the Yantra between his eyebrows, the intelligent worshipper may roam the earth like a Deva (200).

CHAPTER VII

HYMN AND AMULET

PĀRVATĪ was pleased at hearing the revelation of the auspicious Mantra of the Ādyā Kālikā, which yields abundant blessings, is the only means of attaining to a knowledge of the Brahman and leads to prosperity and Liberation¹; as also at hearing of the morning rites, the rules relating to bathing, Sandhyā, the purification of Samvid, the methods of external and internal Nyāsa² and worship, the sacrifice of animals,³ Homa, the formation of the circle of worship,⁴ and the partaking of the holy food.⁵ Bowing low with modesty, the Devī questioned Shaṅkara (1-3).

Shrī Devī said :

O Sadāshiva!⁶ Lord⁷ and Benefactor of the Universe! Thou hast in Thy mercy spoken of the mode of worship of the Supreme Prakriti⁸ (4), which benefits all being, is

My mind, immersed in the ocean of the nectar of Thy word, has no desire to rise therefrom, but craves for more and more (6). O Deva, in the directions Thou hast given relating to the worship of the great Devī, Thou hast but hinted at² the hymn of praise and of the protective Mantra.³ Do Thou reveal them now (7).

Shrī Sadāshiva said :

Listen, then, O Devī, Who art the adored of the worlds, to this unsurpassed hymn, by the reciting of or listening to which one becomes the Lord of all the Siddhis⁴ (8) (a hymn) which allays evil fortune, increases happiness and prosperity, destroys untimely death, and removes all calamities (9), and is the cause of the happy approach to the gracious Ādyā Kālikā. See as to the letter Ka and Kādimata, A. Avalon's Introduction to Tantrarāja, Vol. 8, Tāntrik Texts.

² Māyā-Bīja (see Chapter v, verse 10). H. (= Shiva) and R. (= Fire) and Ī (Mahāmāyā) and Ng (= Nāda visvamātā and Bindu Duhkhahara).

⁴ Bīja of Lakshmī, Goddess of Prosperity.

⁵ Karālī.

⁶ Ka = Kālī, Ra = Brahmā, Ī = Mahāmāyā (She Who conquers Māyā). The half-circle of Chandra Bindu (☺) is the Universal Mother and the point is the Destroyer of misery (Bijābhidhāna).

⁷ Kalyānī—i.e., She Who utters words of kindness and bestows peace, happiness and Liberation. According to the Padma Purāna, Devī is worshipped as Kalyānī in the Malaya Mountain (see also Lalitā-sahasra-nāma, verse 73).

⁸ Kalā-vatī (see ibid., verse 74). As to Kalās in the Mantra Shāstra sense, see "Garland of Letters," by Woodroffe. Kalā also means the Arts which are sixty-four in number. The Shakti should always be Kalā-vatī. Devī is also called Kalā-mālā, or Garland of the Kalās (Lalitā-sahasra-nāma, verse 151). Kalā-vatī may also mean "possessed of all Kalās, complete, perfect." For She as Brahman is Pūrṇā, the whole.

³ Kālīkā, because She devours Shiva as Mahā-kāla (see Chapter IV, verse 31).

⁴ Kāla-mātā. Time devours all things. She devours Time which again issues from Her.

⁷ Karālāsyā. Literally with protruding teeth.

⁸ Karunāmrita-sāgarā (see Lalitā-sahasra-nāma, verse 73).

⁹ Kripā-mayī.

¹⁰ Kripādhārā.

¹¹ Kripāpārā.

¹² Kripāgamā, that is through Shakti-pāta or descent of grace.

¹³ Krishānu. Krishānu-retas is an epithet of Shiva whose male seed is fire. See notes under I, 14.

¹⁴ Kapilā. Kapilā is also Queen of the Eastern and Southern corners.

¹⁵ Krishnā.

Thou Who increasest the joy of the Lord of Creation,¹

Destructress of sin in the Kali Age,⁷ (15)

³ Kāma-rūpā (see Lalitā-sahasra-nāma, verse 73). The Kālikā Purāna says that Devī is called Kāmā because she came to the secret place in the Blue peak of the Great Mountain (Kailāsa) along with Shiva for the sake of desire, and because She fulfils desires and destroys and restores the body of Kāma. As to Kāma-rūpā see p. 147, n. 4. Kāma also = Ichchha or Creative Will. Devī first manifests as Kāmesh-varī in the Śrīchakra. See Introduction, Tantrarāja, Vol. 8, Tantrik Texts, ed. A. Avalon and Kāmakalāvilāsa, vol. 10 in same series.

⁵ Kādambinī. In the heat of India the rain-cloud is welcomed.

⁷ Kali-kalasha-nāshinī (see Lalitā-sahasra-nāma, verse 113). The Kūrma Purāna says that the repetition of the names of Devī destroys the multitude of sins in the Kali Age.

⁸ Kumārī-pūjana-prītā. The Kumārī Pūjā, or worship of virgins, is a Pūjā common among Shāktas. The worship is by men, whereas the Sadhavā-pūjā, or worship of married women, is done by women. A girl in her eighth year is called Gaurī. The Devī as Pārvatī was married to Shiva in her eighth year. Girls of eight are considered Gaurīs and forms of the Devī. Or Kumārī may refer directly to the

 Who wearest a garland of Kadamba flowers,⁷ (17)
 Thou Who art youthful,⁸

Devī Herself. She is known as the "Virgin" (Kumārī). One of the Shiva Sūtras runs: "Ichchhā-shakti/ Umā Kumārī" (the power of Will is Umā, the Virgin). Bhāskara-rāya, in his Commentary, in the Lalitā-sahasra-nāma, pp. 54, 76, gives the following explanations: As play She creates the Universe, Kumāra=to sport, hence She is Kumārī, or She destroys (Mārayati) the ground (Ku) of the Great illusion, hence She is Ku-mārī. Kumārī is the Enjoyer, and not to be enjoyed, as She is One with the Yogī, Who is the Enjoyer. These interpretations are taken by him from the Shiva-sūtrā-vimarśinī (under Sūtra 18).

² Kumārī-bhojanānanda. At the Kumari-pūjā sweets, a basket made of shells, and a new Sari are given to the little girls, the soles of whose feet are then painted with Alakta (lac-dye).

³ Kumārī-rūpa-dhārini.

⁵ Kadamba-pushpa-santoshā (see Lalitā-sahasra-nāma, verse 23).

⁶ Kadamba-vana-vāsinī (see Lalitā-sahasra-nāma, verse 23). The palace of Chintāmani is surrounded by a wall of gems (Mani-mantapa). Around this is the grove of Kadamba-trees, which in the Purānas are said to be seven Yojanas in height in the space between the walls of gold and silver. The Bhairava-yāmala says: "The abode of Bindu is the ocean of nectar. The five Yonis—that is, five Shakti angles in the Shrī-chakra—are the divine trees. There is the grove of Nipa-trees. Within that is the wall of gems. Within that is the palace of Chintāmani."

⁸ Kishorī.

 And Who art seated on the Lotus,⁸ (19)
 Who abidest in the midst of the Lotus,⁹
 Whom the fragrance of the Lotus pleases,¹⁰
 Who movest with the swaying gait of a Hangsa,¹¹
 Destroyer of fear,¹²

¹ Kāla-kanthā. Bhāratī gives the meaning as Kala=Gambhīra-shabda-yukta. She is also Kāla-kanthī (Lalitā-sahasra-nāma, verse 96), or wife of Kāla-kantha, a name of Shiva, whose throat was coloured by poison. According to the Devī Purāna, Kāla-kantha was worshipped at Kālanjara.

² Kala-nāda-ninādinī : as in fighting uttering Hūṅ see p. 198, n. 6.

³ Kādambarī-pāna-ratā.

⁴ Kādambarī-priyā (see Lalitā-sahasra-nāma, verse 74). Kādambarī is a kind of wine distilled from the Kadamba flower, it is Uttamā madirā. The Tripurā Upanishad refers to wine, fish, flesh, cooked cereals being offered in the Yantra to the Great Devī. Bhāskara-rāya's Commentary on this Upanishad says that it enjoins those who are allowed to take wine, flesh, etc., that they should do so first after dedicating them to the Devī, and minimize the habit by gradation. The same idea is expressed in Manu Smṛiti, verse 56; Bhāgavata Purāna, xi, 5-11.

⁶ Kamkāla-mālya-dhārini.

⁷ Kamalāsana-santushtā.

⁸ Kamalāsana-vāsini. Kamalāsana is a name of Brahmā whose Shakti as Brāhmī She is.

⁹ Kamalālaya-madhya-sthā. Kamalālaya may mean Vishnu out of whose navel the Lotus came or the ocean in which He lay in either of which cases Vaishnavī Shakti is referred to.

¹⁰ Kamalāmōda-modinī.

¹¹ Kala-hangsa-gati. Hangsa is variously translated goose, swan, etc. A swaying waddle like that of a duck is admired.

¹² Klaihya-nāshini.

 Who art pleased with the nectar of purified wine,¹⁰
 Giver of success to them whom purified wine rejoices,¹¹

⁴ Kamanīyā.

⁵ Kalpa-latā. The Kalpa-tree is a tree in the heaven of Indra, which yields whatever one desires. Woman is likened to a creeper (see note under i, 53). See also Lalitā-sahasra-nāma, where the Devī is called Bhakti-mat-kalpa-latikā—the Kalpa creeper of the devotee. Latā is by some defined as Ishtadevatā.

⁶ Kamanīya-vibhūshanā.

⁷ Kamanīya-gunārādhya; or it may mean that the Devī is to be worshipped by the worshipper with all best and tender feeling.

⁸ Komalāṁgī.

¹⁰ Kaulika-priya-kārinī.

⁷ Kāchanādrī-kritāgārā, the mountain Kāchana—i.e., Sumeru.

⁸ Kāchanāchala-kaumudī.

⁹ Kāma-bija-japānandā. Klīng is the Kāma Bija. When Ka and La are eliminated, the remaining īng is called Kāma-kalā, which is in the Turiya state. In the Lalitā-sahasra-nāma, verse 125, Devī is called “The form of the Mantra Klīng” (Klīng-kārī). Klīng-kāra is Shiva-Kāma, and She is his Spouse.

¹⁰ Kāma-bija-svarūpinī—that is, She is Klīng itself.

¹⁴ Krīng, Hrīng, Shrīng, mantra-varnena kāla-kantaka-ghātini—literally, “Thorn of Death”.

These are proclaimed as the Hundred Names of Kālikā (32). They begin with the letter Ka and hymn the nature of Kālī¹ (33). He who in worship recites these names with his mind fixed on Kālikā, for him Mantrasiddhi² is quickly obtained, and with him Kālī is pleased (34). By the mere bidding of his Guru he acquires intelligence, knowledge, and becomes wealthy, famous, munificent, and compassionate (35). Such an one enjoys life happily in this world with his children and grandchildren with wealth and dominion (36). He who, on a new moon night,³ when it falls on a Tuesday, worships the great Ādyā Kālī, Mistress of the three worlds, with the five Ma-kāras,⁴ and repeats Her hundred names, becomes suffused with the presence of the Devī,⁵ and for him there remains nothing in the three worlds which is beyond his powers⁶ (37-38).

He becomes in learning like Brihaspati⁷ himself, in wealth like Kuvera.⁸ His profundity is that of the ocean, and his strength that of the wind (39). He shines with the blinding brilliance of the Sun, yet pleases with the soft glamour of the Moon. In beauty he becomes like the Deva of Love,⁹ and reaches the hearts of women (40). He comes forth as conqueror everywhere by the grace¹⁰ of this hymn of praise.¹ Singing this hymn, he attains all his desires (41). All these desires he shall attain by the grace of the gracious Ādyā, whether in battle, in seeking the favour of Kings, in wagers, or in disputes, and when his life be in danger (42) at the hands of robbers, amidst burning villages, lions, or tigers (43), in forests and lonely deserts, when imprisoned, threatened by Kings or by adverse planets, in burning fever, in long sickness, when attacked by fearful disease (44), in the sickness of children caused by the influence of adverse planets,² or when tormented by evil dreams, when fallen in boundless waters, and when he be in some storm-tossed ship (45). O Devī! he who with firm devotion meditates upon the Paramā Māyā³ who is the Supreme Ādyā Kālī—is without a doubt relieved of all dangers. For him there is never any fear, whether arising from sin⁴ or disease (46-47). For him there is ever victory, and defeat never. At the mere sight of him all dangers flee (48). He expounds all Scriptures, enjoys all good fortune, and becomes the leader in all matters of caste and duty, and the lord among his kinsmen (49). In his mouth Vānī⁵ ever abides, and in his home Kamalā.⁶ Men bow with respect at the mere mention of his name (50). The eight Siddhis,⁷ such as Animā and others, he looks upon as but mere bits of grass.⁸

This hymn of a hundred names, is called "Ādyā-Kālī-svarūpa"¹ (51).

Purashcharana² of this hymn, which is its repetition one hundred and eight times, yields all desired fruit (52). This hymn of praise of a hundred names, which is the Primeval Kālī Herself, if read, or caused to be read, if heard, or caused to be heard, frees from all sins and leads to union with Brahman (53-54).

Shri Sadāshiva said:³

I have spoken of the great hymn of the Prakriti⁴ of the Supreme Brahman,⁵ hear now the Protective Mantra⁶ of the sacred Ādyā Kālīkā (55). The name of the Mantra is "Conqueror of the three Worlds,"⁷ its *Rishi*⁸ is Shiva, the verse is Anushtup,⁹ and its Devatā is Ādyā Kālī (56).

Its Bija¹⁰ is the Māyā Bija,¹¹ its Shakti¹² is Ramā Bija,¹³ and its Kilaka¹⁴ is Kṛīṅg. It should be used for the attainment of all desired objects¹⁵ (57).

¹ Ādyā-Kālī-svarūpa—name of the Hymn. It is to be observed that the letter Ka which begins each name has in Bengali a triangle (ক). This triangle=Yoni=Shakti. The three sides are Brahmā, Vishnu, Rudra.

 And Sarva-siddhi-dā¹¹ protect all parts of my body (63).

As to those parts as have not been mentioned in the Kavacha, and are unprotected, may the Eternal Primeval Kālī protect all such (64).

I have now spoken to Thee of the wonderful heavenly Protective Mantra of the Ādyā Devī Kālīkā, which is known as the "Conqueror of the three Worlds" (65). He who repeats it at his devotions with his mind fixed upon the

³ Saviour of the three Worlds.

⁴ She Who had not even leaves for food during the performance of her austerities prior to the birth of Kārtikeya.

⁵ She who is in Kamatha, the Tortoise on which the world rests is emblem of patience. She is sustainer of the universe.

⁷ The Radiant One.

⁸ The Propitious One, Giver of Liberation or who is Liberation itself.

⁹ Daughter of Himālaya (vide p. 2, note 9).

¹⁰ The Conquering Durgā.

¹¹ The Giver of all kinds of Siddhi.

Ādyā¹ obtains all his desires, and She becomes propitious unto him (66). He quickly attains Mantra-siddhi.² The lesser Siddhis³ become, as it were, his slaves (67). He who is childless gets a son, he who desires wealth gains riches. The seeker of learning attains it, and whatsoever a man desires he attains the same⁴ (68).

The Purashcharana⁵ of this Protective Mantra⁶ is its repetition a thousand times, and this gives the desired fruit (69). If it be written on birch-bark,⁷ with the paste of sandal, fragrant aloe, musk, saffron, or red sandal, and encased in a golden ball, worn either on the right arm, round the neck, in the crown lock,⁸ or round the waist, then the Ādyā Kālī becomes devoted to its wearer, and grants him whatsoever he may desire (70-71). Nowhere has he fear. In all places he is a conqueror. He becomes ready of speech,⁹ free from ailments, long-lived and strong, endowed with all power of endurance¹⁰ (72), and an adept in all learning. He knows the meaning of all Scriptures,¹¹ has kings under his control, and holds both Enjoyment and Liberation in the hollow of his hand (73).

³ Kshudra-siddhī = i.e., the eight siddhis—Animā, Laghimā, etc. They are lesser as compared with the Great Siddhi—Liberation.

⁵ See 'Shakti and Shākta,' Tarkālamkāra says 1,008 times.

⁶ Varman = Armour, or Kavacha (see p. 46, note 4).

⁷ Birch-bark—Bhūrjja—is brought from the Himālaya, and is used for the writing of Mantras instead of paper, etc., an account of its sanctity.

⁹ Kavi, which also means Poet, wise. Cf. Karpūrādi-Stotra, verse 1.

¹⁰ Dhāraṇa-kṣama, which however, Tarkālamkāra interprets to mean "Master of various Shāstras".

¹¹ Sarva-shāstrārtha-tattva-vid = One who knows the meaning (Artha) and essence (Tattva = true significance) of all the Shāstras,

For men affected with the taint of the Kali Age it is a most excellent Mantra for the attainment of final Liberation¹ (74).

Shrī Devī said :

Thou hast, O Lord ! in Thy kindness told me of the Hymn and Protective Mantra ; I now desire to hear of the rules relating to Purashcharana² (75).

Shrī Sadāsiva said :

The rules relating to Purashcharana in the worship of the Ādyā Kālīkā are the same as those relating to the Purashcharana in the worship with the Brahma-Mantra³ (76). For Sādhakas who are unable to do them completely, both Japa, Pūjā and Homa, and Purashcharana⁴ may be curtailed (77), since it is better to observe these rites on a small scale than not to observe them at all.

Now listen, O Gentle One ! the while I describe to Thee the shortened form of worship (78). Let the wise one rinse his mouth with the Mūla-Mantra, and then perform Rishi-nyāsa.⁵ Let him purify the palms of the hands, and proceed to Kara-nyāsa⁶ and Aṅga-nyāsa⁷ (79). Passing the hands all over the body,⁸ let him practise

² Purashcharana, or Purashkarana, means literally "the act of placing in front". By repetition of the name or Mantra of the Deity, His or Her presence is invoked before the worshipper. See as to the rite the "Purashcharyānava" of the King of Nepal. As a term of social usage, Purashkāra means the singling out of a person from a number, and placing him in a position of honour. The word in the text is Purashcharyā-vidhi = Method of Purashcharyā (=Purashcharana). Tarkālakāra says that in wearing or reciting Kavacha, Purashcharana must be done without which no fruit is attained.

³ See Chapter III, verse 114, ante.

⁴ For the meaning of these terms, see "Shakti and Shākta".

⁵ See ibid.

⁷ Ibid.

⁸ This is called Vyāpaka-nyāsa. After this Prānāyāma is to be done.

Prāṇāyāma,¹ and then meditate,² worship,³ and inwardly repeat the Mantra.⁴ This is the ceremonial for the shortened form of worship (80).

In this form of Purashcharana, in lieu of Homa⁵ and other rites, the Mantras should be recited four times the number prescribed for the particular rite itself (81). There is also another mode of doing Purashcharana. A Sādhaka who, when the fourteenth day of the dark half of the lunar month⁶ falls on a Tuesday or Saturday, worships Jagannmayī⁷ on any such day with the five elements of worship,⁸ and recites with fully attentive mind the Mantra ten thousand times at midnight and feasts believers in the Brahman has performed Purashcharana (82-83). By doing Japa of the Mantra from one Tuesday to another Tuesday daily a thousand times, the Mantra having thus been recited eight thousand times is (also) the performance of Purashcharana (84-85).

In all Ages, O Devī! but particularly in the Kali Age, the Mantras of the Sacred Ādyā Kālikā are of great efficacy, and yield complete success (85-86). O Pārvatī! in the Kali Age, Kālī in her various forms is ever watchful,⁹ but when the Kali Age is in full sway, then the form of Kālī Herself is for the benefit of the world (87). In initiation ⁴ Japa. These terms are explained in "Shakti and Shākta".

⁵ Homa is necessary and the alternative of additional Japa is for one who cannot for some reason do it.

⁶ Kṛishnā chaturdashī, the fortnight in which the Moon wanes.

⁷ A name of Devī as pervading the Universe, which is Her form.

⁸ Pancha-tattva—i.e., wine, meat, fish, parched grain, and Shakti.

⁹ In this Kali Age (says Shiva-chandra Bhattachārya Vidyārnava) only Kālī, Kṛishna, Gopāla, and Kālikā are Jāgrata (awakened, watchful, efficacious) Devatās (Principles of Tantra).

into this Kālikā Mantra there is no necessity to determine whether it be Siddha or Su-siddha, or the like, or favourable or inimical.¹ If Japa is made of it, whether according to Niyama² or not³ the Ādyā Devī is pleased (88). The mortal, by the grace of the glorious Ādyā, attains Brahman Knowledge⁴ and, possessed of such knowledge, is, without a doubt, liberated even while living⁵ (89). Beloved, there is no need here for much exertion or endurance or penances. The religious exercises of the worshippers of the Ādyā Kālī are pleasant to accomplish (90). By the mere purification of the heart and mind¹ the worshipper attains all that he desires (91). So long, however, as the impurity of the heart is not removed, so long must the worshipper practise the rites with devotion to Kula.² (92).

² Niyama=Prescribed rules—that is, Japa should first be done according to the Pashu method (Pashvāchāra) by living on Havishyāna (a pure form of food), continence, restraint of the senses, and so forth.

³ Aniyamena=Literally not according to the prescribed form. It may mean that in this Sāadhanā strict observance of rules is not necessary. Tarkālamkāra reads "Niyama" and Aniyama" in which case the dual form should be used. According to him Aniyama means, not according to the ordinary prescribed rules, but according to Virāchāra, by drinking wine, eating meat and fish, and union with Shakti. The Karpūrādi-Stotra says: "O Mother! he who during the day remains self-controlled, lives on Havishyāna, and, meditating on Thy two feet, does Japa of Thy Mantra one lakh times, and thereafter (abandoning his Pashu-bhāva) at night unclothes, and whilst with Shakti does Japa another lakh times, shall become on earth like the Destroyer of Smara (Kāma)—i.e., Shiva, who destroyed Kāmā, Deva of Desire." It is elsewhere said: "In the daytime remaining chaste, Japa should be done one lakh of times, and at night in bed, with mouth full of pān, another lakh of Japas should be done" (See ante, Chapter III, verse 14, also Purashecharana-rasollāsa, Durgārchana-mukūra, Āgama-tattva-vilāsa, Kālikārchana-dīpikā). By "mouth full of pān" is implied that Japa is done after a meal, and whilst enjoying oneself in a restful position.

The carrying out of the practices ordained, verily produces purification of the heart. The Mantra should, however, first be received from the mouth of the Guru as in the case of the Brahma-Mantra (93). O Great Queen! Purashkriyā³ should be done after the performance of the necessary worship and of other prescribed rites.⁴ In the purified heart knowledge of Brahman grows.⁵ And when Knowledge of Brahman is attained, there is neither that which should, nor that which should not, be done⁶ (94).

Shrī Pārvatī said:

O Great Deva! what is Kula, and what is Kulāchāra? O Great Lord! what is the sign⁷ of each of the five elements of worship?⁸ I desire to hear the truth relating to these (95).

Shrī Sadāshiva said:

O Primeval One! the looking upon all these as Brahman is Kulāchāra, and produces Dharma, Artha, Kāma, and Moksha² (98). Those whose sins are washed away by merits acquired in various previous births by penances, alms, and faithful observance of worship, it is they whose minds are inclined to the Kaula way³ (99). When the mind⁴ realizes the essence of Kula Āchāra, it becomes at once purified, and inclines to the lotus-feet of the Primeval Kālī (100). The produced principles are, as the Vāmakeshvara Tantra says, the displayed form of the Avyakta Prakriti. Kula is Brahman (see Ed. Bhakta, p. 299). Kālikā, the Queen of Kula, will enjoy all blessings in this life, and attain final Liberation at its close ¹ (101-102).

The characteristic of the first element ² is that it is the great medicine for humanity, helping it to forget deep sorrows, and is the cause of joy (103). But, O Dearest One! the element which is not purified stupefies and bewilders, breeds disputes and diseases, and should always be rejected by the Kaulas (104). Beasts bred in villages, ³ in the air ⁴ or forest, ⁵ which are nourishing, and increase intelligence, energy, and strength. are the second element ⁶, (105). O Beautiful One! of the animals bred in water, that which is pleasing and of good taste, and increases the generative power of man, is the third element ⁷ (106). The characteristics of the fourth element ⁸ are that it is easily obtainable, grown in the earth, and is the root of the life of the three worlds (107). And, O Devī, the signs of the fifth element ⁹ are that it is the cause of intense pleasure, is the origin of all breathing creatures and the root of the world which is without either beginning or end ¹⁰ (108).

Sexual union is the root of all which breathes. As the Universe is without beginning or end, so is this energy, which is the root of it. It is in the microcosm (Kṣudrabrahmāṇḍa) a particle of the supreme creative energy. Seed (Retas) is a material precipitate of the Will to Life.

Know, Dearest One! that the first element is fire, the second is air, the third is water, the fourth is the earth (109), and, O Beauteous Face! as to the fifth element, know it to be ether, the support of the Universe (110). O Sovereign Mistress of Kula, he who knows Kula,¹ the five Kula-tattvas,² and Kula worship, is liberated whilst yet living³ (111).

CHAPTER VIII

CASTES AND ASHRAMAS

AFTER hearing of the various forms of Dharma, Bhavānī,¹ Mother of the worlds, Destructress of all worldly bonds, spoke again to Shamkara (1).

Shrī Devī said :

I have heard of the different Dharmas which bring happiness in this world and the next, and bestow piety,² wealth, fulfilment of desire, ward off danger, and are the cause of the realisation of oneness with the Supreme³ (2). I wish now to hear of the castes⁴ and of the stages of life.⁵ Speak in Thy kindness, O Omnipresent One! of these, and of the mode of life which should be observed therein (3).

Shrī Sadāshiva said :

O Thou of auspicious Vows! in the Satya and other Ages there were four castes; in each of these were four stages of life; and the rules of conduct varied according to the caste and stages of life.⁶ In the Kali Age, however, there are five castes—namely, Brāhmana, Kshatriya, Vaishya, Shūdra, Sāmānya.⁷ Each of these five castes,

⁶ Ibid.

⁷ The ordinary division is into the first four castes. The Tantra adds a fifth—Sāmānya—which means common, or low-born. The new caste is not based on any essential difference, but is a hybrid from the others. Vide post, v. 118.

O Great Queen! ¹ have two stages of life.² Listen then, O Ādyā! whilst I narrate to Thee their mode of life, rites, and duties³ (4-6). I have already spoken to Thee of the ways of men born in the Kali Age. Unused as they are to penance,⁴ and devoid of learning in the Vedas, incapable of doing the rites, short-lived, and incapable of strenuous effort,⁵ how can they endure bodily labour? (7)

O Beloved! there is in the Kali Age no Brahmachārya⁶ nor Vānaprastha.⁶ There are two stages only, those of Grihastha and Bhikshuka⁷ (8). O Auspicious One! in the Kali Age the householder⁸ should in all his acts be guided by the rules of the Āgamas.⁹ He will never attain success¹⁰ by other ways¹¹ (9). And, O Devī! at the stage of the mendicant¹² there is no carrying of the staff as enjoined in the Veda, since, O Thou Who knowest the Truth! ¹³ that is a practice which is Vedic¹⁴ (10). O Gentle One! the adoption of the life of an Avadhūta,¹ according to the Shaiva rites,² is in the Kali Age equivalent to the entry into the life of a Sannyāsin³ (11). When the Kali Age is in full sway, the Vipras⁴ and the other castes have equal right to enter into both these stages of life (12). The purificatory rites of all are to be according to the rules ordained by Shiva, though the particular practices of the Vipras and other castes vary (13).

A man becomes a householder the moment he is born. It is by Saṁskāra,⁵ that he enters upon the other stage of life.⁶ For this reason, O Great Queen!⁷ one should first be a householder, following the rules of that mode of life (14). When, however, the Brahman is known and one is the degeneracy of the Kali Age, since even in those two stages (Āshrama) which are prescribed during its continuance, there is a dispensation from rites which the men of that Age are incapable of observing. The Āshrama is in vogue in the Kali Age but the carrying of the staff (Danda-dhārana) is not permitted, as the rites attending investiture with the Danda are Vedic. Some however do carry the Danda.

Yo vilanghyāshramān varnān ātmanyeva sthitah pumān,

Ati-varnāshramī yogi avadhūtaḥ sa uchyate.

"A man who is above both caste and stage of life (āshrama), and ever contemplating the Supreme Soul only, he is called Avadhūta". The Brāhmana must study, teach, give and take alms, worship and perform worship for others. The Avadhūta, if a Brāhmana, however, does not follow these injunctions, or, if he is a Kshatriya or Vaishya, the duties laid down for these castes (see "Shakti and Shākta").

freed of worldly desires,¹ it is then that one should abandon all and seek refuge in the life of an ascetic² (15). In childhood one should acquire knowledge; in youth, wealth and wife. The wise man in middle age will devote himself to acts of charity and piety, and in his old age he should retire from the world (16).

No one should retire from the world who has an old father or mother, a devoted and chaste wife, or young and helpless children³ (17). He who becomes an ascetic⁴ leaving mothers,⁵ fathers,⁶ infant children, wives, agnates and cognates,⁷ is guilty of a great sin (18). He who becomes a mendicant without first satisfying the need of his own parents and relatives is guilty of the sins of killing his father and mother, a woman, and a Brāhmana⁸ (19). The Brāhmanas and men of other castes should perform their respective purificatory rites according to the ordinances laid down by Shiva. This is the rule⁹ in the Kali Age (20).

Shrī Sadāshiva said :

The state of an householder is for all the descendants of Manu¹ the first duty. I shall, therefore, first speak of it, and do Thou listen to Me, O Lady of the Kaulas² (22). A householder should be devoted to the Brahman and have his mind turned towards the knowledge of Brahman, and should dedicate whatever he does to Brahman (23). He should not tell an untruth, or practise deceit, and should ever be engaged in the worship of the Devatās and guests³ (24). Regarding his father and mother as to visible incarnate deities, he should ever and by every means in his power serve them⁴ (25). O Shivā! O Pārvatī! if the mother and father are pleased, Thou too art pleased, and the Supreme Being⁵ is propitious to him (26). O Primeal One! Thou art the Mother of the Worlds, and the supreme Brahman is the Father; what better religious act⁶ can there be than that which pleases You both? (27). One should offer, as desired, seats, beds, clothes, drink, and food

² Kaulinī. This word is defined by Bhāskararāya under verse 88 of Lalitā as follows :

Kula=Shakti, Akula=Shiva. The relation between these two is Kaula, Kaula=Shiva-Shakti-Sāmarasya. She who is possessed of this is Kaulinī.

³ Atithi. Tithi is a lunar day, and the A-tithi is the stranger guest seeking shelter and a meal, who stays not longer than one Tithi.

⁴ It is said :

Pitā svargah pitā dharmah, pitā hi paramam tapaḥ, Pitari pritim āpanne priyante sarva-devatāḥ.

i.e., Father is heaven, father is Dharma, father is the highest Tapas or object of devotion. When father is pleased, all Devas are pleased. But the mother is even more honoured. Garbha-dhārana-poshābhyām pitur mātā gariyasī—i.e., Mother is superior to father on account of her bearing and also nourishing the child. to mother and father. They should always be spoken to in a gentle voice, and their children's demeanour should ever be agreeable to them. The good son who ever obeys the behests of his mother and father hallows the family (28-29). If one desires one's own welfare, all arrogance, mockery, threats and angry words should be avoided in the parents' presence (30). The son should remain obedient to his parents and should, on seeing them bow to them and out of reverence to them, stand up in their presence, and should not take his seat without their permission (31). He who, intoxicated with the pride of learning or wealth, slights his parents, is beyond the pale of all Dharma, and goes to a terrible Hell (32). Even if the vital breath were to reach his throat,¹ the householder should not eat without first feeding his mother, father, son, wife, guest, and brother² (33). The man who, to the deprivation of his elders and equals, fills his own belly is despised in this world, and goes to Hell in the next (34). The householder should cherish his wife, educate his children, and support his kinsmen and friends. This is the eternal duty³ (35). The body is nourished by the mother. It originates from the father. The kinsmen, out of love, teach. The man, therefore, who forsakes them is indeed vile (36). For their sake should an hundred pains be undergone. With all one's ability they should be pleased. This is the eternal duty³ (37). That man who in this world turns his mind to Brahman and adheres faithfully to the Truth in his conduct is above all a man of good deeds, and knows the Supreme, and is blest in all the worlds (38). The householder should never punish his wife, but should cherish her like a mother. If she is virtuous and devoted to her husband, he should never forsake her even in times of greatest misfortune (39). The wise man, whilst his own wife is living, should never with wicked intent touch another woman, otherwise he will go to hell (40). The wise man should not, when in a private place, live and sleep or lie down close to another man's wife. He should avoid all improper speech and braggart boldness in her presence (41). By riches, clothes, love, respect and pleasing words should one's wife be pleased. The husband should never do anything displeasing to her (42). The wise man should not send his wife to any festival, concourse of people, pilgrimage or to another's house, except she be attended by his son or an inmate of his own house¹ (43).

O Maheshvarī! that man whose wife is both faithful and happy is surely looked upon as if he had performed all Dharma, and is truly Thy favourite also (44). A father should fondle and nurture his sons until their fourth year, and then until their sixteenth they should be taught learning and their duties² (45). Up to their twentieth year they should be kept engaged in household duties, and thenceforward, considering them as equals, he should ever show affection towards them (46). In the same manner a daughter should be cherished and taught with great care, and then given away with money and jewels to a good husband³ (47).

The householder should in the same way also cherish and protect his brothers and sisters and their children, his kinsmen, friends, and servants (48). He should also maintain his fellow-worshippers,¹ fellow-villagers, guests and unexpected strangers² (49). If the wealthy householder does not so act, then let him be known as a beast, a sinner, and one despised in the worlds (50). The householder should not be inordinately addicted to sleep, idling, care for the body, dressing his hair, eating or drinking, or attention to his clothes (51). He should be moderate as to food, sleep, speech, and sexual intercourse, and be sincere, humble, pure,³ free from sloth,⁴ and perserving⁵ (52). Chivalrous to his foes, modest before his friends, relatives, and elders, he should neither respect those who deserve censure nor slight those who are worthy of respect (53). Men should only be admitted to his trust and confidence after association with them and observation of their nature, inclination, conduct, and friendly character (54). Even an insignificant enemy should be feared, and one's own power⁶ should be disclosed only at the proper time. But on no account should one deviate from the path of duty⁷ (55). He who knows Dharma⁸ should not speak of his own fame and prowess, of what has been told him in secret, nor of the good that he has done for others (56). A man of good name should not engage in any quarrel with an unworthy

He should diligently earn knowledge, wealth, fame, and religious merit,² and avoid all vicious habits,³ the company of the wicked, falsehood, and treachery⁴ (58). Ventures should be undertaken according to the circumstances and one's condition in life, and actions should be done according to their season. Therefore, in everything that a man does he should first consider whether the circumstances and time are suitable⁵ (59). The householder should employ himself in the acquisition of what is necessary and in the protection of the same. He should be judicious, pious, good to his friends. He should be moderate in speech and laughter, in particular in the presence of those entitled to his reverence⁶ (60). He should hold his senses under control, be of cheerful disposition, think Defined in the Amara-kosha: Vyasanam vipadi bhrangshe doshe kāmaja-kopaje—i.e., calamity or disaster, fall or defeat, and vicious habits engendered by lust or anger, of which there are ten and eight kinds respectively. The last-mentioned meaning is applicable here. There are various kinds, such as excessive addiction to women, intoxicating drinks, gambling, hunting, etc. (see Kāmandakiya-Nītisāra, Chapter XI, verse 12). The term is a comprehensive one, and is sometimes used generally for all defects—sleeping in the day, over-addiction to dancing and singing, etc.

That man who is the happiness of his mother and father, to whom his friends are devoted, and whose fame is sung by men, he is the conqueror of the three worlds (64). He who has taken the vow of truth, whose charity is ever for the poor, who has mastered lust and anger,⁵ by him are the three worlds conquered (65). He who covets not others' wives or goods, who is free of deceit and envy, by him the three worlds are conquered (66). ² The senses are the doors through which the mind perceives the outer world. It should be cautious as to the objects with which it brings itself in contact, and not expose itself to temptation. Bhārati says, Mātrā=Indriyavṛitti and Spārsha is the relationship of the senses to external objects.

³ So it is said: Satyam bruyāt priyam bruyāt na bruyāt satyam apriyam (Say what is true and pleasant, but not what is unpleasant even if true); also, Hitam manohāri cha durlabham vachah (Kirātārjuniya of Bhāravi)—i.e., Rare is the word both salutary and pleasing.

⁴ By pleasing others the Paramātmā, who is in all, is pleased. When any of these acts is done, it is accompanied by the Pratishthā ceremony. The tree, pond, etc., are dedicated to the Deity, and the consecrated object becomes public property. Public utility is served and religious merit is acquired by the dedication. O Devī! purity is of two kinds, external and internal. The dedication of oneself to Brahman is known as internal purity (70) and the cleansing of the impurities of the body by water or ashes, or any other matter which cleanses the body, is called external purity (71). O Dearest One! the waters of Gaṅgā, or of any other river, lake, tank, pond, well, or pool, or of the celestial River, are equally purifying² (72). O Thou of auspicious Vows! the ashes from a place of sacrifice and cleansed earth or excellent, and the skin of an antelope, a clean cloth and grass are as purifying as earth (73). O Auspicious One!³ what need is there to say more about the rules of purity and impurity? Whatever⁴ purifies the mind that the householder should do (74). Let there be external purification upon awakening from sleep, after sexual intercourse, making water, voiding the bowels, and at the close of a meal, and whenever dirt of any kind has been touched (75).

so does the ritual¹ (76). The Sādhakas of the Brahma Mantra have performed their Sandhya when they have made Japa of the Gāyatrī realizing within themselves the identity of the Gāyatrī and Brahman (77).² In the case of those who are not Brahma-worshippers, Vaidika Sandhya consists of the recitation of the Gāyatrī after offering of oblations to the Sun³ (78).

O Gentle One! in all daily prayers⁴ Japa should be done one thousand and eight, or a hundred and eight, or ten times (79). O Devi! the Shūdras and Sāmānyas⁵ may observe any of the rites proclaimed by the Āgamas, and by these they attain that which they desire (80). The three times (of performance of Sandhyā) are at sunrise, at noon, and at sunset (81).

Shrī Devī said:

Thou hast Thyself said, O Lord! that when the Kali Age is in full sway then for all castes, commencing with the Vipras, Tāntrika rites are alone appropriate. Why, then, dost Thou enjoin on the Vipras⁶ the Vedic rites? It behoveth Thee to explain this fully to Me (82-83).

Brahma-Sāvitṛī,¹ is as much Vaidika, as Tāntrika, and is appropriate in both Vaidika and Tāntrika rites (85). It is, therefore, O Devī! that I have said that when the Kali Age is in full sway, the twice-born shall alone be entitled to the Gāyatrī, but not the other Mantras² (86). In the Kali Age the Sāvitṛī³ should be said by the Brāhmanas, preceded by the Tāra,⁴ and by the Kshatriyas and Vaishyas, preceded by the Kamalā⁵ and Vāgbhava⁶ Bijas respectively (87). In order, O Supreme Devī! that a distinction may be drawn between the twice-born and the Shūdras, the daily duties⁷ are directed to be preceded by Vaidika Sandhyā⁸ (88). Success, however, may also be attained by the mere following of the ordinances of Shambhu.⁹ This is verily true, and I repeat it is true and very true, and there is no doubt about it (89). O Adored of the Devas! even if the stated time for the doing of the daily Sandhyā is past, all, who desire Emancipation but are otherwise prevented, should do it by saying, "Om̐ That Ever-lasting Brahman"¹⁰ (90). household furniture of the worshipper should be as clean as possible (91). At the close of the daily prayers the householder should keep himself occupied with household duties or the study of the Vedas; he should never remain idle (92). In holy places, on holy days, or when the Sun or Moon is in eclipse,¹ he should do inward recitation,² and give alms, and thus become the abode of all that is good (93).

In the Kali Age, life is dependent on the food that is eaten³ fasting is therefore not recommended;⁴ in lieu of it, the giving of alms is ordained (94). O Great Queen!⁵ in the Kali Age, alms are efficacious in the accomplishment of all things. The proper objects of such alms are the poor devoted to meritorious acts (95). death, and days fixed as those of festivals, are holy days (96-97).

The River Gaṅgā and all the great Rivers, the house of the religious Teacher, and the places of the Devas¹ are holy places. But for those who, neglecting the study of the Vedas, the service of mother and father, and the protection of their wife, go to places of pilgrimage, such holy places are changed to Hell (98-99). For women there is no necessity to go on pilgrimage, to fast, or to do other like acts, nor is there any need to perform any devotion except that which consists in the service of their husband (100). For a woman her husband is the place of pilgrimage, the performance of penance, the giving of alms, the carrying out of vows, and her spiritual teacher. Therefore should a woman devote herself to the service of her husband with her whole Self (101). She should ever by words and deeds of devotion act for the pleasure of her husband, and, remaining faithful to his behests, should please his kinsmen and relations (102).

A woman whose husband is her vow², should not look at him with hard eyes, or utter harsh words before him. Not even in her thought should she do anything which is displeasing to her husband (103). She who by body, mind, and word, and by pleasant acts, ever pleases her husband, attains to the abode of Brahman³ (104). Remaining ever faithful to the wishes of her husband, she should not look upon the face of other men, or have converse with them, or uncover her body before them (105). In childhood she should remain under the control of her parents, in her youth of her husband, and in her old age of the relatives of her husband. She should never be independent¹ (106).

A father should not marry his daughter if she does not know her duty to a husband and how to serve him, as also the other rules² of woman's conduct (107).

Neither the flesh of human beings, nor of the animals resembling them,³ nor the flesh of the cow, which is serviceable in various ways, nor the flesh of carnivorous animals, nor such meat as is tasteless, should be eaten (108). O Auspicious One!⁴ fruits and roots of various kinds, whether grown in villages or jungles, and all that is grown in the ground, may be eaten at pleasure (109).

Teaching and the performance of sacrifices are the proper duties of a Brāhmana. But if he be incapable of these, he may earn his livelihood by following the profession of a Kshatriya or Vaishya (110). The proper occupation of a Rājanya⁵ is that of fighting and ruling. But if he be incapable of these, he may earn his livelihood by following the profession of a Vaishya or Shūdra (111). If a Vaishya cannot trade, then for him the following of the profession of a Shūdra involves no blame. For a Shūdra, O Sovereign Queen!⁶ service is the prescribed means of livelihood (112). O Devī! members of the Sāmānya⁷ class may for their maintenance follow all occupations except such as are specially reserved for the Brāhmana (113). The latter, void of hate and

He should ever be the same to, and the well-wisher of, all men, and teach his well-behaved pupils as if they were his own sons (115). He should ever avoid falsehood, detraction, and vicious habits,² arrogance, friendship for low persons, the pursuit of low objects, and the use of language which gives offence (116). Where peace is possible, avoid war.³ Peace with honour is excellent. O Beauteous One!⁴ for the Rājanya it should be either death or victory in battle⁵ (117). A man of the kingly caste should not covet the wealth of his subjects, or levy excessive taxes, but, being faithful to his promises, he should ever in the observance of his duty⁶ protect his subjects as though they were his own children (118). In administration, war, treaties, and other affairs of State the King should take the advice of his Ministers (119). War should be carried on in accordance with Dharma.⁷ Rewards and punishments should be awarded justly and in accordance with the Shāstras. The best treaty should be Victory, peace, and prosperity follow stratagem (121). He should ever avoid the company of the low, and be good to the learned. He should be of a calm disposition, judicious of action in time of trouble, of good conduct, and reasonable in his expenditure (122).

He should be an expert in the maintenance of his forts, well trained in the use of arms. He should ever ascertain the disposition of his army, and teach his soldiers military tactics (123). O Devī! he should not in battle kill one who is stunned, who has surrendered his arms, or is a fugitive, nor those of his enemies whom he has captured, nor their wives or children (124). Whatever is acquired either by victory or treaty should be distributed amongst the soldiers in shares according to merit (125).

The King should make known to himself the character and courage of each of his warriors, and if he would care for his interests he should not place a large army under the command of a single officer (126). He should not put his trust in any single person, nor place one man in charge of the administration, nor treat his inferiors as equals, nor be familiar with them² (127). He should be very learned, yet not garrulous; full of knowledge, yet anxious to learn; full of honours, yet without arrogance. In awarding both reward and punishment he should be calm and discriminating (128). The King should either himself or through his spies watch his subjects, kinsmen, and servants (129). A wise master should not either reward or punish anyone in a fit of passion or arrogance and without due cause (130). Soldiers, commanders, ministers, wife, children and servitors he should protect. If guilty, they should be punished according to their deserts (131). The King should protect, like a father, the insane, the helpless, children and orphans,¹ and those who are old and infirm² (132).

Know that agriculture and trade are the appropriate callings of the Vaishya. It is by agriculture and trade that man's body is maintained (133). Therefore, O Devī! in agriculture and trade all negligence, vicious habits,³ laziness, untruth, and deceit should be avoided in every way (134).

Shivā! when both buyer and seller are agreed as to the object of sale and the price thereof, and mutual promises have been made, then the purchase becomes complete (135). The purchase of things not seen is concluded by hearing the description thereof. If the article be found to differ from its description, then the purchase is of no effect (137). The sale of an elephant, a camel, and a horse is effected by the description of the animal. The sale is, however, set aside if the animal does not answer its description (138). If in the purchase of elephants, camels, and horses a latent vice becomes patent within the course of a year from the date of sale, then the purchase is set aside, but not after the lapse of one

In monetary transactions, agriculture, trade, and in all other transactions, men should ever carry out their undertakings. This is approved by the laws¹ (142).

A servant should be skilful, clean, truthful, wakeful, careful and alert, and possess his senses under control (143). He should, as he desires happiness in this and the next world, regard his master as if he were Vishnu Himself, his master's wife as his own mother, and respect his master's kinsmen and friends (144). He should know his master's friends to be his friends, and his master's enemies to be his enemies, and should ever remain in respectful attendance upon his master, awaiting his orders (145). He should carefully conceal his master's dishonour, the family dissensions, anything said in private or which would hurt the mind of his master (146). He should not covet the wealth of his master, but remain ever devoted to his good. He should not make use of bad words or laugh or play in his master's presence (147). He should not, with lustful mind, even look at the maidservants in his master's house, or lie down with them, or play with them in secret (148). He should not use his master's bed, seat, carriages, clothes, vessels, shoes, jewels, or weapons (149). If guilty, he should beg the forgiveness of his master. He should not be forward, impertinent, or attempt to place himself on an equal footing with his master (150).

⁶ The Mantra would thus be Ete gandha-pushpe: Ong Ānanda-Bhairavāya Namaḥ and Ete gandha-pushpe Ong Ānande-Bhairavyai Namaḥ.

The Kula worshipper should sanctify the wine by repeating over it the Pāshādi-trika Bīja and Svāhā¹ a hundred and eight times (170). When the Kali Age is in full sway, in the case of the householder whose mind is entirely engrossed with domestic desires, the three sweets should be substituted in the place of the first element of worship (wine) (171). Milk, sugar, and honey are the three sweets.² They should be deemed to be the image of wine, and as such offered to the Deity (172). Those born in the Kali Age are by their nature weak in intellect, and their minds are distracted by lust. By reason of this, they do not recognize the Shakti to be the image of the Deity³ (173). Therefore, O Pārvatī! for such as these let there be, in place of the last element of worship (sexual union), meditation upon the Lotus-feet of the Devī and the inward recitation of their⁴ *Ishta-mantra*⁵ (174).

Therefore such of the elements of worship as have been obtained should be consecrated by the recitation, over each of them, of the same Mantra one hundred times (175). Let the worshipper, with closed eyes, meditate upon them

² Madhura-traya. Some say ghee, honey, sugar. It has been previously said that the Sādhaka householder may drink up to five cups. Here it is said that a householder is not to drink at all. The apparent contradiction is resolved by Tarkālakāra, who says that a householder whose mind is engrossed in his Sādhanā may drink five cups but he whose mind is occupied with worldly matters and rites for the attainment of worldly advantages should not drink.

O Gentle One!² this is the Bhairavī-chakra, which is not revealed in the other Tantras. I have, however, spoken before Thee of it. It is the essence of essences, and more excellent than the best (177).

Two forms of marriage are, Brāhma (the usual kind) and Shaiva. There is in the last no restriction as regards age or caste. A widow can also so marry. The only restriction is that the woman has not already a husband (ix, 279). The latter marriage is of two kinds, one terminated by the Chakra and the other lifelong (ix, 269 and in verse 280). The persons so married are Shaktis. A Shakti again may be Pūjyā or Bhogyā. The latter may be enjoyed and not the former who merely acts as Uttara-sādhikā, that is, assists in the ritual the man whose Shakti she is. A Pūjyā Shakti is never for life. The Bhogyā Shakti may be for life or for the Chakra only. In all cases some form of marriage precedes intercourse where it takes place. On verse 174 Tarkālamkāra says that the Brāhma wife is called Svashakti or Aparashakti (that is not Parashakti). The Shaiva wife is called Parashakti. The Brāhma wife, if purified by Shaiva marriage ritual or taken as a Shakti in the Bhairavī-chakra, becomes a Parashakti. Parashakti should (he says) be treated as the Sādhaka's mother and as Divinity (Ishta-devatā). If the thought of wife relationship (Bhāryābhāva) arise in the mind there is a fall. Here (he says) Shiva has prohibited the last Tattva ere long for men of ordinary intelligence and weak control over their desire (Kāma). Such are not competent to take a Shakti. (This is not clear. But presumably what is meant is that they are not in a position to do Sāadhanā with a Shakti. For such a man the presence of a woman is rather an obstacle—Vighna—than a help). Those, however, who by Sāadhanā have conquered lust, may do Sāadhanā with Shakti. The Uttara and other Tantras say that after doing Sāadhanā with Svashakti and obtaining success (Siddhi) then when the mind is free of temptation, Sāadhanā may be done with Parashakti. Guptasāadhanā Tantra says that "in Kulāchāra the Siddhamantrin should worship (Prapūjayet) the Kula women."

I may add that the various grades of competency and Chakra must be considered. There are men who do Sāadhanā with a woman Vira¹ who without marriage worships by enjoyment of Shakti² is, without doubt, guilty of the sin of going with another man's wife³ (179). When seated in the Bhairavi-chakra men of all castes composing it are like the best of the twice-born; but when the circle is broken, they revert again to their own respective castes (180). In this Circle there is no distinction of caste nor impurity of food.⁴ The Vira worshippers in the Circle are My image; there is no doubt of that (181). In the formation of this Circle there is no rule as to time or place or question as to fitness.⁵ The necessary articles may be used by whomsoever they may have been brought (182). Food brought from a long distance, whether it be cooked or uncooked,⁶ whether brought by a Vira⁷ or a Pashu,⁸ becomes pure, immediately it is brought within the Chakra (183).

While the Chakra is being formed, all dangers flee in confusion, awed by the Brāhmanik⁹ lustre of its Viras (184).

who never have sexual intercourse with her nor thought of it. The Parashakti in human form is identified not the Parashakti in Supreme Power.

⁷ See "Shakti and Shākta".

⁸ See Ibid. Cooked food should not be touched by a lower caste; if so, it becomes impure. But the rule does not apply to uncooked food.

⁹ Brahma-tejas. The word Brāhmanik is here to be understood in its primary meaning, "Brahma jānāti sa Brāhmanah"—i.e., he who knows the Brahman is a Brāhmana, and not as signifying the Brāhmana caste.

Upon the mere hearing that a Bhairavī circle has been formed at any place, fierce Pishāchas, Guhyakas, Yakshas, and Vetālas¹ depart afar off in fear (185). Into the circle come all the holy places,² the great and holy places,³ and with reverence Indra⁴ and all the immortals (186). Shivā ! the place where a circle is formed is a great and holy place, more sacred than each and all the other holy places. Even the Thirty-three⁵ desire the excellent offerings⁶ made to Thee in this circle (187). Whatever the food be, whether cooked or uncooked, and whether brought by a Mlechchha,⁷ Chandāla,⁸ Kirāta,⁹ or Hūna,¹⁰ it becomes pure as soon as it is placed in the hand of a Vīra¹¹ (188). By the seeing of the circle and of the worshippers therein, who are but images of Myself, men infected with the taint of the Kali Age are liberated from the bonds of the life of a Pashu¹² (189). When, however, the Kali Age is in full sway, the circle should not be concealed. The Vīra should at all places and at all times practise Kula¹³ rites and make Kula worship (190).

In the Circle all distinction of caste, frivolous talk, levity, garrulity, spitting, and breaking wind should be avoided (191). Such as are cruel, mischievous, Pashu,¹ sinful, atheists, blasphemers of Kula doctrine, and calumniators of the Kula² Scriptures, should be kept far away from the Circle (192). Even the Vira³ who, induced by affection, fear, or attachment, admits a Pashu⁴ into the circle falls from his Kula duty,⁵ and goes to hell (193). All who have sought refuge in the Kula Dharma, whether Brāhmanas, Kshatriyas, Vaishyas, Shūdras, or Sāmānyas, should ever be worshipped like Devas (194). He who, whilst in the Circle, makes, from pride in supremacy of his caste, distinctions of caste, descends to a terrible hell even though he should have gone to the very end of the Vedānta⁶ (195). How within the Circle can there be any fear of sin for Kaulas,⁷ who are good and pure of heart, and who are manifestly the very image of Shiva? (196). Vipras⁸ and others who are followers of Shiva⁸ should, so long as they are within the circle, follow the ordinance of Shiva⁹ and the observances prescribed by Him¹⁰ (197).

One Japa² made by a devout³ man, when seated within the circle, bears the fruit attainable by the performance of a hundred Purashcharana⁴ and by Shavāsana Mundāsana, and Chitāsana⁵ (199). Who can describe the glory of the Bhairavī-chakra? Its formation, though but once only frees of all sins (200). The man who for six months worships in such a circle will become a King, he who so worships for a year becomes the Conqueror of Death,⁶ and by the daily performance of such worship he attains to Nirvāna (201).

What is the need, O Kālikā! of saying more? Know this for certain, that for the attainment of happiness in this or the next world there is only the Kula-dharma, and no other (202). When the Kali Age is dominant and men are devoid of all Dharma, even a Kaula merits hell by concealment of the Kula-dharma⁷ (203).

I have spoken of the Bhairavī-chakra, which is the sole means of attaining enjoyment and final Liberation. I will now speak to Thee, O Queen of the Kaulas! of the Tattva circle. Do Thou listen (204).

Only those worshippers of the Supreme Brahman² are competent to take part in this circle who have attained to Knowledge of Brahman, who are devoted to Brahman,³ pure of heart, tranquil,⁴ devoted to the good of all beings, who are unaffected by the external world,⁵ who see no differences, but to whom all things are the same,⁶ who are merciful, faithful to their vows,⁷ and who have realized the Brahman⁸ (206-207).

O Knower of That!⁹ only those who, possessing the Knowledge of the Real,¹⁰ look upon this moving and motionless Existence as one with Brahman, such men are competent to take part in this Circle (208). They who regard everything in the Tattva Circle as Brahman,¹¹ they alone, O Devī, are qualified¹² to take part therein (209). In the formation of this Circle there is no necessity for placing the wine-jar, no lengthy ritual. It can be formed everywhere in a spirit of devotion to Brahman (210). There, O Shivā! the Lord of the Circle should seat himself with the worshippers of Brahman, and have the elements of worship brought and placed in front of him (213). The Lord of the Circle should inwardly recite the Mantra, beginning with the Tāra³ and ending with the Prāna-bija,⁴ a hundred times, and then pronounce the following Mantra over the elements (214):

however, one abandons an old mother or father, infant children and a devoted wife, or helpless dependents, and adopts the life of a wandering mendicant, one goes to Hell¹ (224). All, whether Brāhmana, Kshatriya, Vaishya, Shūdra, or Sāmānya, are equally entitled to take part in the purificatory ceremony of the Kula ascetic² (225).

After the performance of all the duties of a householder, and after satisfying all dependents and others,³ one should go forth from his house, indifferent, free from desires, with all his senses conquered (226). He who wishes thus to leave his house should call together his kinsmen and friends, his neighbours and men of his village, and lovingly ask of them their permission (227). Having obtained it, and made obeisance to his Ishta-devatā,⁴ he should go round his village, and then without attachment, set forth from his house (228). Liberated from the bonds of household life, and immersed in exceeding joy,⁵ he should approach a Kula ascetic of divine knowledge, and pray to him as follows: (229)

O Supreme Brahman! all this life of mine has been spent in the discharge of household duties. Do Thou, O Lord! be gracious to me in this my adoption of the life of an ascetic (230).

¹ See Bhakta, p. 357. Tarkālamkāra says that Veda teaches that when there arises the sense of detachment in a man he should take the ascetic path (Sannyāsa). The verse may seem to conflict with this. But the answer is that the prohibition there does not apply where there is intense dispassion (Vairāgya such as that of Shuka-deva, Buddha-deva, Chaitanya, Śaṅkarāchārya and other great men like them.

So far as the Tantra is concerned the Ishtadevatā is either the Brahman or Supreme Devī Kālīkā.

The religious Preceptor¹ should thereupon satisfy himself that the disciple's duties as a householder have all been accomplished, and, on finding him to be of calm mind and full of discernment, initiate him into the second stage (231). The disciple should then, with a well-controlled mind, make his ablutions and say his daily prayer, and then, with the object of being absolved from the threefold debt² due to them, worship the Devas, the Rishis,³ and the Pitris (232).

By the Devas are meant Brahmā, Vishnu, and Rudra, with their followers⁴; by the *Rishis*³ are meant Sanaka and others, as also the *Devarshis*³ and the *Brahmarshis*³ (233). Listen, whilst I now enumerate the Ancestors⁵ who should be worshipped (234). The father, paternal grandfather, paternal great-grandfather, mother, the maternal grandfather, and others in the ascending line, and the maternal grandmother and others in the ascending line (235). At the time of adoption of the life of an ascetic,⁶ the Devas and Rishis should be worshipped in the East, the paternal ancestors in the South, the maternal ancestors in the West

² The threefold debt is that due to the Devas, Rishis, and Pitris for protection, teaching, parentage; the fourth debt (Mānava) is that to men for their help. The first is discharged by Yajna, the second by Brahmacharya, the third by giving birth to children, and the fourth by the performance of the duties of the Āshrama.

⁵ Pitris.

(236). Spreading two seats on each of these sides, beginning from the East, and invoking the Devas and others thereto, they should there be worshipped¹ (237). Having worshipped them in proper form, *Pindas*² should be offered to each of them separately according to the rules relating thereto. And then, with folded palms, let the disciple thus supplicate the Devas and Ancestors (238):

MANTRA

O Fathers! O Devas! O Rishis! O Mothers! be you satisfied. Do you absolve me, about to enter upon the path of Renunciation³ from all debts⁴ (239).

Having thus prayed to be free from all debts, bowing again and again, and being thus freed of all debts, he should perform his own funeral rites⁵ (240). The father and paternal grandfather and great-grandfather are one's Self. In offering, therefore, the individual Self to the Supreme Spirit, he who is wise should perform his own funeral rites (241). O Devi! sitting with his face to the North, and invoking the spirits of his ancestors⁶ upon the seats which he has prepared for them, he should, after doing them homage, offer the funeral cakes⁷ (242). In so offering he should spread Kusha grass with the ends towards the East,⁸

Then the religious Preceptor⁶ should draw a Mandala⁷ on the altar of a shape in accordance with the form of worship of the Ishta-devatā of the Sādhaka,⁸ and then place the jar on the altar and commence worship (246). Then the Guru, possessed of Brahma knowledge, should meditate upon and worship the Supreme Spirit in the manner prescribed by Shambhu, and place fire on the altar (247). O Crown Lock! Daughter of Brahman! thou art an ascetic⁵ in the form of hair. I am now giving there a place in the Purifying One.⁶ Depart, O Devī! I make obeisance to thee (259).

make the Homa¹ sacrifice of that lock of hair in the sanctified fire (260). The Pitris, Devas, and Devarshis,² as also all acts performed in the worldly stage of life,³ reside in that lock and have it as their support (261). Therefore the man who renounces the crown-lock and sacred thread after the performance of the oblation becomes one with Brahman (262). The twice-born enter the stage of an ascetic by renunciation of the crown-lock and sacred thread, and the Shūdras and Sāmānyas by the renunciation of the crown-lock⁴ only (263). Then he whose crown-lock and sacred thread have been thus removed should make obeisance to the Guru, laying himself full length upon the ground. The Guru should then raise his disciple and say into his right ear: "O wise one! Thou art That.⁵ Think within thyself 'I am He'⁶ and 'He is I'.⁷ Free from all attachments⁸ and sense of Self,⁹ do thou go as thou pleasest as moved thereto by thy nature"¹⁰ (264-265). The Guru, knower of the Brahman, should then, after removal of the jar and the fire, bend his head in obeisance to the disciple, recognizing in him, his own very Self¹¹ (266), and say:

The worshippers of the Brahma-Mantra, who know the Tattva and have conquered themselves, attain the stage of an ascetic by cutting off the crown-lock with their own Mantra² (268). What need is there of sacrificial³ or funeral⁴ rites or ritual worship⁴ for those purified by divine knowledge.⁵ For those, who act as they please, there is no fault⁶ (269). The disciple, devoid of all contraries,⁷ of tranquil mind because desireless, may, as he pleases, roam the earth, the visible image of Brahman (270). He will think of everything, from Brahmā to a blade of grass, as the form of the Brahman,⁸ and, meditating upon the Supreme in himself, will forget all name and form (271). Homeless, merciful, fearless, devoid of attachment, claiming nothing as his own, devoid of egoism, the ascetic will move about the earth (272). He is free of all injunctions and prohibitions. He shall not strive to attain what he has not, nor to protect what he has. He knows himself. He is equally unaffected by either joy or sorrow. He is calm, the conqueror of himself, and free from all desires (273). His soul is untroubled even in sorrow, desireless even in prosperity. He is ever joyful, pure, calm, independent and unperturbed. He will hurt no living thing, but will be ever devoted to the good of all being. He is free from anger and fear, with his senses under control and without desire. He strives not for the preservation of his body. He is not obsessed by any longing (274-275). He will be free from grief and resentment, equal to friend and foe, patient in the endurance of cold and heat, and to him both honour and disgrace are one and the same (276). He is the same in good or evil fortune, pleased with whatsoever, without effort, he may obtain.¹ He is beyond the three attributes,² and ignorance,³ free of covetousness, and (wealth) he will hoard not⁴ (277). He will be happy in the knowledge that, as the unreal universe, which is not Sat, has its support in Sat or the Truth,⁵ so the body has the Spirit as its support (278). He attains Liberation by the realization that the Spirit is completely detached from the organs of sense which function each its own way, and is the witness of that which is done⁶ (279).

² Nis-traigunya. Tri-guna, the three qualities of manifested being, are Sattva, Rajas, Tamas. The state of possession of the three qualities is Traigunya, which is Sakāma and that of freedom from them Nis-traigunya.

⁴ Asanchayī. A Sanshayī is a person who makes provision for the uncertainty of the future not necessarily in a bad sense. An Asanchayī who leaves the future to take care of itself. So Jesus said "Take no heed for the morrow" which is Yoga practice.

⁵ Satya—that is, the Supreme spirit = Paramātmā. Ātmā = Self or Spirit. "Supported" (Upāshritya) for the Self is the support of all (Āshraya). In it which is the eternally enduring Sat are the changing passing forms which are Asat. The term unreal leads to misconception. Asat is the contrary of Sat, and Sat is that which endures. As to "Reality" see "World as Power: Reality" (Ganesh & Co, Madras) by the author.

⁶ The intelligent man becomes aware that his spirit is distinct from the body, and in no way dependent on it (see Chapter VIII, Part XII,

The ascetic should not touch any metal, and should avoid calumny, untruth, jealousy, all dallying with woman, and all discharge of seed (280). He should regard with an equal eye worms, men, and Devas. The ascetic wanderer should know that Brahman is in everything that is done (281). He should eat without making any distinction as to the fitness of place, time, or person, food whether it comes from a Vipra¹ or Chandāla,² or from any other source or person whatsoever (282). The ascetic, though passing his time as he pleases, should study the Scriptures relating to the Self³ and in meditation upon the nature of That⁴ (283). The corpse of an ascetic should on no account be cremated. It should be worshipped with scents and flowers, and then either buried or sunk into water (284). O Devī! the inclination of those men who have not attained union with the Supreme Spirit,⁵ and who ever seek after enjoyment, is by nature turned towards the path of action⁶ (285).

They remain attached to the practice of meditation, ritual worship, and recitation. Let them who are strong in their faith therein know that to be the best for them (286). It is on account of them⁷ that I have spoken of various rites for the purification of the heart, and have with the same object devised many names and of the Chhāndogya Upanishad). And so, according to the Vedānta—Ātmā sāksī chetaḥ kevalo nirgunashcha—"the Spirit is the one, intelligent, attributeless witness," and to its permanency is due, to use Kantian phraseology, the cause of "the synthetic unity of apperception".

forms¹ (287). O Devī! without knowledge of the Brahman and the abandonment of all action, man cannot attain Liberation, even though he performed countless such acts of worship² (288). The householder should consider the Kula ascetic, possessed of divine knowledge, to be the visible Nārāyaṇa³ in the form of man, and should worship Him as such (289). By the mere sight of one who has subdued his passions⁴ a man is freed of all his sins, and earns that merit which he obtains by journeying to places of pilgrimage, the giving of alms, and the performance of all vows, penances, and sacrifices (290).

End of the Eighth Chapter entitled "The Dharma and Customs of the Castes and Āshramas."

² Because, as stated, only non-dual knowledge liberates, and duality is inherent in ceremonial worship.

CHAPTER IX

THE TEN SACRAMENTS

THE Adorable Sadāshiva said :

O Virtuous One !¹ I have spoken to Thee of the custom and religious duties appropriate to the different castes² and stages of life.³ Do thou now listen whilst I tell Thee of the purificatory rites⁴ of the different castes (1). Without such rites, O Devī ! the body is not purified, and he who is not purified may not perform the ceremonies relating to the Devas and the Pitris⁵ (2). Therefore it is that men of every caste, commencing with the Vipras,⁶ who desire their welfare in this life and hereafter, should, in all things and with care, perform the purificatory rites⁷ which have been ordained for their respective castes (3).

The ten purificatory ceremonies⁷ are those relating to conception,⁸ pregnancy,⁹ and birth¹⁰ of the child ; the giving

The Shūdras and mixed⁷ castes have no sacred thread, and but nine purificatory ceremonies; for the twice-born classes there are ten (5). O Beautiful Lady;⁸ all observances, whether they be daily,⁹ occasional,¹⁰ or voluntary,¹¹ should be performed according to the injunctions of Shambhu¹² (6). O Dear One! I have already, in My form as Brahmā, spoken of the rules appropriate to the purificatory and other observances (7), and of the Mantras appropriate to the various purificatory and other observances, according to the differences in caste (8).

In the Satya, Tretā, and Dvāpara Ages,¹³ the Mantras, O Kālikā! were in their application preceded by the Pranava¹⁴ (9); but in the Kali Age, O Supreme Devī! the decree of Shāṅkara is that man do perform all rites with the aid of the same Mantras, but preceded by the Māyā Bija¹⁵ (10). All Mantras in the Nigamas,¹⁶ Āgamas,¹⁶ Tantras,¹⁶ Saṁhitās¹⁶ and Vedas, have been spoken by Me.

Their employment,¹ however, varies according to the Ages (11). For the benefit of men of the Kali Age, men bereft of energy and dependent for existence on the food they eat, the Kula doctrine, O Auspicious One! is given (12).

I will now speak to The in brief of the purificatory and other rites, suitable for the weak men of the Kali Age, whose minds are incapable of continued effort (13). Kushandikā² precedes all auspicious ceremonies. I shall, therefore, O Adored of the Devas! speak firstly of it. Do Thou listen (14). In a clean and pleasant spot, free from husks and charcoal,³ let the wise one make a Square,⁴ the sides of which are of one cubit's length (15). Then draw in it three lines from the West to East (of the Square). Let him then sprinkle water over them, uttering meanwhile the Kūrcha⁵ Bija. Then Fire should be brought to the accompaniment of the Vahni Bija⁶ (16). The Fire, when so brought, should be placed by the side of the Square the Sādhaka mentally saying the Vāgbhava Bija⁷ (17). Then, taking up a piece of burning wood with the right hand from the Fire, he should put it aside as the share of the Rākshasas,⁸ saying:

The worshipper, lifting up the consecrated Fire with both hands, should place it in front of him on the three lines (above mentioned), inwardly reciting the while the Māyā Bija ¹ before the Vyāhritis (19). Grass and wood should then be thrown upon the Fire to make it blaze, and two pieces of wood should be smeared with ghee and offered as an oblation to it. Thereafter Fire ² should be named according to the object of the rite,³ and then meditated upon as follows (20):

DHYĀNA

Ruddily effulgent like the young Sun, with seven tongues and two crowned heads of matted hair, seated on a goat, and holding, in his hand his weapon Shakti ⁴ (21).

Having so meditated upon the Carrier of oblations,⁵ He should be thus invoked with joined palms (22).

and protect the sacrifice. I make obeisance to Thee: Svahā (23).

Having thus invoked Him, the worshipper should say, "O Fire! this is Thy place,"¹ and then worship Him, with appropriate offerings. He should then worship the seven licking Tongues² of Fire: Kālī,³ Karālī,⁴ Manojavā,⁵ Sulo-hita,⁶ Sudhūmra-varnā,⁷ Sphulinginī,⁸ and Vishvanirūpini,⁹ (24-25). Then, O Great Devī! the sides of the Fire should be thrice sprinkled with water from the hand, beginning from the East and ending at the North (26). Then the sides of the Fire, from the South to the North, should be thrice sprinkled with water, and following that the articles of sacrifice should be thrice sprinkled (27). Then spread Kusha grass on the sides of the square, beginning with the East and ending with the North. The ends of the blades of grass on the North should be turned towards the North, and the rest of the grass should be placed with its ends towards the East (28). The worshipper should then proceed to the seat placed for the Brahmā,¹⁰ keeping the Fire on his right, and, picking up with his left thumb and little

MANTRA

Hrim : Parāvasu be expelled !¹ (29-30).

(The performer of the sacrifice should then say to the Brahmā):

O Brahman !² Lord of Sacrifices ! be thou seated here. This seat is made for thee.

The Brahmā, saying " I sit," should then sit down, with his face turned towards the North (31).

After worshipping the Brahmā with scent, flowers, and the other articles of worship, let him be supplicated thus (32):

MANTRA

O Lord of Sacrifices ! protect the sacrifice. O Brihaspati !³ protect this sacrifice. Protect me also, the performer of this sacrifice. O Witness of all acts !⁴ I bow to thee (33).⁴

¹ Nirastah Parāvasuh. Parāvasu is the Hotā or Sacrificial priest of the Asuras. His presence is an obstruction. See Shatapatha Br., 1.5.1-23. The Bhāshya-kāra Guna-vishnu says that this is the place near the sacrificial Fire where preside the Rākshasas, enemies of the sacrificial rite.

² The Priests, or Ritviks, were in Vedic times divided into four classes—Adhvaryu, Hotā, Udgātā, and Brahmā. The first and second performed the rites, the third sang the hymns, and the fourth (who was a Master of the Shāstras) superintended and rectified any errors, and averted any ill-effects. He was known as Brahmā.

³ Guru of the Devas said in praise of Brahmā.

⁴ Karmasākshin. This is a request to the Brahmā to see that the ritual be correctly performed.

Brahmā should then say, "I protect," and if there is no Brahmā present, then the performer of the sacrifice should, for the success of the sacrifice, make an image with Darbha grass of the Vipra,¹ and himself say this (34). The worshipper should then invoke the Brahmā, saying, "O Brahman, come here, come here!" and, after doing honour to him by offering water for washing his feet and the like,² let him supplicate him, saying, "So long as this sacrifice be not concluded, do Thou deign to remain here," and then make obeisance to him (35). He should then sprinkle the space between the North-East corner³ of the fire and the seat of Brahmā three times with water taken in his hand, and should thereafter sprinkle the fire also three times, and then, returning the way he went, take his own seat. Let him then spread on the North side of the Square some Darbha grass with the ends of the blades towards the North (36-37). He should then place thereon the articles necessary for the sacrifice, such as the vessel⁴ (filled with water) for sprinkling, and the vessel⁵ containing ghee, sacrificial fuel,⁶ and Kusha grass. He should also place the sacrificial ladle⁷ and spoon⁸ on the Darbha grass, and purify them respectively. Having performed these (preliminary) rites,⁴ the wise one should proceed to that prescribed for the Homa sacrifice which is to be performed (44). The offering of oblations (as above described, commencing with the three offerings made to Vishnu and ending with the offering to Agni and Soma), is called Dhārā Homa (45).

When making any offering, both the Deva, to whom the same is being made, and the thing offered should be mentioned, and upon the conclusion of the principal rite the priest should perform the *Svishti-krit*⁵ Homa (46). O Beautiful One! in the Kali Age there is no Prāyashchitta Homa.⁶ The object thereof is attained by Svishti-krit and *Vyāhriti*⁷ Homas (47). O Devī! (for Svishti-krit Homa) ghee should be taken in manner⁸ above mentioned, and, whilst mentally reciting⁹ the name of Brahmā, oblation should be offered with the following :

² Hrīng Somāya Namaḥ.

⁴ That is, offering of Āhuti.

⁵ Su-ishti-krit = good-sacrifice-making, or that which makes the sacrifice good or faultless. This Homa is done to make the sacrifice Samīchīna that is free from defect. The following is an example of the Mantra: Hrīng Viśnave Svāhā: havir idam Viśnave (Hring to Vishnu Svāhā: this offering is to Vishnu). The principal rite is called Prakritakarma.

⁶ Prāyashchitta Homa is an expiatory oblation.

⁷ Vyāhriti—Bhūh, Bhuvah, and Svah (see p. 179, note 9).

⁸ That is, with the Sruv and Sruk (Bhārati).

⁹ Literally, remembering.

MANTRA

Hrīm̐ : O Deva of the Devas ! do Thou make faultless any shortcomings that there may be in this rite, and anything done needlessly, whether by negligence or mistake : Svāhā (48-49).

Then oblation should be offered to Fire, thus :

MANTRA

Hrīm̐ : O Fire ! Thou art the Purificator¹ of all things. Thou makest all sacrifices propitious,² and art the Lord of all. Thou art the Witness of all sacrificial rites, and the Insurer of their success. Do Thou fulfil all my desires : Svāhā (50).

The sacrificing priest, having thus concluded the Svishti-krit Homa, should thus (pray to the Supreme Brahman) :

MANTRA

O Supreme Brahman ! O Omnipresent One ! for the removal of the effects of whatsoever has been improperly done in this sacrifice, and for the success of the sacrifice, I am making this Vyāhriti Homa.

Saying this, he should offer three oblations with the three the wise priest should, jointly with the giver of the sacrifice, offer the Complete Oblation³ (51-53). If the latter has performed the sacrifice without a priest, he should offer the oblation himself. This is the rule in *Abhisheka*⁴ and other observances (54). The Mantra for the Complete Oblation⁵ is—

MANTRA

Hrīm : O Lord of Sacrifice ! may this sacrifice of mine be complete. May all the Devatās of sacrifices be pleased and grant that which is desired :⁶ Svāhā (55).

The wise one⁷ should then, with the giver of the sacrifice, stand up, and, with a well-controlled mind, offer oblations with fruit and pān leaves, uttering the while the aforesaid Mantra (56).

² This is to all three planes.

³ Pūrnāhuti. The last offering (āhuti) which completes the sacrifice (Yagna).

⁴ Abhisheka—primarily means bathing, then sprinkling and initiating : here initiatory ceremonies.

⁵ Pūrnāhuti.

⁷ Matimān : by this the Yajna-sādhaka is meant (Bhārati) : the same meaning is given for learned one (Vidvān) in next verse.

The learned one should, after offering the Complete Oblation, perform Shānti-karma.¹ Taking water from the sprinkling vessel, he should with Kusha grass sprinkle it over the heads of the persons present (57), reciting the

MANTRA

May the water be every friendly to me, may Water be like a medicament to me, may Water preserve me always; Water is Nārāyana² Himself (58). O Waters! as you grant happiness so do you make sure our food.³

Having sprinkled water over the heads of those present with these two Mantras, a few drops of this water should be sprinkled on the ground (59).

MANTRA

To those who are ever hostile to me, and to those to whom we are ever hostile, may Water be their enemy and engulf them (60).

Sprinkling a few drops of water in the North-East⁴ corner the while repeating the above-mentioned Mantra, the Kusha grass should be put away, and with joined palms supplication should be made to the Carrier of Oblations⁵ as follows (61):

¹ Shānti-karma is that which is done at the end of the rite: the sprinkling of the assembly, the Mantras, the saying of "peace," "peace," "peace" (Shānti), etc. He who recites the Shānti Mantra does so for the benefit of the persons present, over whose heads he sprinkles the water (asperges).

O Carrier of Oblations! do Thou grant unto me understanding,¹ knowledge,² strength, intelligence,³ wisdom,⁴ faith, fame, fortune, health, energy, and long life⁵ (62).

After saying this Mantra an oblation of curds should be made and the fire should be moved to the South⁸ (65).

Thereafter the giver of the sacrifice should, as his means allow, offer a gift ³ for the success of the sacrifice ⁴ and for the Kushandikā rite (68-69).

I have spoken to Thee, O Devī! of Kushandikā, which is the groundwork of all auspicious ceremonies, and which all Kula worshippers should with care perform at the commencement thereof (70).

O Auspicious One! I will now speak to Thee of Charu-karma, in order to insure that rites done in those families, in which the cooking of Charu ⁵ is a traditional practice in the performance of all rites, may be attended with success ⁶ (71). The pot for cooking Charu should be made of either copper or mud (72). In the first place, the articles should be consecrated according to the rules prescribed in Kushandikā, and then the pot of Charu should be placed in front of the worshipper (73). After careful examination to see that it is without holes and of a good surface, a blade of Kusha grass¹ of the length of a Prādesha² should be put in the pot (74). The rice should be placed near the Square,³ and then, O Adored of the Devas! the names of such of the Devatās as are to be worshipped in each particular ceremony should be uttered in the dative case, followed by the words "to please Thee,"⁴ and then "I take," "I place in the pot," and "I put water in,"⁵ and then put four handfuls of rice in the name of each Devatā in the pot, and pour water over it (75-77). O Virtuous One!⁶ milk and sugar should be added thereto, as is done in cooking. The whole should then be well and carefully cooked over the consecrated fire (78). And when he is satisfied that it is well cooked and soft, the sacrificial ladle, filled with ghee, should be let into it (70). Thereafter, placing the pot on Kusha grass on the northern side of the Fire, and adding ghee to the Charu three times, the pot should be covered with blades of Kusha grass (80). Then, putting a little ghee into the sacrificial spoon, a little Charu should be taken from the pot. With it Jānu Homa⁷ is done (81). Then after doing Dhārā Homa,⁸ oblations should be made with Completing the principal Homa after performance of Svishti-krit Homa,¹ expiatory Homa² should be performed, and the rite thus completed (83). In the sacramental³ and consecratory⁴ ritual this is the method to be observed. In all auspicious ceremonies it should be followed for the complete success thereof (84).

Now, O Mahāmāyā!⁵ I will speak of Garbhādhāna⁶ and other rites. I will speak of them in their order, beginning with Ritusamskāra.⁷ Do Thou listen (85).

After performing his daily duties and purifying himself, (the priest) should worship the five Deities—Brahmā, Durgā, Ganesha, the Grahas,⁸ and the Dikpālas⁹ (86). They should be worshipped in the jars¹⁰ on the East side of the square, and then the sixteen *Mātrikās*¹¹—namely, Gaurī and others—should be worshipped in their order (87). The sixteen Mātrikās are Gaurī, Padmā, Shachī, Medha, Sāvitrī, Vijayā, Jayā, Deva-senā, Svadhā, Svāhā, Shānti, Pushti, Having thus invoked the Mothers and worshipped them to the best of his powers, the priest should make five or seven marks with vermilion and sandal paste on the wall, at the height of his navel, and within the space of a Prādesha⁷ (91).

The wise one should then, whilst breathing the three Bijas—Klīm, Hrīm, and Shrīm—pour an unbroken stream of ghee from each of the said marks, and there worship the Deva Vasu⁸ (92). The wise man, having thus made the Vasu-dhāra⁹ according to the directions which I have given, and having made the Square¹⁰ and placed the Fire thereupon, and consecrated the articles requisite for Homa,

This Mantra is in Bṛihadāraṇyaka Upanishad, Adhyāya VI, Brāhmaṇa IV, verse 21, and the Mantra in verse 98 follows this—the two, in fact, make one Mantra. Garbhādhāna is ordinarily performed by the husband after Ritusnāna. The Bhavadeva Paddhati gives the meaning of the first Mantra as follows: O wife! may Vāsudeva make thy Yoni capable of bearing (Prasava-samarthāṅ karotu) may Tvashtā make the forms (Rūpāni) manifest (Pingshatu=Prakāśhayatu). May Sinibālī¹ give support to thy womb, may Sarasvatī² give support to thy womb, may the two Ashvins,³ who wear garlands of lotuses, give support to thy womb⁴ (98).

Meditating upon the Devīs Sinibālī and Sarasvatī and the two Ashvins, excellent oblations should be offered with the above Mantra, followed by Svāhā (99). Then oblation should be offered to the sanctified Fire, meditating upon Sūrya⁵ and Vishnu with the

And, uttering the following :

Thereupon he should bring the ceremony to a close by making Svishti-krit oblations and expiatory rites⁵ (104-105). Or the wife and husband may be purified by worshipping Gaurī and Shangkara in the evening, and by giving oblations to Sun (106).

After the performance of his daily duties, the husband should worship the five Devas⁴ and the heavenly Mothers, Gaurī and others,⁵ and should make the Vasudhārā⁶ (118).

The wife should then be led by women whose husbands and children are living⁴ to the place of sacrifice, and the husband should there seat her on his left and proceed to perform Charu-Homa (123).

Saying this Mantra, the ceremony should be completed with *Svishti-krit Homa*² and other rites (137-138). Immediately after the birth of the son the wise one should look upon his face and present him with a piece of gold, and then in another room perform *Dhārā Homa*³ in the manner already described (139). He should then offer five oblations to Agni, Indra, Prajāpati,⁴ the Vishvadevas,⁵ and Brahmā (140).

The father should thereafter mix equal quantities of honey and ghee in a bell-metal⁶ cup, and, doing Japa of the *Vāgbhava Bija*⁷ over it a hundred times, made the child swallow it (141). It should be put into the child's mouth with the fourth finger of the right hand, with the following:

The Smṛiti says in Ishti-shrāddha, Kratu and Dakṣha; in Nāndi-mukha, Satya and Vasu; in Naimittika, Kāla and Kāma; in Kāmaja, Dhūri and Lochana; and in Pārvana, Puru-ravas and Mādrava are mentioned. From the above it will be seen that Dhūri and Lochana of the Smṛiti do not occur in the first list, which mentions Dhṛiti and Kuru. Some say they are twelve, thus avoiding the difficulty. The Amarakośha says that the Vishva-devas are a class of Gana-devatās, and the Shabda-Kalpa-Druma under this head quotes Jatā-dhara, who gives the Ādityas (12 in number), the Vishva-devas (10), the Vasus (8), the Tushitas (86), the Bhāsvaras (64), the Vāyus (49), the Mahārājikas (220), the Sādhyas (12), and the Rudras (11).

Child, may thy life, vitality,¹ strength, and intelligence ever increase (142).

After performing this rite for the longevity of the child, the father should give him a secret name, by which at the time of the investiture with the sacred thread he should be called (143). The father should then finish the *Jāta-karma*² by the performance of the usual expiatory and other rites, and then the midwife should with firmness cut the umbilical cord (144). The period of uncleanness³ commences only after the cord is cut; therefore all rites relating to the Devas and the *Pitris*⁴ should be performed before the cord is cut (145). If a daughter is born, all the acts as above indicated are to be performed, but the Mantras are not to be said. In the sixth or eighth month the boy should be given the name by which he is usually known (146). At the time of naming of the child the mother should, after bathing him and dressing him in two pieces of fine cloth, come to and place him by the side of her husband, with his face towards the East (147). The father should thereupon sprinkle the head of the child with water taken up upon blades of Kusha grass and gold, saying at the time the following:

The wise one should sprinkle water over the child, with the three preceding Mantras, and then, as aforesaid consecrate the fire and perform the rites leading up to Dhārā Homa in the manner already described, and then should offer five oblations (153). He should make the oblation to Agni, then to Vāsava,⁶ then to Prajāpati,⁷ then to the Vishva-Devas,⁸ and then to Brahmā, into Vahni under his name of Pārthiva (154).

Then, taking the son in his lap, the wise father should speak into his right ear an auspicious name¹—one that is short, and that can easily be pronounced (155). After whispering the name three times into the son's ear, he should inform the Brāhmanas who are present, of it, and then conclude the ceremony with Svishṭikrit Homa and the other concluding rites (156)².

For a daughter there is no Nishkramana, nor is Brid-dhi Shrāddha necessary. The wise man performs the naming, the giving of the first rice, and tonsure of a daughter without any Mantra (157).

In the fourth or sixth month after birth, the Nishkramana Saṁskāra ceremony of the son should be performed (158).

After performing his daily duties, the father should, after bathing, worship Ganesha, and then bathe and adorn his son with clothes and jewels, and, placing him in front of himself, pronounce the following (159).

MANTRA

Brahmā, Vishnu, Shiva, Durgā, Ganesha, Bhāskara³ Indra, Vāyu, Kuvera, Varuna, Agni, and Brihaspati:⁴ May They always be propitious to this child, and may They always protect him when he goes forth (from the house) (160).

Having said this, he should take the child in his arms, and, preceded by vocal and instrumental music, and surrounded by his rejoicing kinsmen, take the son out of

MANTRA

Om: Yonder is the Eye (of Heaven) who excels even Shukra¹ in his effulgence, who is beneficent even to the Devas. May we see him a hundred years. May we live a hundred years² (163).

Having shown the Sun to his child, the father should return to his own house, and, after making offering³ to the Sun, feast his kinsmen (164).

O Shivā! in the sixth or eighth month either the father's brother or the father himself should give the first rice to the child⁴ (165). After worshipping the Devas and purifying fire as aforementioned, and duly performing the ceremonies leading to Dhārā Homa, the father should make five oblations into Fire, under his name of Shuchi, to each of the following Devas: He should make the oblations first to Agni, next to Vāsava, after him to Prajāpati,⁵ then to the Vishva-devas, and then the fifth Āhuti to Brahmā (166-168). He should then meditate upon the Devī Annadā,⁶ and, after giving Her five oblations in Fire, place the son, adorned with clothes and jewels, in his lap, and give him

The Pāyasa should be put into the child's mouth five times, uttering the Mantras for making oblations to the five vital airs²; and after that a little rice and curry should be put into the child's mouth (170). The ceremony should be brought to a close by the blowing of conches and horns³ and other music, and by performing the concluding expiatory rite.⁴

I have done speaking of the rice-eating ceremony. I shall now speak of the tonsure ceremony.⁵ Do Thou listen (171).

In the third or fifth year, according to the custom in the family, the tonsure of the boy should be performed for the success of the future sacramental rites⁶ of the boy (172). The wise father should, after concluding the preliminary rites beginning with the worship of the Devas and leading up to Dārā Homa, place on the north side of the Fire, called Satya, a mud platter filled with cow-dung, tila-seeds, and wheat, also a little lukewarm water and a keen-edged razor (173-174).

The father should place the son on his mother's lap, the mother sitting on her husband's left, and, after saying the Varuna Bija⁷ ten times over the water, rub the hair of the boy's head with lukewarm water. He should then tie the hair with two blades of Kusha grass

Then, saying the Māyā and Lakṣmī Bijas ² three times, he should cut off the knot with the steel razor and place it in the hands of the child's mother (177). The boy's mother should then take it with both hands and place it in the platter containing the cow-dung, and the father should then say to the barber: "Barber, do thou at thine ease proceed with the shaving of the boy's hair, Svāhā." Then, looking at the barber, he should make three oblations, into Vahni ³ who is named Satya, to Prajāpati ⁴ (178-179). After the boy has been shaved by the barber he should be bathed and adorned with clothes and jewels, and placed near the fire on the left of his mother, and the father should, after performance of Svishti-krit Homa and the expiatory rites, ⁵ offer the Complete Oblation ⁶ (180-181). Then, uttering the following :

he should pierce the ears of the boy with gold or silver needles (182). He should then sprinkle the child with water, uttering the and, after performing Shānti Karma¹ and other rites, and making presents,² bring the ceremony to a close (183).

The sacramental rites from Garbhādhāna to Chūdākarana are common to all castes. But for Shūdras and Sāmānyas³ they must be performed without Mantras (184).

In the case of the birth of a daughter, all castes are to perform the rites without Mantras. In the case of a daughter there is no Nishkramana (185).

I will now speak of the Sacred Thread Ceremony⁴ of the twice-born classes, by which the twice-born become qualified for performing rites relating to the Devas and Pitris (186).

In the eighth year from conception, or the eighth year after birth, the boy should be invested with the sacred thread. After the sixteenth year the son should not be invested, and one so invested is disqualified for all rites (187).

The father versed in Shāstra should, after finishing his daily duties, worship the five Devas, as also the Mātris, Gaurī, and others, and make the Vasudhārā⁵ (188). He should thereafter perform Briddhi Shrāddha⁶ for the satisfaction of the Devas and Pitris,⁷ and perform the rites, ending with Dhārā Homa,⁸ as directed in the performance of Kushandikā⁹ (189).

The boy should early in the morning be given a little to eat; then his head, with the exception of the crown lock, should be shaved, and after that he should be well bathed and decked with jewels and silken clothes (190).

The boy should then be taken to the Chhāyā-mandapa¹ near Fire under his name of Samudbhava, and there made to sit on a clean seat to the left (of his father or Guru) (191). The Guru should say: "My son, do thou adopt Brahma-chārya."² The disciple should say respectfully: "I do adopt it" (192). The Preceptor should then with a cheerful mind give two pieces of Kāshāya³ cloth for the long life and strength of mind of the gentle boy (193). Then when the boy has put on the Kāshāya cloth, he should, without speaking, give him a knotted girdle⁴ made of three strings of Munja or Kusha grass (194). On that the boy should say, "Hrīng, may this auspicious girdle prove propitious"; and, saying this, and putting it round his waist, let him sit in silence before the Guru (195).

MANTRA

This sacrificial thread is very sacred; Brihaspati of old first wore it. Do thou wear this excellent white sacrificial thread which contributes to prolong life. May it be for thee strength and courage (196).

With this Mantra the boy should be given a sacrificial thread made of the skin of the black buck,⁵ as also a staff⁶

After the boy has viewed the Sun, the Guru should address him as follows: “My Son! place thy mind on my observances. I bestow upon thee my disposition.³ Do thou my child follow the observances with an undivided mind. May my word contribute to thy well-being” (200). After saying this, the Guru, touching the boy’s heart, should ask, “My Son! what is thy name?” and the boy should make reply: “. . . Sharmā,⁴ I bow to thee” (201). And to the question of the Guru, “Whose Brahma-chārī⁵ art thou?” the disciple will reverently answer: “I am thy Brahma-chārī” (202). The Guru should

I give thee to Prajāpati, to Savitri, to Varuna, to Prithivī, to the Vishva-devas,² and to all the Devas. May they all ever protect thee" (204).

The boy should thereafter go round the sacrificial fire and the preceptor, keeping both upon his right, and then resume his own seat (205). The Guru, O Beloved! should then, with his disciple touching him, offer five oblations into Fire named Samudbhava to Five Devas (206)—namely, Prajāpati,³ Shakra,⁴ Vishnu, Brahmā, and Shiva (207). When the oblations are offered into Fire, under his name of Samudbhava, the names of each of the Devas should be pronounced in the dative, preceded by Hring and followed by Svāhā. Where there is no Mantra mentioned, this method is to be followed in all cases (208). After this, oblation should be offered to Durgā, Mahālakṣmī, Sundarī, Bhuvaneshvarī, and to Indra and the other nine regents of the quarters,⁵ and Bhāskara⁶ and the eight planets (209). The name of each of these should be mentioned whilst the Prajāpati is sometimes invoked as the Creator, and sometimes as one of the thirty-three Rishis. It is also an epithet of the mental sons of Brahmā, who, according to Manu (i, 34), are Marīchi, Atri, Angiras, Pulastya, Pulaha, Kratu, Vashishtha, Prachetas or Daksha, Bhrigu, and Nārada. Some say that there are seven Prajāpatīs (the first seven), and others three Prajāpatīs (the last three).

offering of oblations is made. The wise Guru should then cover the boy with cloth, and ask him, who is desirous of attaining Brahma-chārya: "What is the Āshrama¹ thou desirest, my son! and what is thy heart's desire?" (210). The disciple should thereupon hold the feet of the Preceptor, and, with a reverent mind, say: "First instruct me in Brahma-vidyā,² and then in that of the householder" (211).

O Shivā! when the disciple in this manner has beseeched his Guru, the latter should three times whisper into his disciple's right ear the Pranava,³ which contains all the Mantras in itself, and should also utter the three Vyāhritis,⁴ as also the Sāvitrī⁵ (212). Sadhāshiva is its Rishi, the metre is Trishtup,⁶ the presiding Deva is Sāvitrī, and its object is the attainment of final Liberation (213). The Gāyatrī Mantra is:

² That is, the Gāyatrī Mantra.

⁴ Bhūh, Bhuvah, Svah.

⁵ The Gāyatrī Mantra (see post). The word Gāyatrī means that which saves the Gāyat (singer, reciter). It is called Sāvitrī, because the world is produced from It. Sū=bring forth. See Author's "Garland of letters".

⁶ A form of metre.

⁷ Om: Tat savitur varenyam bhargo devasya dhīmahi

Dhiyo yo nah prachodayāt: Om.

Bhāratī says that before doing Japa of the Gāyatrī, Rishi-nyasa should be done: on the head, to Sadāshiva the Rishi, obeisance; on the mouth, to the Metre Trishtup, obeisance; on the head, to Sāvitrī the presiding Devatā thereof, obeisance. The employment (Viniyoga) is for the attainment of Liberation.

The Guru should then explain the meaning of the Gāyatrī (214-215). By the Tāra,¹ which contains three letters—i.e., A, U, and M—the Paresha² is meant. He is the Protector, Destroyer, and Creator. He is the Deva³ Who is beyond (the manifestation of) Prakriti⁴ (216).

This Deva is the Spirit of the three worlds,⁵ containing in Himself the three qualities.⁶ By the three Vyāhritis,⁷ therefore, the all-pervading Brahman⁸ is expressed (217). He Who is indicated by the Pranava⁹ and the Vyāhritis is also known by the Sāvitrī¹⁰. Let us meditate upon the great inner Light,¹¹ of Savitā,¹² the Creator

³ Deva here means He in whom are the functions of illumination (Dipti) and the like, Who functions as Creator, Destroyer and Maintainer. Destroyer = Hartā = Samhāraka (derived from root Hri = to take). God does not destroy in our sense but He takes back the world which he has created (ibid.).

⁴ Prakriteh parah : Bhārati says that Para = Dūra (distant from) = Uttama, highest. That is, though Prakriti-svarūpa is Himself, He is beyond Her manifestation. Or as Shiva-Shakti are One and equal (in their Svarūpa) Para may mean "other aspect of or counterpart" of Shiva. The latter is one aspect and Prakriti or Shakti another aspect of the one Brahman.

O. Devī! the excellent Guru, having thus instructed the disciple, and explained to him the Divine Wisdom,⁶ should direct him in the duties of a householder (221). "My Son! do thou now discard the garments of a Brahmachārī,⁷ and honour the Devas and Pitris⁸ according to the way revealed by Shambhu"⁹ (222). "Conquer the senses, be truthful and devoted to the acquisition of Divine Knowledge and the study of the Vedas, and discharge the duties of a householder according to the rules prescribed in the Dharma Shāstras"⁵ (228).

Having thus instructed the disciple, the Guru should make him offer three oblations into Fire in the name of Samudbhava with the

He should then himself perform Svishti-krit Homa,¹ and then, O Gentle One! he should bring the investiture ceremony to a close by offering the Complete Oblation² (229-230).

Beloved! all nine ceremonies, from the *Jivaseka*³ to *Upanayana*⁴ are performed by the father alone.

The ceremony relating to marriage may be performed either by the father or by the bridegroom himself (231). The pious man should on the day of marriage perform his ablutions and finish his daily duties, and should then worship the five Devas and the Divine Mothers, Gauri and others, and making the Vasu-dhārā,⁵ do *Briddhi Shrāddha*⁶ (232). At night the betrothed bridegroom, preceded by vocal and instrumental music, should be brought to the *Chhāyā-mandapa*⁷ and seated on an excellent seat (223). The bridegroom should sit⁸ facing the East,⁹ and the giver of the bride should face the west, and the latter, after rinsing his mouth, should, with the assisting Brāhmanas, ask for the words "Svasti" and "Riddhi"¹⁰ (234).

⁹ Ordinarily a giver sits with face to East, and the person to whom the gift is given sits with his face to the North. But in the case of the gift of the bride in marriage the rule is as in the text.

¹⁰ i.e., one party says, Svasti-vachana ("Be it well"), to which the others reply Ridhyatām ("May it be well done"): words of benediction and prosperity. The giver of the bride first asks for Punyāha-vachana—that is, he calls upon those present to declare that the time is auspicious. Upon their so declaring, the giver then asks for Riddhi-vachana—that is, he calls upon them to express their wish that the marriage

The giver of the bride should ask after the bridegroom's welfare, and ask also his permission to honour him, and upon receiving his answer should honour him by the offer of water for his feet and the like ¹ (235), and saying, "I give this to you," ² let him give the bridegroom the gifts. The water ³ should be given at the feet and the oblation ⁴ at the head (236). Articles for the rinsing of the mouth should be offered at the mouth, and then scents, garlands, two pieces of good cloth, beautiful ornaments and gems, and a sacred thread should be given to the bridegroom (237). The giver should make Madhuparka by mixing together curd, ghee, and honey in a bell-metal cup, and place it in the hand of the bridegroom with the words, "I give you" (238). The bridegroom, after taking it, should place the cup in his left hand, and, dipping the thumb and ring fingers of his right hand into the Madhuparka, should smell it five times, reciting meanwhile the Prānāhuti Mantra, ⁵ and then place the cup on his north. Having offered the Madhuparka, the bridegroom should be made to rinse his mouth (239-240).

The giver of the daughter should then, holding Dūrvā- and Akshata, ⁶ touch the right knee of the bridegroom with his hand, and then, first meditating on Vishnu and saying may prove prosperous. On their saying, "May it be prosperous," the giver lastly asks them to say the word of benediction (Svasti-vachana, "Be it well"). The following Mantra is then recited: "May Indra who listens to the wise, bless us. May Pushā the all-knowing bless us. May Tārکشya (Aruna), the fellow of whose chariot-wheel is ever unbroken, bless us. May Brihaspati bless us; Ong Svasti, Ong Svasti, Ong Svasti."

Then he says the bride's name and the names of her ancestors, their Gotra, and so forth; and he should then say: "I honour thee with the object of giving her to thee in Brāhma marriage" (241-244).⁸

³ Each half of a lunar month is divided into fifteen Tithis, or lunar days.

⁷ As follows: The great-grandson of A, the grandson of B, the son of C, D, him I honour. The Gotra and Pravara should be mentioned.

⁸ Thus: I, A (the giver), give to thee, B (the bridegroom), the great-grandson of C of W Gotra and X Pravara, the grandson of D of W Gotra and X Pravara, the son of E of W gotra and X Pravara, F. I give to thee, (name of bride) of Y Gotra and Z Pravara, the great-granddaughter of G of Y Gotra and Z Pravara, the granddaughter of N of Y Gotra and Z Pravara, the daughter of I of Y Gotra and Z Pravara in Brāhma marriage.

The bridegroom should then say: "I am honoured." The giver upon this should say, "Perform the ordained marriage rites," and the bridegroom should then say: "I will do it to the best of my knowledge" (245). The bride, adorned with beautiful clothes and jewels, and covered with another piece of cloth, should then be brought and placed in front of the bridegroom (246). The giver of the bride should once again show his respect to the bridegroom by the present of clothes and ornaments, and join the right hand of the bridegroom with that of the bride (247). He should place in their joined hands five gems or a fruit and a pan-leaf, and having saluted the bride, should consign her to his hands (248). At the time of giving the bride the giver should, as before, mention his name in the nominative case, and should state his wish,¹ and should also mention the names of the three ancestors of the bridegroom, with their Gotras, all in the possessive case, as before.

He should then mention the name of the bridegroom in the dative singular, and then the names of the three ancestors of the bride, with their Gotras, etc., in the possessive case. At the time of mentioning the bride's name in the objective singular he should say after that, "The honoured, adorned, clothed, and Prajāpati-devatāka,"² and saying, "to thee I give," he should give away the bride. The bridegroom should, by saying "Svasti,"³ agree to take her as his wife (249-251). Let the giver then say, "In Dharma,⁴ in Artha,⁵ in Kāma,⁶ thou should be with thy wife"; and the bridegroom should reply, saying, "So I shall," and then recite the praise of Kāma¹ (252).

MANTRA

It is Kāma who gives and Kāma who accepts. It is Kāma who has taken the Kāminī² for the satisfaction of Kāma. Prompted by Kāma, I take thee. May both our Kāma³ be fulfilled⁴ (253).

The giver should then, addressing the son-in-law and the daughter, say: "May, by the grace of Prajāpati, the desire of you both be accomplished. May you two fare well. Do you two together perform the religious observances"⁵ (254). Then both the bride and bridegroom, to the accompaniment of music and blowing of conch-shells, should be covered with the cloth, so that they may have their first auspicious glance at one another (255). Then gold and jewels, according to the giver's means, should be offered to the son-in-law as presents. The giver should then think to himself that the ceremony has been faultlessly done⁶ (256). The bridegroom either, on the same night or the day following, should establish fire, according to the rules of *Kushandikā*⁷ (257).

³ Desire of Bride and Bridegroom.

⁴ That is, the giver has expressed his desire or wish (Kāma). The bridegroom desires and, prompted by desire for Dharma Artha, takes the Kāminī, which literally means a passionate, and then any, woman. It is the Kāma or wish of the father to give and the Kāma of the bridegroom is to accept.

⁵ Literally, "Protect the Dharma," by which is meant "Perform pious and religious acts".

⁷ Vide p. 269, verse 70.

The fire that is made in this Kushandikā is called Yojaka,¹ and the Charu ² which is cooked is called Prājāpatya.³ After performing Dhārā Homa ⁴ in the fire, the bridegroom should offer five oblations (258). The oblation should, after meditation upon Shiva, Durgā, Brahmā, Vishnu, and the Carrier of Thunder,⁵ be made to them one after the other, singly, in the sanctified fire (259). Taking both his wife's hands, the husband should say: "I take thy hands O fortunate one!"⁶ Do thou be devoted to the Guru and the Devatās, and duly perform thy household duties according to the religious precepts" (260). The wife should then, with ghee given by the husband, and fried paddy⁷ given by her brother, make four oblations in the name of Prajāpati (261). The husband should then rise from his seat with his wife and go round the Fire with her and offer oblation to Durgā and Shiva, Ramā and Vishnu, Brahmī and Brahmā, three times to each couple (262).

Then, without reciting any Mantra, the bride should step on a stone,⁸ and, standing thereon, the bride should take seven steps. If the Kushandikā ⁹ ceremony is performed at night, the bride and bridegroom, surrounded by the ladies present, should gaze upon the stars Dhruva and Arundhatī¹ (263). Returning to their seats and seated thereon, the bridegroom should bring the ceremony to a close by performing Svishti-krit Homa and offering Complete Oblation² (264). The Brāhma marriage, according to Kula-dharma, in order to be faultless, should take place with a girl of the same caste as the husband, but she should not be of the same Gotra,³ nor should she be a *Sapindā*⁴ (265). The wife married according to Brāhma rites is the Queen of the house, and without her permission another wife should not be married according to those rites (266). O Kuleshvari! if the children of the Brāhma wife are living or any of her descendants be living, then the children of the Shaiva⁵ wife shall not inherit (267).

O Parameshvari! the Shaiva wife and her children are entitled to food and clothing from the heir of her Shaiva husband in proportion to the property of the latter (268). Shaiva marriage⁶ celebrated in the Chakra⁷ is of two kinds. One kind is terminated with the Chakra and the other is lifelong (269). At the time of the formation of the Chakra the Vira,⁸ surrounded by his friends, relatives, and fellow-worshippers, should, with a well-controlled mind, by mutual consent, perform the marriage ceremony (270). He should first of all submit their wishes, saying to the Bhairavis¹ and Viras¹ there assembled, "Approve our marriage according to Shaiva form" (271). The Vira should, after obtaining their permission, bow to the Supreme Kālikā, repeating the Mantra of seven letters (Kālikā Mantra)² one hundred and eight times (272).

O Shivā! he should then say to the woman: "O Devi! accept me as thy husband with a guileless heart." (273).

O Queen of the Devas! the Kaula bride should then honour her beloved with scents, flowers, and sundried rice,³ and with trust place her own hands on his (274). The Lord of the Chakra should then sprinkle them with the following Mantra, and the Kaulas, seated in the Chakra, should approve and say: "It is well"⁴ (275)

May Rāja-rājesvarī, Kalī, Tārinī, Bhuvaneshvarī, Bagalā, Kamalā, Nityā, Bhairavī,⁵ ever protect ye both (276).

The Lord of the Chakra should sprinkle them twelve times with wine or water of oblation,⁶ reciting the above Mantra. The two should then bow to him, and he should upon that repeat to them the Bījas of Vāgbhavā and Ramā⁷ (277). O Kuleshvari! the Kulina husband and wife, who are married according to the injunctions of Shambhu, should very carefully carry out whatever they have promised (278). There is no restriction of caste or age in Shaiva marriage. By the command of Shambhu, any woman who is not a Sapinda,¹ and has not already a husband, may be married² (279).

If a woman is married according to Shaiva Dharma and the rules of Chakra to a man who desires to have a son by her, then such a man may leave her if, after the Chakra is over, she has her flowers (280).³ The offspring of the Shaiva marriage is of the same caste as the mother if it be an Anuloma marriage, and a Sāmānya if the marriage is Viloma⁴ (281). These mixed castes should, at the time of their fathers' Shrāddha and other ceremonies give presents of edibles to, and feast the Kaulas⁵ only (282).

Eating and sexual union, O Devi! are desired by, and natural to, men, and their use is regulated for their benefit in the ordinances of Shiva⁶ (283). Therefore, O Maheśhāni! he who follows the ordinances of Shiva undoubtedly acquires, Dharma, Artha, Kāmā and Moksha⁷ (284).

rites and initiation

SHRĪ DEVĪ said :

I have now learned from Thee, O Lord ! of the ordinances relating to Kushandikā¹ and the ten Samskāras.² Do Thou now, O Deva ! reveal to Me the ordinances relating to Briddhi Shrāddha³ (1). O Shaṅkara ! tell Me in detail, both for My pleasure and the benefit of all beings, in which of the sacramental⁴ and dedicatory⁵ ceremonies Kushandikā and Briddhi Shrāddha⁶ should be, or be not, performed. Say this, O Maheshāna (2-3).

Shrī Sadāshiva said :

O Gentle One ! I have already in detail spoken of all that should be done in the ten Samskāras⁷ commencing from Jīva-seka and ending in marriage (4), and of all that which should be performed by wise men who desire their own weal.⁸ O Beauteous One ! I will now speak of what should be done in other rites. Do Thou listen to it (5).

⁷ Vide ante, Chapter VII.

⁸ May also mean " The well-being of all ".

My Beloved! in consecrating tanks, wells, and ponds, images of Devatās, houses, gardens and in Vrata,¹ the five Devas² and the celestial Mothers³ should be worshipped, and the Vasu-dhārā⁴ should be made and Briddhi Shrāddha⁵ and Kushandikā⁶ should be performed (6-7). In ceremonies which may be, and are, performed by women alone there is no Briddhi Shrāddha, but (in lieu thereof) a present of edibles⁷ should be made for the satisfaction of the Devatās and the Pitris (8).

O Lotus-faced One! in such ceremonies the worship of the Deva, Vasu-dhārā, and Kushandika should be devoutly performed by the women through the aid of priests (9). If a man cannot perform a rite himself, then his son, the son's son, the daughter's son, agnate relatives, sister's son and son-in-law and the priest, are, O Shivā! good substitutes (10). I will, O Kālikā! now in detail speak of Briddhi Shrāddha. Do Thou listen to it (11).

After performing the daily duties, a man should, with mind intent, worship Gaṁgā, Vishnu—the Lord of Sacrifice,⁸ the Divinity⁹ of the homestead, and the King¹⁰ (12); and inwardly reciting the Pranava, he should make nine, seven, five, or three Brāhmanas of Darbha grass¹¹ (13).

¹¹ Little bundles of Kusha Grass are tied up in a particular way to represent Brāhmanas,

The Brāhmanas should be made with ends of the grass which have no knots in them,¹ by twisting the upper ends of the blades from right to left two and a half times (14).

In Briddhi Shrāddha and Pārvana Shrāddha² there should be six Brāhmanas, but, O Shivā! in Ekoddishṭa³ Shrāddha there should be only one (15). The wise one should place the Brāhmanas made of Kusha grass all in one receptacle, with their faces to the north, and bathe them with the following (16)

MANTRA

Hrīmḥ:⁴ May the Divinity of water, be propitious for the attainment of our desire. May She be propitious in that which we drink. May She be propitious for our good⁵ (17).

Then with scents and flowers the Brāhmanas⁶ made with Kusha grass should be worshipped (18). The wise one should then place on the west and the south six vessels in pairs with Kusha, sesamum-seed, and Tulasī⁷ (19). On the two vessels placed on the west two of the Brāhmanas should be seated facing east, and on the four seats on the south the four Brahmanas should be seated facing north (20).

² The Shrāddha performed on the new moon day, called Mahālayā, preceding the Durgā Pūjā. Water and sesamum-seed (Til seed) are daily offered to the Pitris during the half month preceding Mahālayā; on the last day the Shrāddha is performed.

³ Shrāddha in name of one person only, and performed only once. The first Shrāddha (see verses 70, 71, and 73, post).

⁴ Māyā bīja—the Svarūpa of the Jaladevatā (Tarkālaṅkāra).

⁵ The Mantra is Vaidika, and the Bīja in it Tāntrika. The meaning is that the Devatā of Water is identical with the Devī Māyā. The Ādyā is invoked as such that She may be beneficent.

⁶ Bhū-sura = Devas on earth, or Brāhmanas.

⁷ The Tulasī plant (Ocimum sanctum), which is sacred to Vishṇu.

The Divinities should be imagined to be in the two seated on the west and the paternal Ancestors in the two seated on the left of those on the south and the maternal ancestors on the right. Know this, O Pārvatī (21).

In Ābhyudayika¹ Shrāddha the Nāndīmukha fathers and the Nāndīmukhī² mothers, as also the maternal Ancestors in the male line and in the female line, should be mentioned by name. Before this, however, one should turn to his right and face the north, and after the performance of the requisite ceremonies for the worship of the Devas he should turn to his left and face the south and perform the rites necessary for the offering of the Pindas³ (22-23).

In this Ābhyudayika Shrāddha, O Shivā! all the rites should be performed in their order, beginning with the rites relating to the Devas, and if there be any deviation the Shrāddha fails in its object⁴ (24).

The word of supplication addressed to the Devas should be said whilst facing the north, and when the same is addressed to the paternal or maternal Ancestors it should be said whilst facing south. And now, O Thou of pure Smile! I will first state the words of entreaty⁵ which should be addressed to the Devas (25).

³ Funeral cakes.

⁴ This Shrāddha is performed on all joyful occasions, such as marriage. The word Ābhyudayika is derived from Abhyudaya, which means prosperity, happiness, festival. It is also called Nāndīmukha Shrāddha. The word Nāndīmukha means the prelude (Mukha=face) of any auspicious rite (Nāndī being derived from Nand=to please). In this rite the name of each of the Ancestors is preceded by the word Nāndīmukha in the case of a male, and Nāndīmukhī if a female. It is a Shrāddha or commemorative offering to the Pitris preliminary to any joyous occasion, initiation, marriage, etc., to the father, grandfather, great-grandfather, maternal grandfather, etc.

⁵ Anujñā=Assent, Permission, Command, Entreaty (see post, verses 26-29).

After mentioning the name of the month and Paksha,¹ the Tithi² and the occasion, the excellent worshipper should say "for the prosperous result of the ceremony."³ Then he should repeat the names and Gotras⁴ of the three fathers⁵ and of the three mothers,⁶ and of the three maternal grandfathers⁷ and of the three maternal grandmothers,⁸ in the possessive case, and he should thereafter say: "I am performing the Shrāddha of the Vishva-Devas⁹ represented by the image of the two Brāhmanas made of Kusha grass." These, O Great Devi! are the words of entreaty¹⁰ (26-29).

It may be noted that the Gotra of the father and his Ancestors and the mother in the same, and the Gotra of the maternal Ancestors is the same. The learned man, O Shivā! should then invoke the Vishva-Devas,³ the fathers, the mothers, the maternal grandfathers, and the maternal grandmothers (36). Having so invoked them, the Vishva-Devas should first be worshipped; and then the three fathers, the three mothers, the three maternal grandfathers, and the three maternal grandmothers should be worshipped, with offers of Pādya, Arghya, Āchamaniya,⁴ incense, lights, cloths. Then, O Beauteous One! permission should be asked in the first place of the Devas for the spreading of the leaves⁵ (37-38).

Then a four-sided figure⁶ should be drawn uttering the Māyā Bija⁷ and then in a similar way for the paternal and maternal sides two figures each should be drawn (39). ⁵ Lepa-bhojī Ancestors are the fourth, fifth, and sixth Ancestors. From the seventh upwards there are no Pindas to be offered.

In *Ekoddishṭa Shrāddha*¹ the offering to the Lepa-bhojī Ancestors is not made (52).

Then for the satisfaction of the Devas and Pitris the *Gāyatrī*² should be inwardly recited ten times, and the Mantra, "I salute the Divinities,"³ as aforesaid should be similarly recited three times, and then the Pindas should be worshipped⁴ (53). Lighting an incense-stick and a light, the wise one should, with closed eyes, think of the Pitris in their celestial forms partaking of their allotted Pindas, each his own, and should then bow to them, uttering the following (54)

MANTRA

My father is my highest Dharma.⁵ My father is my highest Tapas.⁶ My father is my Heaven. On my father being satisfied, the whole Universe is satisfied (55).

Taking up some flowers⁷ from the remnants, the Pitris should be asked for their blessings, with the following (56)

MANTRA

Give me your blessings, O Merciful Pitris. May my knowledge, progeny, and Kinsmen always increase. May my benefactors prosper. May I have food in profusion. May many always beg of me, and may I not have to beg of any (57-58).

Then he should remove the Devas and Brāhmanas made of Kusha grass, as also the Pindas, commencing with the Devas. The wise one should then make presents for all three¹ (59).

He should then make Japa of the Gāyatrī ten times, and the Mantra, "I salute the Divinities,"² five times, and, after looking at the fire and the Sun, should, with folded palms, ask the Vipra³ the following question (60):

"Is the Shrāddha complete?"⁴ and the Brāhmana should make reply:

"It has been completed according to the injunctions"⁵ (61).

Then, for the removal of the effects of any error or omission, the Pranava⁶ should be inwardly recited ten times, and the ceremony should be brought to a close uttering the following

MANTRA

"May the Shrāddha rite be faultless"⁷; and then the food and drink in the vessels as also the Pindas should be offered to the officiating Brāhmana (62).

In the absence of a Vipra, it should be given to cows and goats, or should be thrown into water. This is called "Briddhi Shrāddha," enjoined for all obligatory sacramental¹ rites (63). Shrāddha performed on the occasion of any Parvan² is called "Pārvana Shrāddha"³ (64).

In ceremonies relating to the consecration of emblems or images of Devas, or while starting for, or returning from, pilgrimage, the Shrāddha should be according to the injunctions laid down for Pārvana Shrāddha (65). On the occasion of Pārvana Shrāddha the Pitris should not be addressed with the prefix "Nāndimukha," and for the words "Salutation to Pushti"⁴ should be substituted the words "Salutation to Svadhā"⁵ (66).

O Beautiful One! if any of the three Ancestors be alive, then the wise one should make the offerings to another Ancestor of higher degree (67). If the father, grandfather, and great-grandfather⁶ be alive, then, O Queen of the Devas! no Shrāddha need be performed. If they are pleased, then the object of the funeral rite and sacrifice⁷ is attained (68).

If his father be living, then a man may perform his mother's Shrāddha, his wife's Shrāddha, and Nāndimukha Shrāddha; but he is not entitled to perform the Shrāddha of anyone else (69). O Queen of Kula!⁸ at the time of Ekoddishtha Shrāddha⁹ the Vishva-Devas¹⁰ are not to be worshipped. The word of entreaty¹ should be addressed to one Ancestor only² (70).

At the time of *Ekoddishtha Shrāddha*³ cooked rice and Pinda should be given whilst facing south. The rest of the ceremony is the same as that which has been already described, with the exception that sesamum should be substituted for barley (71).

The peculiarity in *Preta Shrāddha*⁴ is that the worship⁵ of *Gaṁgā*⁶ and others is omitted, and in the framing of the Mantra the deceased should be spoken of as *Preta*⁷ whilst rice and Pindas are offered to him (72).

The Shrāddha performed for one particular dead ancestor is called "Ekoddishtha". In offering Pinda to the Preta, fish and meat should be added (73). O Mistress of the Kula!⁸ know this, that the Shrāddha which is performed on the day following the end of the period of uncleanness⁹ is Preta Shrāddha (74). If there is a miscarriage, or if the child dies immediately on birth, or if a child is born or dies, then the period of uncleanness is to be reckoned according to the custom of the family (75).

The period of uncleanness in the case of the twice-born is ten days (for Brāhmanas), twelve (for Kshatriyas), and a fortnight (for Vaishyas); for Shūdras and Sāmānyas the period is one month (thirty days) (76).

On the death of an Agnate¹ who is not a Sapinda,² the period of uncleanness is three days, and on the death of a Sapinda,³ should information of it arrive after the period prescribed, one becomes unclean for three days (77).

The unclean man, O Primordial One! is not entitled to perform any rite relating to the Devas and the Pitris, excepting Kula worship⁴ and that which has been already commenced (78).

Persons over five years of age should be burnt in the burning-ground, but, O Kuleshāni! a wife should not be burnt with her dead husband⁵ (79). Every woman is Thy image—Thou residest concealed in the forms of all women in this world.⁶ That woman, who in her delusion⁷ ascends the funeral pyre of her lord, shall go to hell (80).

Kālikā! the corpses of worshippers of the Brahma Mantra should be either buried, thrown into running water, or burnt, according as they may direct (81).

Ambikā!⁸ death in a holy place or a place of pilgrimage, or near the Devī, or near the Kaulikas,⁹ is a happy one (82).

He who at the time of his death meditates on the one Truth, forgetful of the three worlds becomes one with the Paramātmā⁹ (83).

After death the corpse should be taken to the burning-ground, and when it has been washed it should be smeared with ghee and placed on the pyre, with the face to the north¹ (84).

The deceased should be addressed by his name, and Gotra and as Preta.² Giving the Pinda to the mouth of the corpse, the pyre should be lighted by applying the torch to the mouth of the corpse, the while inwardly reciting the *Vahni Bija*³ (85).

Beloved! the Pinda should be made of boiled or un-boiled rice, or crushed barley, or wheat, and should be of the size of an emblic myrobalam⁴ (86). To the eldest son of the Preta is given the privilege of performing the Shrāddha; in his absence to the other sons, according to the order of their seniority (87).

The day after the day upon which the period of uncleanliness expires, the mourner should bathe and purify himself, and give away gold and sesamum for the Liberation of the Preta⁵ (88).

The son of the Preta should give away cattle, lands, clothes, carriages, vessels made of metals, and various kinds of edibles, in order that the Preta may attain Heaven (89).

He should also give away scents, garlands, fruits, water, a beautiful bed, and everything which the Preta himself liked to insure his passage to Heaven (90).

Then a bull should be branded with the mark of a trident, and decorated with gold and ornaments, and then let loose, with the object that the deceased may attain Heaven (91).

He should then with a devout spirit perform the Shrāddha, according to the injunctions laid down for the performance of Preta Shrāddha,¹ and then feed Brāhmanas and Kaula knowers of the Brahman² and the hungry (92).

The man who is unable to make gifts should perform the Shrāddha to the best of his ability, and feed the hungry, and thus liberate his father from the state of existence of a Preta³ (93).

This Preta Shrāddha is known as Ādya Ekoddishṭa Shrāddha,⁴ and it liberates the deceased from the state of Preta. After this every year on the Tithi⁵ of his death edibles⁶ should be given to the deceased (94).

There is no necessity for a multitude of injunctions nor for a multitude of rituals. Man may attain all Siddhi⁷ by honouring a Kaulika. The object of all Samskāras⁸ is completely attained if, in lieu of the prescribed Homa, Japa, and Shrāddha,¹ even a single Kaulika² is (at the time of the rite) duly honoured (96).

The injunction of Shiva is that all auspicious ceremonies should be performed between the period beginning with the fourth day of the light half of the lunar half-month, and ending on the fifth of the dark half-month (97).

He, however, who is desirous of performing any rite which must be performed may perform it even on an inauspicious day,³ provided he be so directed by his Guru, by a Ritvik,⁴ or a Kaulika (98).

A Kaulika should commence the building of a house, should first enter a house, start on a journey, wear new jewels, and the like, only after worshipping the Primordial One with the five Elements⁵ (99).

Or the excellent worshipper may shorten the rite. He may, after meditating on the Devī, and inwardly reciting the Mantra and bowing to the Devī, go wherever he may desire (100).

In the worship of all Devatās, such as the Autumnal Festival⁶ and others, Dhyāna and Pūjā⁷ should be performed according to the ordinances laid down in the Shāstras relating to such worship (101).

⁷ Meditation and worship.

According to the ordinances relating to the worship of the Primordial Kālī, animal sacrifice¹ and Homa² should be performed, and the rite should be brought to an end by the honouring of Kaulikas³ and making of presents⁴ (102).

The general rule is that Gaṅgā, Viṣṇu, Shiva, Sūrya, and Brahmā should first be worshipped, and then the Deva the special object of worship (103).

The Kaulika is the most excellent Dharma,⁵ the Kaulika is the most excellent Deva, the Kaulika is the most excellent pilgrimage,⁶ therefore should the Kaula be always worshipped⁷ (104).

The three and a half Kotis⁸ of Places of Pilgrimage, all the Devas beginning with Brahmā Himself, reside in the body of the Kaula. What, therefore, is there which is not attained by worshipping him? The land in which the good and Fully initiated⁹ Kaula resides is blessed and deserving of honour. It is most holy, and is coveted even by the Devas (105-106). Who can, in this world, understand the majesty of the "Fully initiated" Sādhaka,¹⁰ who is Shiva¹¹ Himself, and to whom there is nothing either holy or sinful? (107).

Shrī Devī said :

Thou hast, O Lord! spoken of the Greatness¹ of the fully initiated Kaula. Do Thou in Thy mercy speak to Me of the ordinances relating to such initiation² (109).

Shrī Sadāshiva said :

In the three Ages³ this rite was a great secret ; men then used to perform it in all secrecy, and thus attain Liberation (110).

When the Kali Age prevails, the followers of Kula rite should declare themselves as such, and, whether in the night or the day, should openly be initiated⁴ (111).

By the mere drinking of wine,⁵ without initiation,⁶ a man does not become a Kaula. The Kula worshipper becomes the Lord of the Kula Chakra only after "full initiation"² (112).

The Guru should, the day before the initiation, worship the Deva of Obstacles⁷ with offerings, according to his ability for the removal of all obstacles (113).

If the Guru is not qualified to officiate at a "Full initiation"² ceremony, then it should, O Beloved! be performed by a duly initiated Kaula⁸ (114). Gang is the Bija of may be sought. It is however said "the disciple thirsting for knowledge may go from one Guru to another in the same way that a bee longing for honey goes from flower to flower."

Tarkālangkāra says: At the time of Mantragrahana (reception of Mantra) the person imparting it becomes Guru; at time of Abhisheka the quality of Guru is transferred to him who performs it. Tantrasāra says that by renouncing the Guru man incurs death, by giving up Mantra poverty comes, and by giving up both, goes to Raurava hell. The sense of this is that there is no fault in giving up the Guru if the disciple desires to be initiated in the Saṃskāra in which the person who gave him Mantra is not initiated and disqualified. If however the Guru is initiated and qualified the disciple cannot leave him. The intention of Shiva is that the disciple who wishes to be initiated in Shāktābhisheka, Pūrṇābhisheka, Kramadīkshā and the like, may leave the Guru who gave the Mantra and go to another who can fill his desires.

This Tantra speaks of two ways of Prāṇāyāma—the Gheranda Saṃhitā of seven and the Hatha-yoga-pradīpikā of three.

DHYĀNA

Meditate on Gana-pati as of the colour of vermillion, having three eyes, a large belly, holding in His lotus-hands the conch,¹ the noose,² the elephant-goad,³ and the sign of blessing.⁴ His great trunk is adorned with the jar of wine which it holds. On His forehead shines the young Moon.⁵ He has the head of the King of elephants; His cheeks are constantly bathed in wine. His body is adorned with the coils of the King of servants. He is dressed in red raiment,⁶ and His body is smeared with scented ointments (118).

Having thus meditated upon Ganapati, he should be worshipped with mental offerings,⁷ and then the protecting powers of the seat⁸ should be worshipped.⁹ These are Tibrā, Jvālīnī, Nandā, Bhoga-dā, Kāma-rūpinī, Ugrā, Tejasvatī, Satyā, and Vighna-vināshinī.¹⁰ The (first eight) should be worshipped in their order, beginning from the east, and the last should be worshipped in the middle of the Mandala. them all, the Lotus-seat itself should be worshipped (119-120).

Meditating on Ganesha once again, He should be worshipped with offerings of the five elements.¹ On each of His four sides the excellent Kaulika should worship Ganesha, Gana-nāyaka, Gana-nātha, Gana-kṛīḍa, Ekadanta, Rakta-tunda, Lambodara, Gajānana, Mahodara, Vikata, Dhūmrābha, and Vighna-nāshana² (121-123).

Then the eight Shaktis, Brāhmī,³ and others, and the ten Dikpālas⁴ and their weapons, should be worshipped, and after that Vighna-rāja⁵ should be bidden to depart⁶ (124).

Having thus worshipped the King of Obstacles, the worshipper should perform the preliminary⁷ ceremony, and then entertain the Kaulas versed in divine knowledge with the five elements⁸ (125).

The next day, having bathed⁹ and performed his ordinary daily duties as already enjoined, he should, O Beloved! give away sesamum-seed and gold for the destruction of all sins from his birth, and a Bhojya¹⁰ for the satisfaction of the Kaulas (126). Then, giving

He should then perform Vridddhi Shrāddha for the good result of the rite, and, going up to the Guru, bow to him, and pray to him as follows (128):

(PRAYER TO THE GURU)

Save me, O Lord! Thou that art the Sun of the Kaulas. Protect my head, O Ocean of Mercy! with the shade of thy lotus-foot (129). Grant us leave, O Exalted One! in this auspicious Pūrnābhisheka that by thy grace I may attain the success of my undertaking without any hindrance (130).

(The Guru should then reply :)

My son! be thou, by the permission of Shiva-Shakti,³ initiated with the "full initiation". May thou attain the object of thy desire by the command of Shiva (131).

Having thus obtained the permission of the spiritual Preceptor, he should make the Saṁkalpa⁴ for the removal of all obstacles and for the attainment of long life, prosperity, strength, and good health (132).

The Sādhaka, having solemnly formed his resolve, should do honour to the Guru, by presenting him with clothes and jewels, and Kārana⁵ with Shuddhi,⁶ and invite him to perform the rite (133).

Then each person should perform the rite preparatory to mental worship, according to his own Kalpa,⁶ and then, having made mental worship, should purify the five elements with the Mantra previously mentioned (139). After the *Pancha-tattvas*⁷ have been purified, the jar, which must be either of gold or silver or copper or earth, should be placed with the *Brahma Bija*⁸ on the Mandala.⁹ It should be washed with the *Weapon Mantra*¹⁰ and smeared with curd, Akshata,¹¹ and then a vermilion mark should be placed on it with the Mantra "Shrīng" (140-141).

He should then do Prāṇāyāma, and, meditating on the Great Devī, invoke Her, and thereafter worship Her, the Object of his worship, to the best of his ability and without niggardliness (152). The excellent Guru, O Shivā! should perform all the rites ending with Homa, and then honour the Kumārīs⁸ and worshippers of Shakti by presenting them with flowers, sandal-paste, and clothes (153).

The Guru should then ask the permission of those present with the following words:

O you Kaulas! who are vowed to Kula-worship, be kind to my disciple. Do you give your permission to his Saṁskāra of Pūrnābhisheka (154).

The Lord of the Chakra having thus asked, those present should respectfully say: "By the grace of

The Kaulika Guru should, having informed the worshippers of Shakti, call his disciple by his name and give him a name ending with Ānandanātha (182).

Being thus initiated in the Mantra by the Guru, the disciple should worship his Ishta-devatā ⁴ in the Yantra ⁵ and then honour the Guru by offering him the Pancha-tattva ⁶ (183).

PRAYER TO GURU

Holy Lord! Thou art the Lord of the world. Lord! Thou art my Lord. O Ocean of Mercy! do Thou gratify my heart's desire by the gift of the excellent nectar (186).

The Guru should then say:

"Give me leave, O Kaulas! you who are the visible images of Shiva Himself, that I may give to my good and humble disciple the excellent nectar" (187).

The Kaulas will then say:

"Lord of the Chakra! Thou art the Supreme Lord Himself, Thou art the Sun of the Kaula lotus. Do Thou gratify this good disciple, and give him the Kula nectar" (188).

The Guru, having obtained the leave of the Kaulas, should place in the hand of the disciple the drinking-cup filled with the excellent nectar, as also the Shuddhi (189).

The Guru should then, devoutly meditating on the Devī in his heart, place the Tilaka¹ on the forehead of the disciple, as also of the Kaulas, with the ashes adhering to the sacrificial spoon (190).

Let the Guru then distribute the Tattvas offered² to the Devī, and partake of the food and drink as directed in the injunctions relating to the formation of Chakra³ (191).

O Devī! I have spoken to Thee of the auspicious rites relating to Pūrṇābhisheka. By this one attains divine knowledge and becomes Shiva Himself (192).

The Pūrṇābhisheka should be performed for nine or seven or five or three or one night (193).

³ See Chapter VI, verse 189 et seq.

There are, O Kuleshānī! five different forms¹ in this purificatory rite. In the rite which lasts nine nights the *Mandala*² known as Sarvato-bhadra³ should be made (194).

Beloved! in the rite which lasts seven nights the Mandala Nava-nābha, in the rite which lasts five nights the Mandala Panchābja, in the rite which lasts three nights and in the rite which lasts one night the Mandala of eight-petalled lotus should be respectively made (195).

O Devī! the injunction is that on the Sarvato-bhadra and Nava-nābha Mandalas nine jars⁴ should be placed on Panchābja Mandala five, and on Ashta-dalābja Mandala one jar, and the *Amga-Devatās*⁵ and the *Āvarana-Devatās*⁶ should be worshipped in the filaments and other parts of the lotuses (196-197).

The Kaulas who have been Fully Initiated are pure of soul. All things are purified by their look, touch, and when smelt by them (198). All men, whether they are Shāktas, Shaivas, Vaishnavas, Gānapatas, or Sauras,⁷ should worship the Kaula Sādhu⁸ with devotion (199).

It is good for a Shākta to have a Guru who is a Shākta, for a Shaiva a Shaiva Guru is commendable, and for a Vaishnava a Vaishnava, for a Saura a Saura as Guru is advised, and a Gānapata is the proper Guru for a Gānapata, but a Kaula is excellent as Guru in the case of all; therefore the wise one should with all his soul be initiated by a Kaula (200-201). Those who with devotion worship the Kaulas with Pancha-tattva,¹ cause the salvation² of their Ancestors, and themselves attain the highest end (202).

The man who has obtained the Mantra from the mouth of a Pashu³ is of a certainty a Pashu, and he who has obtained the Mantra from a Vira⁴ is a Vira, and he who obtains it from a Kaula knows the Brahman (203). One who has been initiated according to Shākta rites⁴ is a Vira; he may purify the Pancha-tattvas only in the worship of his own Ishta-devatā,⁵ he may never be the Chakreshvara⁶ (204).

He who kills a Vira, he who drinks wine which has not been consecrated,⁷ he who seduces the wife of or steals the property of a Vira, these four are great sinners, and the man who associates with any of these is the fifth sinner (205). Those evil-natured men who disparage the Kula Way,⁸ Kula articles, and the Kula worshipper go down the low and vile path (206).

The Rudra-dākinīs and Rudra-bhairavīs⁹ dance in joy (at the thought of) chewing the bones and flesh of men who disparage wine and the Kaulas (207). They (the Kaulas) are merciful and truthful, and ever desire the good of others. For such as insult them there is no escape from Hell (208).

⁷ Vṛithā-pāyī=Vain-drinker. These are Mahāpātākīs.

⁸ Kula Worship, etc.

⁹ Fierce Spirits of that name, attendant on Shiva and Kālī.

I have (in various Tantras) spoken of many and various methods and rites¹; but in the case of a Kaula who is devoted to the Brahman alone, the performance or non-performance of such rites is one and the same² (209).

There is one Supreme Brahman Who is spread throughout the Universe. He is worshipped by the worship of the Universe,³ because everything exists in Him (210).

Beloved! even those who look to the fruit of action and are governed by their desires and by the worship of different Devas, and addicted to various rituals worshipping the Devatās as other than themselves⁴ go to and enter That (211). He who sees everything in Brahman, and who sees Brahman everywhere, is undoubtedly known as a true Kaula, who has attained Liberation while yet living⁵ (212).

End of the Tenth Chapter, entitled "Rites relating to Briddhi Shrāddha, Funeral Rites, and Pūrṇābhisheka."

² Because he is free from Rāga and Dvesha in whatever he does (Tarkālamkāra).

³ Vishvārchayā: that is, worship of anything in the universe. Everything is the form of the Brahman and provided what is worshipped is so worshipped with this knowledge it is worship of Brahman.

CHAPTER XI

EXPIATORY ACTS

LISTENING to the Rules¹ of Shambhu relating to the different Castes and Stages of Life, Aparnā² was greatly pleased, and questioned Śaṅkara thus (1):

Śrī Devī said:

Thou hast, O Lord! out of Thy kindness for Me and in Thy omniscience, spoken of the customs and the rules of religious conduct and sacraments³ for the well-being of the world (2). But the men of the Kali Age, being wicked, and blinded by anger and lust, atheists,⁴ of wavering minds and addicted to the gratification of their senses, will not in their ignorance and folly, follow the way laid down by Thee; it behoves Thee, O Īshāna! to say what will be the means of their Liberation (3-4).

Śrī Sadāshiva said:

Thou hast asked well, O Devī! Thou who art the Benefactress of the world, the Mother of the world, Thou art Durgā,⁵ Thou dost liberate people from the bonds of birth and the toils of this world (5). Thou art the Primordial One, Thou fosterest and guardest this world, Thou art beyond the most excellent; Thou, O Devī! dost support the moving and the motionless Universe (6). Thou art knowest not; yet, O Wise One! since Thou askest Me, I will speak of it for Thy pleasure (10-11).

Thou hast truly spoken, O Devī! of the evil ways of men, who, knowing what is for their welfare, yet, maddened by sinful desire for things which bring immediate enjoyment, are devoid of the sense of right and wrong, and desert the True Path. I speak now of that which will contribute to their Liberation (12-13).

In the doing of what is forbidden and in the omitting of what is enjoined men sin, and sins lead to pain, sorrow, and disease (14).

O Kula-nāyikā!¹ know that there are two kinds of sin—that which contributes merely to the injury of one's own Self, and that which causes injury to others (15). Man is released of the sin of injuring others by the punishment inflicted by the King, and from other sins by expiatory rites² with self-restraint³ (16).

Those sinful men who are not purified by either punishment or expiation cannot but go to hell, and are despised both in this world and the next (17).

O Ādyā! I shall first of all speak of the Rules relating to punishment by the King. O Maheshānī! The King who deviates from these, himself goes upon the downward path (18).

In the administration of justice, servants, sons, strangers,⁴ friends and foes should all be treated alike (19).

If the King is guilty of any sin himself, or if he should have punished one who is not guilty, then he shall purify

² Prāyashchitta.

⁴ Udāsīna—Detached Persons who are neither friends nor foes (Bhārati).

himself by fasting and by placating those he has wronged by gifts (20). If the King should consider that he is guilty of any sin which is punishable by death, he should then abdicate his kingdom and go to a forest, and there labour for his purification by penances (21). The King should not, without sufficient reason, inflict heavy punishment on persons guilty of a light offence, nor should he inflict light punishment on persons guilty of a great offence (22). But the punishment by which many offenders may be deterred from ill-doing, and (punishment) in the case of an offender who is fearless¹ of crimes, should be heavy, although the offence be a light one (23).

In the case of one who has committed the offence but once only and is ashamed of his ill-deed, or of one who fears crime and is a respectable man, a light punishment should be inflicted, even if the offence be a grave one (24).

If a Kaula or a Brāhmaṇa is guilty of a slight offence, they should even, though otherwise worthy of respect, be punished by the King by a rebuke (25).

The King who does not bestow adequate rewards and punishments after consultation with his ministers is a great sinner (26).

A son should not leave his mother and father, the subjects should not leave their King, nor the wife her husband, if they are in trouble or in disgrace, unless they are greatly guilty² (27).

The subjects should actively protect the kingdom, property, and life of the just King; otherwise they will go upon the downward path (28).

Shivā! those who knowingly go with their mother,³ daughter,³ or sister,³ those who have killed their ² The text is read according to Ram Mohun Roy.

³ Each of these terms is suggestive of a class. Thus, Mother would include her sister, her sister-in-law, etc.

Mahāgurus,¹ those who have, after having taken refuge in the Kula Faith, abandoned it, and those who have broken the trust placed in them, are very great sinners (29-30).

Shivā! the punishment of those that go with their mother, sister, and daughter is death, and if the latter are wilful participants the same punishment should be inflicted upon them (31).

The sinful man, who with a lustful mind goes to the bed of his mother's or father's sister, or to his daughter-in-law, or mother-in-law (wife's mother), the wife of his preceptor, the wife of his maternal or paternal grandfather, the daughter or wife of his mother's or father's brother, the wife or daughter of his brother, the sister's daughter, the master's wife or daughter, or with an unmarried girl, should be punished by castration,² and these women also if they are wilful participants in the offence should be punished by the cutting of their noses and turning them out of the house that they may be released from sin (32-34).

The punishment of the man who goes with the wife or daughter of a Sapinda,³ or with the wife of a man who has trusted him, is to be deprived of all his property and to have his head shaved (35).

If through mistake (by ignorance) one should happen to marry any of these,⁴ either in Brāhma or Shaiva form, then she should be left at once (36).

A man who goes with the wife of another man of the same caste as himself, or of a caste inferior to his own, should be punished by the imposition of a fine and by being kept on a diet of grains⁵ for one month (37).

² Liṅga-chchheda = Cutting off the genitals.

³ Kinsman.

⁵ Kana = grains, broken rice, etc.

If a Kshatriya, Vaishya, Shūdra, or Sāmānya, O Thou of Beauteous Face! goes with a Brāhmaṇa woman knowing her to be such, then his punishment is castration, and the Brāhmaṇa woman should be disfigured and banished from his kingdom by the King. For such as go with the wives of Viras, and, for such wives, the punishment should be the same (38-39).

The wicked man who enjoys the wife of one of a higher caste should be heavily fined, and kept on a diet of grains for three months (40).

And if the woman is a wilful party, she should be similarly punished. If the wife is the victim of a rape, then she should be separated from, but maintained by, her husband (41).

A wife, whether married according to Brāhma or Shaiva form, should in all cases be renounced if she has gone with another man even if it be only once, and then whether of her own desire or against it (42).

Those who have intercourse with public women, or with cows or other animals, should, O Deveshi! be purified by being kept on a diet of grains for three nights (43).

The punishment of those wicked men who have unnatural intercourse¹ with a woman is death; this is the injunction of Shambhu (44).

A man who ravishes a woman, even if she be the wife of a Chandāla should be punished by death, and should never be pardoned (45).

A man should consider as wife only that woman who has been married to him according to Brāhma or Shaiva form. All other women are the wives of others² (46).

A man who with lust looks at another man's wife should fast for a day to purify himself. He who has converse with ¹ her in a secret place should fast for two days. He who touches her should fast for four days; and he who embraces ² her should fast for eight days to purify himself (47).

And the woman who with a lustful mind behaves in the same manner should purify herself by following the same rules of fasting (48).

The man who uses offensive language towards a woman, who sees the private parts of a woman who is the wife of another ³ and laughs mockingly at her, should fast for two days to purify himself (49).

A man who shows his naked body to another, or who makes another person naked, should cease eating for three days to purify himself (50).

If the husband proves that his wife has had intercourse with another, then the King should punish her and her paramour according to the injunction laid down (51).

If the husband (has good cause to believe and yet) is unable to prove the faithlessness of his wife, then he should separate from her, but he should maintain her if she remains under his control (52).

If the husband, on seeing his wife enjoying with her paramour, kills her with her paramour, then the King should not punish him with death (53).

If the husband prohibits the wife to go to any place or to talk with anyone, then the wife should neither go to that place nor talk with that person (54).

If, on the death of the husband, the widow lives with the relatives of the husband under their control, following the customs ⁴ of a widow's life, or in their absence she lives with the relatives of her father, then she is entitled to inherit her husband's property (55).

⁴ See post.

The widow should not eat twice a day, nor should she eat food cooked by one who is not her husband's Agnate; she should renounce sexual enjoyment, animal food, jewels, sleeping on soft beds,¹ and coloured clothes² (56).

The widow faithful to her Dharma should not anoint herself with fragrant ointment, she should avoid village gossip,³ and should spend her time in the worship of the Devatās and in the performance of Vratas⁴ (57).

In the case of the boy who has neither father, mother, nor paternal grandfather, the mother's relatives⁵ are the best guardians (58). The mother's mother, mother's father, mother's brother, mother's brother's son, mother's father's brother, these are the relatives⁵ on the mother's side (59).

Father's mother, father, brother, father's brother's and sister's sons, father's father's brother, are known as paternal relatives⁶ (60).

The husband's mother, father, brother, the husband's brother's and sister's sons, and the husband's father's brothers, all these are known as the relatives of the husband⁷ (61).

Ambikā! the King should compel a man, according to his means, to give food and clothes to his father, mother, father's father, father's mother, the wife whose son cannot support her, and to the maternal grandfather and grandmother, who are poor and have no son (62-63).

If a man speaks rudely⁸ to his wife he must fast for a day, if he beats her he must go without food for three days, and if he causes her bloodshed then he must fast for seven days (64).

If a man in his anger or folly calls ¹ his wife his mother, his sister, or daughter, then he should purify himself by fasting seven days (65).

If a girl be married to an impotent man, then the King should cause her to be married again, even if the fact is discovered after the lapse of some time. This is Shiva's injunction (66).

If a girl becomes a widow before consummation of marriage, she also ought to be remarried by her father. This also is the command of Shiva (67).

The woman who is delivered of a child within six months of her marriage, or after the lapse of a year following her husband's death, is not a wife, nor is the child legitimate (68).

The woman who causes a miscarriage before the completion of the fifth month, as well as the person who helps her thereto, should be heavily punished (69).

The woman who after the fifth month destroys the child in her womb, and the person who helps her thereto, are guilty of killing a human being (70).

The cruel man who wilfully kills another man should always be sentenced to death by the King (71).

The King should correct the man who kills another man through negligence,² or mistake,³ or by ignorance, either by taking his property ⁴ from him or by giving him a severe beating ⁵ (72).

⁴ Dravinādānatah, i.e., by imposing a fine on the offender.

⁵ Tībra tādāna.

The man who tries to compass his own death, whether by himself or by the aid of another, should be awarded the same punishment as the man who kills another through ignorance (73).

The man who kills another in a duel, or kills an enemy who attempts to kill him, is not guilty of any offence (74).

The King should punish the man who has maimed another by maiming him, and the man who has beaten another by having him beaten (75).

The wicked man who flings any missile, or lifts his hand to strike a Vipra,¹ or one who should be honoured, or who strikes either of them, should be punished by a pecuniary fine for the first offence, and by the burning of his hand for a second offence (76).

If a man dies consequent upon a wound inflicted by any weapon or otherwise after six months, then the offender should be punished for the assault, and shall not be punished with death by the King (77).

If the King kills subverters of his government, men who plot to usurp his kingdom, servants secretly befriending the King's enemies, men creating dissatisfaction against the King among the troops, subjects who wish to wage war against the King, or armed highway robbers, he shall not be guilty of any sin (78-79).

The man who kills another, compelled by his master's order,² is not himself guilty of the killing, for it is the master's killing. This is the command of Shiva (80).

If a man's death is caused by a beast belonging to, or weapons in the hand of, a careless man, then the latter should be corrected by a pecuniary or bodily punishment (81).

Those wicked men who disobey the King's command, who are arrogant in their speech in the King's presence, or who decry the Kula faith, should be punished by the King (82).

He who misappropriates property entrusted to him, the malicious man, the cheat, he who creates ill-feeling between men, or who makes people quarrel with one another, should be banished from the kingdom by the King (83).

The King should banish from his kingdom those abandoned¹ and wicked-minded men who give away their sons and daughters in marriage for money, and who give their daughters (in marriage) to impotent husbands (84).

Persons who attempt to harm others by the spreading of baseless calumnies should be punished by the just King in accordance with their offence² (85).

The King should compel the calumniator to pay the sufferer money commensurate with the harm done (86).

For such persons as steal gems, pearls, gold and other metals, the punishment should be either the cutting off of the hand or the entire arm, according to the value of the stolen property (87).

Those who steal buffaloes, horses, cattle, jewels, etc., and children, should be punished by the King as thieves (88).

Thieves who steal food and articles of small value should be corrected by being kept on a diet of grains for a week or a fortnight (89).

O Adored of the Devas! the faithless and the ingrate can never attain Liberation by sacrifices, votive observances, penances, acts of charity, and other expiatory rites (90).

The King should, after severely punishing them, exile from his dominion men who give false evidence, or who are partial as arbitrators (91).

¹ Patita=Fallen. This verse literally means who gives away for money his son or daughter to a sexless person etc.

² "According to the gravity of the calumny;" according to a variation in the Text.

The testimony of six, four, or even three witnesses is sufficient to prove a fact; but, O Shivā! the testimony of two witnesses of well-known piety is enough (92).

Beloved! if witnesses contradict one another on questions of place, time, and other details of fact, then their testimony should be rejected (93).

O Beloved! the word of the blind and the deaf should be accepted as evidence, and the signs and writing of a dumb man and of one who is both deaf and dumb should also be accepted (94).

Of all evidence and in all cases, and particularly in litigation, documentary evidence is the best, as it does not perish and always endures (95).

The man who fabricates a writing for his own use or for the use of another should be punished with double the punishment of a false witness (96).

The statement on oath, on his own behalf, of a careful and reliable man is of a higher probative value than the word of many witnesses (97).

O Pārvatī! as all virtues find their support in Truth, so do all vices find their support in untruth (98).¹

Therefore, the King shall incur no blame by chastizing those who are devoid of Truth and are the receptacle of all vices. This is the command of Shiva (99).

Devī! if a man says, "I tell the truth," at the same time touching any of the following—a Kaula, the Guru, a Brāhmana, water of Gaṅgā, an image of a Devatā, a Kula religious Book, Kulāmṛita,² or the offerings made to a Devatā, he has taken an oath. If after that he speaks an untruth, then he will go to hell for one Kalpa³ (100-101).

An oath that an act which is not sinful will be or will not be done, should always be kept by men (102).

The man who has broken his oath should purify himself by a fortnight's fast; and one who has broken it by mistake should live on grains for twelve days (103).

Even the Kula-dharma, if not followed according to Truth and the injunctions, not only fails to secure final Liberation and Beatitude, but leads to sin (104).

Wine is Tārā Herself in liquid form,¹ Who is the Saviour of beings, the Mother of Enjoyment and Liberation, Who destroys danger and diseases, burns up the heaps of sins, and purifies the worlds. O Beloved! She grants all success, and increases knowledge, intellect, and learning, and, O Ādyā! She (wine) is ever taken by those who have attained final Liberation and those who are desirous of attaining final Liberation, by those that have become and those striving to be adepts,² and by Kings and Devas for the attainment of their desires (105-107).

Mortals who drink wine with their minds well under control³ and according to the injunctions (of Shiva) are, verily, Immortals⁴ on Earth (108).

By partaking, in accordance to the injunctions, of any of the Tattvas,⁵ man becomes like unto Shiva. What, then, is the result of partaking of all the five Tattvas⁵? (109).

But the drinking of this Devī Vārunī¹ in disregard of the injunctions destroys the intellect, life, fame, and wealth of men (110).

By the excessive drinking of wine the drunkard destroys the understanding,² which is the means for the attainment of the Fourfold End³ of human existence (111).

Only harm at every step, both to himself and to others, results for a man whose mind is distracted and who knows not what should and what should not be done (112).

Therefore, the King or the Lord of the Chakra should correct by bodily and pecuniary punishments those who are over-addicted to wine and intoxicating drugs (113).⁴

The understanding of men is clouded by the drinking of wine, whether in small or large quantities, according to the difference in the quality of the wine, to the temperament of the individual, to the place where and the time when it is taken (114).

Therefore, excessive drinking is to be judged, not from the quantity drunk, but from the result as shown in difficulty of speech and from the unsteadiness of hands, feet, and sight (115).

The King should burn the tongues and confiscate the money of, and inflict corporal punishments on, men who Bhārati says the excessive drinking of wine leads to the destruction of one's intellect and to evil both for the self and others. The King should therefore punish such men as stated in v. 113, hold not their senses under control, whose minds are distracted by drink, who deviate from the duty they owe to Devas and Gurus, who are fearful to behold, who are the source of all folly, who are sinful, and transgressors of the injunctions of Shiva, and bring ruin on themselves (116-117).

The King should severely chastise and fine the man who is unsteady in hands, feet, or in speech, who is bewildered, maddened, and beyond himself with drink (118).

The King, who labours for the happiness of his subjects, should inflict pecuniary punishment on the drunkard who is guilty of evil language and is devoid of fear and shame¹ (119).

O Kuleshvarī! a Kaula, even if he has been initiated² a hundred times, should be regarded as a Pashu, for he has fallen from the Kula Dharma³, if he drinks to excess (120).

The Kaula who drinks excessively of wine, be it consecrated or not, should be renounced by all Kaulas and punished by the King (121).

The drunken twice-born man who makes his Brāhmī wife⁴ drink wine should purify both himself and his wife by living on a diet of grains⁵ for five days (122).

The man, who has drunk wine which has not been sanctified, should purify himself by fasting for three days, and who has eaten meat which has not been sanctified should fast for two days (123).

If a man partakes of fish and parched food⁶ which have not been sanctified, he should fast for a day, but he who participates in the fifth Tattva¹ without conforming to the rites should be corrected by the King's punishment (124).²

He who knowingly eats human flesh or beef should purify himself by a fortnight's³ fast. This is the expiation for this sin (125).

Beloved! a man who has eaten the flesh of animals of human shape, or of carnivorous animals, should purify himself by a three day's fast (126).

The man who partakes of food cooked by Mlechchhas, Chandālas, and Pashus, and enemies of Kula, is purified by a fortnight's³ fast (127).

And, O Kuleshvarī! if anyone knowingly partakes of the leavings⁴ of these,⁵ then he should fast for a month to purify himself, and if he has done so unknowingly he should fast for a fortnight³ (128).

My injunction is that if a man partakes of food cooked by a man of a caste inferior to his own, he should, to purify himself, fast for three days (129).

By the partaking of food of a Pashu, Chandāla, and Mlechchha, which has been placed in the Chakra or in the hands of a Vīra, no sin is incurred (130).

One who partakes of forbidden food at a time when food is scarce, in times of famine and danger, or when life is at stake, is guiltless of any transgression (131).

objectionable is actually perceived, there is no fault¹ (132).

Animals the flesh of which is forbidden, as also diseased animals, should not be killed even for the purpose of sacrifice to the Devas. By killing such animals sin is incurred (133).

If anyone knowingly kills a bull, then he shall do penance (as described below), and if he does so unknowingly he shall do half of such penance. This is the command of Shāṅkara (134).

So long as the penance is not performed he shall not shave or pare his nails nor wear clean² raiments (135).

Shivā! he should fast for a month, and should live on grains for another month, and should live eating food which he has begged during the third month. This is called *Krichchhra-Vrata*³ (136).

At the end of the penance,⁴ he should shave his head and free himself from the sin of wilful killing of the bull by feasting Kaulas, relatives (Agnates), and Bāṇdhavas⁵ (137).

If the death of a cow or bull is caused by want of care, the expiation is an eight days' fast for a Brāhmaṇa, and for a Kshatriya and the (two other) inferior castes fasting for six, four, and two days respectively (138).

¹ Bhakshya-dosha. Bhakshya=Food, Dosha=Fault, Defect. The term is used, not as regards the quality of food so much as the place where it is eaten, with whom it is eaten, and in whose presence it is eaten. Some consider that their food is polluted if another looks at it (Drishti-dosha); others deem their food to be polluted by being taken out of the chauka, or enclosed space, where it is cooked, and so forth. In the cases given there is no such Dosha. Thus a Brāhmaṇa and Chandāla going by the same boat may eat in it.

⁵ Cognates and connections.

O Kaulini! the sin of wilfully slaughtering an elephant or a camel, or a buffalo, or a horse is expiated by a three days' fast (139).

Expiation for killing a deer, sheep, goat, or a cat, is a fast for one whole day and a night, and one who has killed a peacock, a parrot, or a gander should abstain from food till sunset of the day on which the sin is committed (140).

If anyone kills any other inferior animal which possesses bones, he should live on vegetable food for a night. The killing of a boneless animal is expiated by repentance (141).

There is no blame upon Kings who kill beasts, fish, and oviparous creatures when hunting; for hunting, O Devī! is an immemorial practice¹ among Kings (142).

Killing should always be avoided, O Gentle One! except if it be for the purpose of sacrifice to a Deva. The man who kills according to the injunctions sins not² (143).

Should a man be unable to complete a religious devotion³ which he has undertaken, if he walks across the remnants after the worship of any Devatā, or if he touches an image of a Deva when he is unclean, then in all such cases he should recite the Gāyatrī (144).

The father, the mother, and the giver⁴ of the Brahma-mantra are the Mahā-gurus. He who speaks ill of, or towards, them, should, in order to purify himself, fast for five days (145).

Similarly, O Beloved! if anyone speaks ill of other persons entitled to respect, Kaulas and Vipras, then he should purify himself by fasting two days and a half (146).

² That is, killing for the purpose of sacrifice is not sinful killing.

³ Vrata.

⁴ i.e., the Preceptor who initiates one in the Brahma-Mantra.

A man may for the acquisition of wealth go to any country, but he should avoid such countries and Shāstras as prohibit Kaulika rites (147).

The man who of his own free-will goes to a country where the Kaula-dharma is prohibited falls from his status, and should be purified by Pūrṇābhisheka¹ (148).

In expiatory penance, that which is recognized as a fast is going without food for eight Yāmas² from sunrise (149).

The fast is, however, not broken should one drink a handful of water or enjoy the air³ for the preservation of his life (150).

If one is unable, by reason of old age or disease, to fast, then, in lieu of each day of fast, he should feast twelve Brāhmanas (151).

The sins of speaking ill of others, self-laudation, evil habits,⁴ impropriety in speech or action, should be expiated by repentance⁵ (152).

All other sins, whether committed knowingly or unknowingly, are destroyed by repeating the Gāyatrī of the Devī and feeding the Kaulas (153).

These general rules are applicable to men, women, and the sexless; the only difference is that in the case of the women the husband is their Mahā-guru (154).

Men who are suffering from very great disease and those who are always ailing become purified and entitled to perform rites relating to the Devas and the Pitris by giving away gold (155).

³ i.e., enjoy fresh air. During the fast, the person fasting should not leave the house.

⁴ Vyasana.

⁵ Manu says that this repentance should be accompanied by determination not to repeat the sin.

A house which has been defiled by unnatural death, or which has been struck by lightning, should be purified by one hundred Vyāhriti¹ Homas (156).

If the dead body of an animal possessing bones be found in a lake, tank, or well, then it should be at once taken out, and the same should be purified (157).

The method of purifying such places is as follows: Twenty-one jars of pure water should, after being consecrated with Pūrṇābhisheka Mantra, be poured into it (158).

If such places contain but a small quantity of water, and this has been polluted by the stench of the dead body, then they should be dewatered and the loose mud removed therefrom, and when this has been done, water should be poured in the manner described (159).

If they contain water of sufficient quantity to drown an elephant, then a hundred jars of water should be removed, and then consecrated water should be poured into them (160).

If not so purified, then the waters of the reservoirs polluted by the touch of the dead body become undrinkable, and the reservoir cannot be consecrated (161).

Bathing in these reservoirs is useless,² and any rite performed with their waters becomes fruitless, and any person using the water for any purpose whatever should remain without food for a day and take Panchāmṛita³ to purify himself (162).

Should anyone perchance see a wealthy man who begs, a warrior averse to battle, a detractor of the Kuladharmā, a lady⁴ of the family who drinks wine, a faithless friend, or a learned man addicted to sin,¹ then in any of these cases he should view the Sun, utter the name of Vishnu, and bathe in the clothes which he is wearing at the time (163-164).

Men of the twice-born classes should, if they sell donkeys, fowls, or swine, or if they engage in any low pursuits, purify themselves by observing the three days' Vrata ² (165).

The Tri-dina-vrata, O Ambikā! is thus performed: the first day is to be spent in fasting, the second day is to be spent in eating grain meals only, and the third in drinking water only (166).

The man who, without being asked, enters a room the door of which is closed, and one who speaks of things which he has been asked to keep secret, should go without food for five days (167).

The man who from pride fails to rise when he sees anyone worthy of veneration coming towards him,³ or when he sees the Kula Scriptures being brought in, should go without food for a day in order to purify himself (168).

In this Shāstra spoken by Shiva the meanings of the words used are plain; those who put far-fetched meanings upon them go the downward path (169).

I have spoken to Thee, O Devī! of that which is the Essence of essences,⁴ of that which is above the most excellent, of that which conduces to the well-being (of men), in this world and the next, as also of that which is both purifying and beneficent and according to Dharma (170).

CHAPTER XII

THE ETERNAL DHARMA

SHRĪ SADĀSHIVA said :

O Primordial One! I am speaking to Thee again of the everlasting laws, the which if a wise King follows he may easily rule his subjects (1).

If Kings did not establish rules,¹ men in their covetousness would quarrel among themselves, even with their friends, relatives, and their superiors (2).

These self-seeking men, O Devī! would for the sake of wealth kill one another, and be full of sin by reason of their maliciousness and desire to thieve (3).

It is therefore for their good that I am laying down the rules in accordance with Dharma,² by following which men will not swerve from the right (path) (4).

As the King should punish the wicked for the removal of their sins, so should he also divide the inheritance according to the relationship (5).

Relationship is of two kinds—by marriage and by birth; of these, relationship by birth is stronger than relationship by marriage (6).

In inheritance, O Shivā! descendants have a stronger claim than ascendants, and in this order of descendants and ascendants the males are better qualified for inheritance than females (7).

But among these, again, the proximate relation is entitled to the inheritance; the wise ones should divide the property according to this rule and in this order (8).

² Dharma-sammata—in accordance with righteousness.

If the deceased leaves son, son's son, daughters, father and wife, then the son is entitled to the whole of the inheritance, and not any of the others (9).

If there are several sons, they are all entitled to equal shares. (In the case of a King) the kingdom goes to the eldest son, but that is in accordance to the custom of the family¹ (10).

If there be any paternal debt which should be paid out of the paternal property, such property should not be divided² (11).

If men should divide and take paternal property, then the King should take it from them, and discharge the paternal debt (12).

As men go to hell by reason of their own sins, so they are bound by their individually incurred debts, and others are not (13).

Whatever general property there may be, either immovable or of other kinds, sharers shall get the same according to their respective shares (14).

The division is complete on the co-partners agreeing to it. If they do not agree, then the King should divide it impartially (15).

The King should divide the value or profits of property which is incapable of division, whether the same be immovable or movable (16).

If a man proves his right to a share after the property is divided, then the King should divide the property over again, and give the person entitled his share (17).

O Shivā! the King should punish the man who, after property is once divided by the consent of the co-partners, quarrels again with respect to it (18).

² i.e., until the debt is paid.

If the deceased dies leaving behind him son's son, wife, and father, then the son's son is entitled to the property by reason of his being a descendant ¹ (19).

If the childless man leaves (surviving him) father, brother, and father's father, then the father inherits the property by reason of the closeness of consanguinity (20).

Beloved! if the deceased leaves daughters (surviving him), although they are closer to him, yet the grandsons (sons' sons) are entitled to his property, because the rights of the male are prior ² (21).

From the grandfather the property goes to the grandson by the deceased son, and thus it is that men proclaim that the father's self is in the image of the son (22).

In marital relationship, the Brāhmī wife is the superior, and the sonless man's property should go to the wife, who is half his body ³ (23).

The sonless widow, however, is not competent to sell or give away property inherited from her husband, except what is her own ⁴ by her own right (24).

Anything given by the fathers and fathers-in-law approved by Dharma, whatever is earned by her personal efforts, is to be recognized as Woman's Property ⁵ (25).

On her death it goes to the husband, and to his heirs according to the grades of descendants and ancestors (26).

If the woman remains faithful to her Dharma, and lives under the control of the relations of her husband, and in their absence under the control of her father's relations, then only is she entitled to inherit (27).

⁴ Sva-dhana.

⁵ Stri-dhana: Earned by artistic skill and the like.

If a woman be even suspected of irregular conduct¹ she is not entitled to inherit the husband's property. She is merely entitled to a living allowance from the heirs of her husband (28).

If the man who has died² has many wives, all of whom are pious, then, O Thou of pure Smiles! they are entitled to the husband's property in equal shares (29).

If the woman who inherits her husband's property dies leaving daughters, then the property is taken to have gone back to the husband³ and from him to the daughter (30).

In this way, if there is a daughter and the property goes to the son's widow, then, on the death of the latter, it will go back to the husband, and from the father-in-law descend to the daughter of the latter (31).

Similarly, O Shivā! if property goes to the mother in the lifetime of the paternal grandfather, then, on her death, it goes to her father-in-law through her son and husband (32).

As the property of the deceased ascends to the father, so it also ascends to the mother if she is a widow (33).

But the stepmother shall not inherit if the mother is living, but on the death of the mother it goes to the stepmother through the father (34).

Where, in the absence of descendants, the inheritance cannot descend, it will ascend the same way by which it descends (35).

Therefore, even when the father's brother is alive, the sister inherits the property, and if she dies childless then such property goes to the father's brother (36).

² Literally, who has gone to heaven.

³ Literally, "goes back to the husband"—i.e., the daughters take as heirs of their father, and not of their mother.

As inheritance descends in the male line, the stepbrother inherits even when there is a uterine sister (37).

And when there is a uterine sister and sons of stepbrother, it is the latter who inherit the property (38).

If the deceased leaves (surviving him) both uterine and stepbrother, then, by reason of the property descending through the father, they are entitled to inherit in equal shares (39).

In the lifetime of the daughters their sons are not entitled to inherit until the obstruction is removed by the death of the daughters (40).

In the absence of sons, the daughters divide among themselves the paternal property, after deducting the marriage expenses of an unmarried daughter (if any) out of the general estate¹ (41).

On the death of a childless woman the *Stri-dhana*² goes to her husband, and the property which she inherited from anyone else goes back to the line of the person from whom she inherited (42).

The woman may spend property inherited by her on her own maintenance, and she may spend profits of it on acts of religious merit, but she is not entitled to sell or make gifts of it (43).

Where the daughter-in-law of the grandfather (father's father) is living, and the stepmother of the father is living, the inheritance goes to the grandfather, and through his son to the (grandfather's) daughter-in-law (44).

Where the grandfather, the father's brother, and the brother are living, the brother succeeds by reason of the priority in claim of the descendant (45).

¹ That is, the unmarried daughter is entitled to these expenses in addition to a share equal to her sisters.

² See p. 364, vv. 24 and 25, ante.

If a man dies leaving (surviving him) his grandfather, brother, and uncle, both of the former are nearer in degree than the last, and the property descends through the father to the deceased's brother (46).

If the deceased leaves a daughter's son and father (surviving him), then the daughter's son inherits, because property (in the first place) descends (47).

If both the father and the mother of the deceased be living (at his death), then, O Kālikā! by reason of the superior claim of the male, the father takes his property (48).

If the mother's brother is living, the Sapindas of the father take the property of the deceased by reason of the superior claim of the paternal relationship (49).

Property failing to go downwards has (here) gone upwards, but, O Shivā! by reason of the superior claim of the male line it has gone to the father's family. The mother's brother, in spite of the nearness of his relationship, does not inherit (50).

The grandson by a deceased son inherits from his grandfather's estate the share which his father would have inherited along with his (the father's) brothers (51).

Similarly, the son's daughter who has no brother and whose parents are dead, inherits, if she be well conducted, her grandfather's (father's father) property with her father's brothers (52).

On the death of the grandfather leaving (surviving him) his wife, his daughter, and granddaughter,¹ the last, O Devī! is the heiress of the property, since she takes it through her father (53).

In property which descends, the male among the descendants, and in property which ascends, the male among the ascendants, are pre-eminently qualified (to inherit) (54).

Therefore, O Beloved! if the deceased has daughter-in-law, granddaughter,¹ and daughter surviving him, then his father cannot take the property (55).

If there is no one in the family of the father of the deceased entitled to inherit his property, then in manner above indicated it goes to the family of his mother's father (56).

Property which has gone to the maternal grandfather shall ascend and descend, and go both to males and females in the same way as in the father's family through the maternal uncle and his sons and others (57).

If the line of Brāhmī marriage or if the Sapindas of the father or of the mother, be in existence, then the issue of the Shaiva marriage² are not entitled to inherit the father's property (58).³

The wife and children of the Shaiva marriage, O Gentle One, are entitled to receive, from the person who inherits the property of the deceased, their food and clothes in proportion to the property left (59).

Beloved! the Shaiva wife, if well conducted, is entitled to be maintained by the Shaiva husband alone. She has no claim to the property of her father and others (60).

Therefore, the father who marries his well-born daughter according to Shaiva rites by reason of anger or covetousness will be despised of men (61).

In the absence of issue of the Shaiva marriage, the Sodaka,⁴ the Guru, and the King shall, by the injunctions of Shiva, take the property of the deceased (62).

³ Bhāratī says that in their absence they are entitled to inherit.

⁴ Samānodaka (see verse 63). The Sodaka has preference over the Guru and the latter over the King.

Beloved! ancestors within the seventh degree are Sapindas, and beyond them to the tenth degree are Sodakas, and beyond them are Gotra-jas merely (63).

Where property which has been divided is again willfully mixed together, it should be divided again as if it had not been divided (64).

The heirs of a deceased are on his death entitled to such share of property, whether partitioned or not partitioned, as the deceased himself was entitled to (65).

Those who inherit the property of another should offer him Pindas as long as they live; it is otherwise in the case of a son by Shaiva marriage¹ (66).

Just as the rules relating to Uncleanliness should, in this world, be observed by reason of birth-connection, so they should be observed for three nights by reason of connection by heirship (67).

The twice-born and other classes shall purify themselves by observing the rules as to Uncleanliness from the day they hear (the cause) of it until the end of the period prescribed; this is so both in the case of Pūrṇāshaucha² and of Khandāshaucha³ (68).

If the period has expired when one hears (the cause) of it, then there is no Khandāshaucha. And as regards Pūrṇāshaucha, it should be observed for only three days, but if one hears of the cause of the uncleanliness after the lapse of a year there is no period of Uncleanliness to be observed (69).

¹ Bhārati reads this as meaning that the Shaiva son is not competent to give Pinda (Tatpinda-dāne adhikāro nāsti). But is this so? The general rule is that inheritance cannot be taken without giving Pinda and under certain circumstances the Shaiva son may inherit (see v. 58). The verse may therefore mean that the Shaiva son is to offer Pinda to his father whether he inherits or not as a pious duty.

² The period of Ashaucha or Uncleanliness to be observed by Agnates within the seventh degree.

³ The period of Ashaucha observed by Agnates not within the seventh degree.

If a son hears of his father's or mother's death, or if the faithful wife hears of her husband's death after one year, then the son or the widow shall observe the period of Uncleanliness for three nights (70).

If during the continuance of a period of Uncleanliness another new period begins, then the period comes to an end with the end of the Garu-ashaucha¹ (71).

The degree² of different kinds of Uncleanliness depends on the greater or lesser length of the period which should be observed. Of the various kinds of Uncleanliness, that which is extensive in point of time is greater than that which is less extensive (72).

If on the last day of a period of Uncleanliness another period commences, then the Uncleanliness is removed on the last day of the first period of Uncleanliness; but if the cause of Uncleanliness be such as to necessitate the observance of the full period, then the pre-existing period should be extended by two days³ (73).

The unmarried female shall observe the period of Uncleanliness of the father's family, but after she is married she is to observe impurity for three days on the death of her parents (74).

After her marriage the wife becomes of the same Gotra⁴ as her husband; the adopted son similarly becomes of the same Gotra as the person who adopts him (75).

A son should be adopted with consent of his father and mother, and at the time of adoption the adopter should, with his kinsmen, perform the sacramental rites,¹ mentioning his own Gotra and name (76).

² Gurutva = weight.

³ i.e., if a Khandāshaucha commences on the last day of a Pūrṇāshaucha, then both expire at the same time on expiration of the Pūrṇāshaucha; but if another Pūrṇāshaucha occurs on the last day, then the period of the first Pūrṇāshaucha is extended two days, and both expire on the same day.

The adopted son shall have the same right to the property of his adoptive mother and father, and the same rights to offer Pindas to them as the natural-born son has, since they are his mother and father (77).

A boy of less than five years of age and of one's own caste should be adopted and brought up; a boy of over five years of age is not eligible (78).

O Kālikā! if a brother adopts his brother's son, then the brother adopting becomes the father, and the natural father becomes the uncle of the boy so adopted (79).

He who inherits the property of another should observe the Dharma of the person he inherits;² he should also follow his family custom and please his kinsmen (80).

In the case of the death of Kānīnas,³ Golakas,⁴ Kundas,⁵ and persons guilty of very great sins,⁶ there is no Uncleanliness to be observed, and they are not qualified to inherit (81).

In the case of the death of a man who has been punished by castration, or of a woman who has been punished by the cutting of her nose, or of persons guilty of great sins,⁷ there is no period of Uncleanliness to be observed (82).

The King should for twelve years protect the family and property of those of whom no news is known, and who have disappeared without any trace of their whereabouts (83).

² By this is meant—Should carry out religious worship of the deceased, as where a Shākteya inherits property of a Vaishnava, he need not change his own mode of worship, but should simply maintain the service of the Devatā in the way the deceased used to.

On the expiration of twelve years the image of such a person should be made with Kusha grass and cremated. His children and others should observe a period of uncleanness for three days, and liberate him from the condition of a Preta¹ (84).

The King should then divide his property among the members of his family in their order, beginning with the son; otherwise he (the King) incurs sin (85).

The King should protect the man who has no protector, who is powerless, who is in the midst of adversity, because the King is the Lord of his subjects (86).

Kālikā! if the man who has disappeared returns after the lapse of twelve years, then he shall recover his wife, children, and property; there is no doubt of that (87).

Even a man is not competent to give away ancestral, immovable property, either to his own people or to strangers, without the consent of his heirs (88).

A man may, at his pleasure, give away self-acquired property, be it movable or immovable, and may also give away ancestral movable property (89).

If there be a son or wife living, or daughter or daughter's son, or father or mother, or brother or sister, even then one may give away self-acquired property, both movable and immovable, and inherited movable property (90-91).

If a man gives away or dedicates such property to any religious object, then his sons and others cannot annul such gift or dedication (92).

Property dedicated to any religious object should be looked after by the giver. The latter is, however, not competent to take it back, because the ownership of such property is in Dharma¹ (93).

Ambikā!² the property or the profits thereof should be employed by the dedicator himself, or his agent, for the religious object³ to which it was dedicated (94).

If the proprietor out of affection gives away half his self-acquired property to any of his heirs, then his other heirs shall not be able to annul the gift⁴ (95).

If the proprietor gives half his self-acquired wealth to any of his heirs, in such a case the other heirs shall not be able to avoid such gift (96).

If one of several brothers earns money with the help of the paternal property, then, while the other brothers are entitled to proportionate shares of the paternal property, no one but the acquirer is entitled to the profits (97).

If one brother acquires ancestral property which was lost, then he shall receive two shares, and the other brothers shall each receive one share (98).

Religious merit, wealth, and learning are all dependent on the body, and inasmuch as this body comes from the father, then (in such sense) what is there which is not paternal property? (99).

If whatever men earn, even when separate in mess and separate in property, is to be considered paternal property then what is there that is self-acquired? (100).

Therefore, O Great Devī!⁵ whatever money is earned by one's own individual labour shall be self-acquired; the person acquiring it shall be the owner thereof, and no one else (101).

O Devī! the man who even lifts his hand against his mother, father, Guru, paternal and maternal grandfathers,¹ shall not inherit (102).

The man who kills another shall not inherit his property; but the other heirs of the person killed shall inherit his property (103).

Ambikā! eunuchs and persons who are crippled are entitled to food and clothes so long as they live, but they are not entitled to inherit property (104).

If a man finds property which belongs to another, on the road or anywhere else, then the King shall, after due deliberation, make the finder restore it to the owner (105).

If a man finds property, or a beast of which there is no owner, then the finder becomes the owner of the same, but should give the King a tenth share of such property or beast (or of the value thereof) (106).

If there be a competent buyer for immovable property, who is a near neighbour,² then it is not competent for the owner of the immovable property to sell the same to another³ (107).

Among buyers who are near, the agnate⁴ and one of the same caste⁵ are specially qualified, and in their absence friends, but the desire of the seller should prevail⁶ (108).

¹ By this other ancestors are also meant.

³ This and the following verses deal with the right of pre-emption.

⁴ Jnāti—i.e., a person within the same Gotra.

⁵ Savarna.

⁶ Bhāratī adds—If there be several buyers belonging to any of these classes, the person to whom the seller wishes to sell the property will have a predominant claim.

If immovable property is about to be sold at a price fixed, and a neighbour pays the same price, then the latter is entitled to purchase it and no other (109).

If the neighbour is unable to pay the price and consents to the sale (to another), then only may the house-holder sell the property to another (110).

O Devī! if immovable property be brought without the knowledge of the neighbour, the latter is entitled to have it upon the condition of his paying the price immediately he hears of such sale (111).

Should, however, the buyer, after purchasing it, have converted the place into a garden, or built a house thereon, or if he has pulled down any building, the neighbour is not entitled in such a case to obtain the immovable property by the payment of its price (112).

A man may, without permission, without payment, and without obstruction, bring under cultivation any land which rises from the water,¹ which is in the middle of a forest, or otherwise difficult of access (113).

Where land has been brought under cultivation by considerable labour, the King, since he is the Lord of the soil, should be given a tenth of the profits of the land, and the rest should be enjoyed by him who has reclaimed it (114).

One should not excavate tanks, reservoirs, or wells, nor plant trees, nor build houses in places where they are likely to injure other people (115).

All have the right to drink the water of tanks and wells dedicated to Devas, as also the water of rivers, but the neighbours alone have the right to bale² it out (116).

The water should not be baled out of tanks and so forth, even by neighbours, if to do so would cause a water famine (117).

² Sechana—for irrigation purposes.

The mortgage¹ and sale of property which is undivided without the consent of the co-sharers, as also when the right of the parties therein is not determined, is invalid (118).

If property mortgaged or deposited with another is destroyed wilfully or by negligence, then the King should make the mortgagee or depositee restore the value thereof to the owner (119).

If any animal or any other thing is used with the consent of the depositor by the person with whom they are placed, then the depositee should bear the expense of food and keep (120).

Where immovable or movable property is made over to another for profit, such transaction will be invalid if it be not for a definite time, or if the amount of profits is indeterminate (121).

Common (joint) property should not, on the father's death, be employed for profit without the consent of all the co-sharers (122).

If articles are sold at improper prices,² then the King may set aside such sale (123).

As a body is born and dies only once, and property can be given away only once, so there can be but one Brāhma marriage of the daughter³ (124).

The man, devoted to his ancestors, who has an only son, should not give him away (in adoption), and, similarly, he should not give away an only wife or an only daughter in Shaiva marriage (125).

The immutable rule is that the Agent¹ should not be punished for the guilt of the employer (127).

In monetary dealings, in agriculture, in mercantile transactions, as also in all other dealings, whatever is undertaken, the same should be performed if in agreement with Dharma² (128).

The Lord protects this universe, Whoever wish to destroy it will be themselves destroyed, and whosoever protect it, then the Lord of the Universe Himself protects. Therefore should one act for the good of the world (129).

CHAPTER XIII

INSTALLATION OF THE DEVATA

PĀRVATĪ, the Mother of the three worlds, Her mind engrossed with thoughts for the purification of men polluted with the impurities of the Kali Age, humbly questioned Mahesha, the Deva of Devas, who had thus spoken of the essence of all the Nigamas, which is the Seed of heaven¹ and final Liberation² (as follows) (1).

Shrī Devī said :

How can Mahākālī be endowed of form, She who is the Great Cause,³ the Primordial Power,⁴ the Great Light, more subtle than the subtlest Elements ? (2).

It is only that which is the Effect of Prakṛiti which has form.⁵ How should She have form ? She is above the most high. It behoves Thee, O Deva ! to completely remove this doubt of Mine (3).

Shrī Sadāshiva said :

Beloved ! I have already said that to meet the needs⁶ of the worshippers the image of the Devī is formed according to Her qualities and actions (4).

⁴ Ādī-Shakti.

⁵ Rūpang prakṛiteḥ kāryānām, that is, Vikṛiti.

As white, yellow, and other colours all disappear in black, in the same way, O Shailajā!¹ all beings enter Kālī (5).

Therefore it is, that by those who have attained the Knowledge² of the means of final Liberation, the attributeless, formless, and beneficent Kālashakti³ is endowed with the colour of blackness (6).

As the eternal and changeless and beneficent One in the form of Kāla⁴ is nectar itself, therefore the sign of the Moon is placed on Her forehead⁵ (7). As She surveys the entire universe, which is the product of Time,⁶ with Her three eyes—the Moon, Sun and Fire⁷—therefore She is endowed with three eyes (8).

As (at the final Dissolution) She devours⁸ all existence,⁹ as She chews all things existing with Her fierce¹⁰ teeth, therefore a mass of blood¹¹ is said to be the apparel of the Queen of the Devas (9).

As time after time She protects all beings from danger, and O Shivā, as She directs them in the paths of duty, Her hands are lifted up to dispel fear¹² and grant blessings¹³ (10)

¹ Shailajā—Born of the Mountain. So She is also called Girijā.

² Yoga=Jnāna here means Brahmajñāna.

THE GREAT LIBERATION

As She encompasses the worlds, which are the product of Rajoguna,¹ She is spoken of, O Gentle One! as the Devī who is seated on a red lotus. The Devī, Who as Consciousness itself² witnesseth all things³ is gazing at Kāla elated with the wine of ignorance and playing⁴ with the universe⁵ (11-12).

It is for the benefit of such worshippers as are of little understanding that the different forms⁶ are imagined⁷ according to the attributes (of the Divinity) (13).

Shrī Devī said :

What merit does the worshipper gain who makes an image of the Great Devī of mud, stone, wood, or metal, in accordance with the representation⁸ described by Thee for the salvation of humanity, and who decks the same with clothes and jewels, and who, in a beautifully decorated house, consecrates it? (14-15).

² Chinmayī = Jñānasvarūpā, for She is one with the Supreme Brahman who is Chit.

³ Sarva-sākshi-sva-rūpini. "Sva-rūpini," because, though it is the Puruṣha who is the witness, She is Herself the Brahman, and therefore also a witness, just as She, too, is also Chinmayī.

⁴ i.e., the restless play of Time with the universe is seen in the never-ceasing changes it effects.

⁵ Universe—Kālika (because it is originated from Kāla, or Time). In the Dhyāna in verse 141, Chapter V, Kāla is described as dancing before the Devī. The "wine" is Moha or Avidyā, ignorance. Pitvā mohamayim surām.

⁸ Dhyāna, or representation which is the subject of it.

O Lord! out of Thy kindness for Me, reveal this also, with all the particular rules according to which the image of the Devī should be consecrated (16).

Thou hast already spoken of the consecration of Tanks, Wells, Houses, Gardens, and the images of Devas, but Thou didst not speak in detail (17).

I wish to hear the injunctions relating to them from Thy lotus-mouth. Out of Thy kindness, speak, O Parameshāna! if it pleases Thee (18).

Shrī Sadāshiva said :

O Parameshvari! this is a very secret and weighty Question¹ which Thou hast asked. Do thou, therefore, listen attentively (19).

There are two classes of men—those who act with,² and without,³ a view to the fruits of action. The latter attain final Liberation. I am now speaking of the former (20).

Beloved! the man who consecrates the image of a Deva goes to the region of such Deva, and enjoys that which⁴ is there attainable (21).

He who consecrates an image of mud stays in such region for ten thousand Kalpas. He who consecrates an image of wood stays there ten times that period. In the case of the consecration of a stone image the length of stay is ten times the latter period, and in the case of the consecration of a metal image, it is ten times the last-mentioned period (22).

Listen to the merit⁵ which is acquired by the man who, in the name of any Deva, or for the attainment of any desire, builds and consecrates and gives away a temple made of timber and thatch and other materials, or renovates such a temple, decorated with flags and images of the carriers¹ of the Deva (23).

He who gives away a thatched temple shall live in the region of the Devas for one thousand Koti² years (24).

He who gives away a brick-built temple shall live a hundred times that period, and he who gives away a stone-built temple, ten thousand times the last-mentioned period (25).

Ādyā!³ the man who builds and dedicates a bridge or causeway shall not see the region of Yama, but will happily reach the abode of the Suras,⁴ and will there have enjoyment in their company (26).

He who dedicates trees and gardens goes to the region of the Devas,⁵ and lives in celestial houses surrounded by Kalpa⁶ trees in the enjoyment of all desired and agreeable enjoyments (27).

Those who give away tanks⁷ and so forth for the comfort of all beings are washed of all sins, and, having attained the blissful region of Brahmā, reside there a hundred years for each drop of water which they contain (28).

Devī! the man who dedicates the image of a Vāhana⁸ for the pleasure of any Deva shall live continually in the region of such Deva, protected by Him (29).

² Koti = Crore = 100 lacs—i.e., 10,000,000.

³ Primordial One.

⁴ i.e., Devas whose abode is heaven.

⁵ Tridasha-mandira.

⁶ Trees which grant all desires.

⁷ Jalāshaya—places where water can be had.

⁸ Each Deva has got his separate Vāhana, or carrier, usually an animal. Thus, Vishnu has Garuda, Shiva the Bull, Yama the Bison, etc.

Ten times the merit which is acquired on earth by the gift of a Vāhana made of mud is acquired by the gift of one made of wood, and ten times the latter is acquired by the gift of one made of stone. Should one made of brass or bell-metal or copper, or any other metal, be given, then the merit is multiplied in each case tenfold (30-31).

The excellent worshipper should present a great lion¹ to the temple of Devī, a bull² to the temple of Shāṅkara,³ and a Garuḍa⁴ to the temple of Keshava⁵ (32).

The great lion has sharp teeth, a ferocious mouth, and mane on his neck and shoulder. The claws of his four feet are as hard as the thunderbolt (33).

The bull is horned, is white of body, and has four black hoofs, a large hump, black hair at the end of his tail, and black shoulders (34).

The Garuḍa is winged, has thighs like a bird, and a face like a man's, with a long nose. He is seated on his hunches, with folded palms (35).

By the present of flags and flag-staffs the Devas remain pleased for a hundred years. The flag-staffs should be thirty-two cubits long (36), and should be strong, without defects, straight, and pleasant to look at. It should be wrapped round with a red cloth, with a Chakra⁶ at its top (37).

The flag should be attached to the top of the staff, and should be marked with the image of the carrier⁷ of the particular Devatā. It should be broad at the part nearest the staff and narrow at the other end. It should be made of fine cloth. In short, whatever ornaments the top of the flag-staff is a flag (38).

Whatever a man presents with faith and devotion in the name of a Deva, be it clothes, jewels, beds, carriages, vessels for drinking and eating, Pān plates,¹ spittoon, precious stones, pearl, coral, gems, or anything else with which he is pleased, such a man will reach the region of such Deva and receive in turn a Koti,² times the presents he made (39-40).

Those who worship with the object of attaining³ a particular reward gain such reward which (however) is as perishable as a kingdom enjoyed in a dream. Those, however, who rightly act without⁴ hope of reward attain Nirvāna,⁵ and are released from rebirth (41).

In ceremonies relating to the dedication⁶ of a reservoir of water, a house, a garden, a bridge, a causeway, a Devatā, or a tree, the Vāstu Daitya⁶ should be carefully worshipped (42).

The man who performs any of these ceremonies without worshipping the Vāstu-Daitya is troubled by the Vāstu-Daitya and his followers (43).

⁴ i.e., for the sake of right itself, and without regard to the fruits thereof.

⁵ Pratishthā—which is derived from Prati and Sthā = to stay, means the act of making anything, stand firmly, establishing firmly.

The twelve followers of the Vāstu-Daitya are Kapi-lāśya,¹ Pīṃgakesha,² Bhīṣhana,³ Raktalochana,⁴ Kotarāksha,⁵ Lambakarna,⁶ Dīrghajamgha,⁷ Mahodara,⁸ Ashvatunda,⁹ Kākāntha,¹⁰ Vajrabāhu,¹¹ and Vratāntaka,¹² and these followers of Vāstu should be propitiated with great care (44-45).

Now, listen! I am speaking of the Mandala where the Vāstu-Purusha should be worshipped (46).

On an altar¹³ or on a level space, which has been well washed with pure water, a straight line should be drawn, one cubit in length, from the Vāyu¹⁴ to the Īshāna¹⁵ corner. In the same manner another line should be drawn from the Īshāna¹⁵ to the Agni¹⁶ corner, and another from the Agni¹⁶ to the Nairrita¹⁷ corner, and then from the Nairrita¹⁷ to the Vāyu¹⁴ corner (47-48).

By these straight lines a square Mandala should be drawn (49). Then two lines should be drawn from corner to corner (diagonally) to divide the Mandala into four parts, like four fish-tails (50).

² Of tawny hair.

³ The ferocious one.

⁴ With red eyes.

⁵ Having deep-sunk eyes.

⁶ Having long ears.

⁷ Having long shins.

⁸ Having a large belly,

¹⁰ Having the voice of a crow.

¹¹ Having arms like the thunder-bolt, i.e., strong arms.

¹² Destroyer of Vratas as were the Anāryas.

¹⁵ N. E. corner.

¹⁶ S. E. corner.

¹⁷ S. W. corner.

The worshipper versed in ritual should then draw two lines, one from the West to the East, and other from the North to the South, through the point where the diagonal lines cut one another, so as to pass through the tip of the fish-tails (51).

Then four diagonal lines should be drawn connecting the corners of the four inner squares so formed by the lines at each of the corners (52).

According to these rules, sixteen spaces should be drawn with five different colours, and an excellent Yantra thus made (53).

In the four middle rooms draw a beautiful lotus with four petals, the pericarp of yellow and red colour, and the filaments of red (54).

The petals may be white or yellow, and the interstices may be coloured with any colour chosen (55).

Beginning with the corner of Shambhu,¹ the twelve spaces should be filled up with the four colours—viz., white, black, yellow, and red (56).²

In filling up the spaces one should go towards one's left, and in the worship of the Devas therein one should go to the right (57).

The Vāstu Spirit should be worshipped in the lotus, and the twelve Daityas,³ Kapilāśya and others, should be worshipped in the twelve rooms, beginning with the Īshāna⁴ corner (58).

Fire should be consecrated according to the injunctions laid down for Kushandikā,⁵ and after offer of oblations to the best of one's ability, the Vāstu-yajna should be concluded (59).

I have thus described, O Devī! the auspicious Vāstu worship, by the performance of which a man never suffers dangers from Vāstu (and his followers) (60).

Shrī Devī said :

Thou hast described the Mandala of, and the injunctions relating to, the worship of Vāstu, but, My Husband, Thou hast not spoken of the Dhyāna; do Thou now reveal it (61).

Shrī Sadāshiva said :

I am speaking of Dhyāna of the Vāstu-Rākshasa,¹ by constant and devoted repetition of which all dangers are destroyed. O Maheshānī! do Thou listen (62).

The Deva Vāstu-pati² should be meditated upon as four-armed, of great body, his head covered with matted hair, three-eyed, of ferocious aspect, decked with garlands and earrings, with big belly and long ears and hairy body, wearing yellow garments, holding in his hand the mace, the trident, the axe, and the Khatvāṅga.³ Let him be pictured as (red) like the rising Sun and like the Deva of Death to the enemies, seated in the Padmāsana⁴ posture on the back of a tortoise, surrounded by Kapilāsya and other powerful followers, carrying swords and shields (63-66).

Whenever there is panic caused by pestilence or epidemics, an apprehension of any public calamity, danger due to evil influences to one's children, or fear arising from ferocious beasts or Rākshasas,⁵ then Vāstu with his followers should be meditated upon as above, and then worshipped, and thus all manner of peace may be obtained by the offer of oblations of sesamum-seeds, ghee, and Pāyasa¹ (67-68).

O Suvratā!² in these rites the Grahas³ and the ten Dikpālas⁴ should be worshipped in the same way as Vāstu is worshipped (69).

Brahmā, Vishnu, Rudra,⁵ Vānī, Lakshmi, Shāmkarī the celestial mothers, Ganesha, and the Vasus,⁶ should also be worshipped (70).

O Kālīka! if in these rites the Pitris⁷ are not satisfied, then all which is done becomes fruitless, and there is danger in every stage (71).

Therefore, O Maheshī! in all these rites Ābhyudayika Shrāddha⁸ should be performed for the satisfaction of the Pitris (72).

I shall now speak of the Graha-yantra,⁹ which is the cause of all kinds of peace. If the Dikpālas Indra and others and all the planets are worshipped therein they grant every desire (73).

In order to draw the Yantra three triangles¹⁰ should be drawn with a circle outside them, and outside, but touching the circle, eight petals should be drawn (74).

⁸ See p. 308, note 4.

⁹ Diagram of the nine Planets.

¹⁰ Of these two are downward turned, and the three intersect one another so that nine triangles are formed.

Then should a beautiful Bhūpura¹ be drawn (outside the petals of the Yantra) with four entrances, and (outside the Bhūpura) between the East and North-East corners a circle should be drawn with its diameter the length of a Prādesha,² and between the West and the South-West-corners another similar circle should be drawn (75-76).

Then the nine triangles³ should be filled up with the colours of the nine planets, and the left and right sides of the middle triangle should be made white and yellow, and the base should be black. The eight petals should be filled up with the colours of the eight regents of the quarters⁴ (77-78).

The walls of the Bhūpura should be decorated with white, red, and black powders, and, O Devī! the two circles each of which measure a Prādesha outside the Bhūpura should be coloured the upper one red and the lower white, and the intervening spaces of the Yantra may be coloured in any manner the wise may choose (79-80).

Listen now to the order in which each planet should be worshipped in the particular houses, and in which each Dikpati⁵ should be worshipped in the particular petals, and to the names of the Devas who are present at each particular entrance (81).

In the inner triangle the Sun should be worshipped, and in the angles on the two sides Aruna⁶ and Shikhā.⁷

⁵ Or Dikpāla.

⁶ The charioteer of the Sun.

⁷ The rays of the Sun.

Behind Him with the garland of rays¹, the two standards of the two fierce ones (Shikhā and Aruna) should be worshipped (82).

Worship the Maker of nights² in the triangle above the Sun on the East, in the Agni³ corner Maṅgala,⁴ on the South side Budha,⁵ in the Nirrita⁶ corner Vrihaspati,⁷ on the West Shukra,⁸ in the Vāyu⁹ corner Shani,¹⁰ in the corner on the North Rāhu,¹¹ and in the Īshāna¹² corner Ketu,¹³ and, lastly, round about the Moon the multitude of stars (83-84). Sun is red, Moon is white,¹⁴ Maṅgala is tawny, Budha is pale¹⁵ or yellowish-white, Vrihaspati is yellow,¹⁶ Shukra is white,¹⁷ Shani is black,¹⁸ and Rāhu and Ketu are of variegated colour; thus I have spoken of the different colours of the Grahas (83-85).

The Sun should be meditated upon as having four hands, in two of which he is holding lotuses; and of the other two, one hand is lifted up to dispel fear,¹⁹ and the other makes the sign of blessing.¹ The Moon should be meditated upon as having nectar in one hand, and the other hand in the attitude of giving.² Maṅgala should be meditated upon as slightly bent and holding a staff in his hands. The son of Moon, Budha, should be meditated upon as a boy, the locks of whose hair play about upon his forehead. Guru³ should be meditated upon with a sacred thread, and holding a book in one hand and a string of Rudrākṣha beads in the other; and the Guru of the Daityas⁴ should be meditated upon as blind of one eye, and Shani as lame, and Rāhu as a trunkless head, and Ketu as a headless trunk, both deformed and wicked (86-88).

Having worshipped each of the planets in this manner, the eight Dikpālas, Indra and others, beginning from the East, should be worshipped (89).

He of a thousand eyes,⁵ of a yellow colour, should first be worshipped. He is dressed in yellow silk garments, and, holding the thunderbolt in his hand, is seated on Airāvata⁶ (90).

The body of Agni is of red hue. He is seated on a goat; in his hand is the Shakti.⁷ Yama is black, and, holding a staff⁸ in his hand, is seated on a bison. Nirriti is of dark green colour,⁹ and, holding a sword in his hand, is seated on a horse. Varuna is white, and, seated on a Makara,¹ holds a noose² in his hand. Vāyu should be meditated on as possessed of a black radiance, seated on a deer and holding a goad.³ Kuvera is of the colour of gold, and seated on a jewelled lion-seat,⁴ holding the noose⁵ and hook⁶ in his hands. He is surrounded by Yakshas,⁷ who are singing his praises. Īshāna is seated on the bull; he holds the trident in one hand, and with the other bestows blessings. He is dressed in raiments of tiger-skin, and his effulgence is like that of the full moon (91-95).

Having thus meditated upon and worshipped them in their order, Brahmā should be worshipped in the upper circle, which is outside the Mandala, and Vishnu in the lower one. Then the Devatās at the entrances should be worshipped (96).

Ugra,⁸ Bhīma, Prachanda, and Īsha, are at the eastern entrance; Jayanta, Kshetra-pāla, Nakulesha, and Vrihat-shirāḥ, are at the southern entrance; at the door on the west are Vrika, Ashva, Ānanda, and Durjaya; and Tri-shirāḥ, Purajit, Bhīmanāda, and Mahodara are at the northern entrance. As protectors of the entrances, they are all armed with weapons, offensive and defensive (97-98).

Suvratā! listen to the Dhyāna⁹ of Brahmā and Ananta. Brahmā is of the colour of the red lotus, and has four hands and four faces. He is seated on a swan.

He has thousands of eyes and feet, thousands of hands and faces, and he should be meditated upon by Suras and Asuras¹ (99-101).

Beloved! I have now spoken of the meditation,² the mode of worship, and the Yantra.³ Now, my beloved, listen to their Mantras in their order, beginning with the Vāstu Mantra (102).

MANTRAS

When *Ksha-kāra*⁴ is placed on the Carrier⁵ of Oblations, and the six long vowels are then added to it, and adorned with the Nāda-Bindu,⁶ the six-lettered Vāstu Mantra is formed (103).

The Sūrya Mantra is thus formed: first the *Tāra*⁷ should be said; then the *Māyā*⁸; then the word *Tigma-rashme*⁹; then the word *Ārogya-da*¹⁰ in the dative singular; and, last of all, the *Shakti*¹¹ of Fire (104).

¹ Devas and Daityas. Thousands of 'eyes, etc., in the sense of countless eyes and so on. Cf. Purusha-sūkta.

⁷ i.e., Oṅ-kāra = Om.

⁸ i.e., Māyā-bija = Hrīṅg.

⁹ O Thou with burning rays!

¹⁰ To the giver of good health.

¹¹ Svāhā. The Mantra is—Oṅ Hrīṅg Tigma-rashme ārogyadāya Svāhā.

The approved Mantra of Soma is formed by saying the Bijas¹ of Kāma, Māyā and Vānī, then Amrita-kara, amritam plāvaya plāvaya Svāhā (105).

The Mantra of Maṅgala is Aing Hrāṅg Hrīṅg Sarva-dushṭān nāshaya nāshaya Svāhā² (106).

The Mantra of the son of Soma³ is Hrāṅg, Shrīṅg, Saumya sarvān kāmān pūraya Svāhā⁴ (107).

The Mantra of the Sura-Guru⁵ is formed thus: Let the Tāra⁵ precede and follow the Bija of Vānī, and then say, Abhishtam yachchha yachchha, and lastly Svāhā⁶ (108).

The Mantra of Shukra is Shāṅg, Shīṅg, Shūṅg, Shaing, Shaung, Shngah (109).

The Mantra of the Slowly Moving One⁷ is Hrāṅg Hrāṅg Hrīṅg Sarva-shatrūn vidrāvaya vidrāvaya Mārtandasūnave Namah—Destroy, destroy all enemies—I bow to the son of Mārtanda⁸ (110).

The Mantra of Rāhu is Rāṅg, Hraung, Bhraung,⁹ Hrīṅg—Soma-shatro shatrūn vidhvamsaya vidhvamsaya Rāhave Namah—O Enemy of Soma (Moon)! destroy, destroy all enemies. I bow to Rāhu (111).

Krūṅg, Hrūṅg, Kraing Ketave Svāhā is the Mantra of Ketu¹⁰ (112).

² Destroy all the wicked, destroy all the wicked.

⁷ Shani, who is lame.

⁸ i.e., the Sun.

⁹ A variation is Bhraing.

¹⁰ See p. 334, note 12.

Lang, Rang, Mring, Strūṅg, Vang, Yang, Kshang, Haung, Brīṅg, and Ang are in their order¹ the ten Mantras of the ten Dikpālas, beginning with Indra and ending with Ananta (113).

The names of the other attendant Devas are their Mantras; in all instances where there is no Mantra mentioned this is the rule as enjoined by Shiva (114).

Sovereign Mistress of the Devas²! the wise man should not add Namaḥ to Mantras that end with the word Namaḥ, nor should he put the Shakti³ of Vahni to a Mantra that ends with Svāhā (115).

To the Planets and others should be given flowers, clothes, and jewels, but the colour of the gifts should be the same as that of the respective Planets; otherwise they are not pleased (116).

The wise man should place Fire in the manner prescribed for Kushandikā,⁴ and perform Homa either with flowers of variegated colours or with sacred fuel⁵ (117).

In rites for the attainment of peace⁶ or good fortune, or nourishment⁷ or prosperity, the Carrier of Oblations⁸ is called Varada⁹; in rites relating to consecration¹⁰ he is called *Lohitāksha*¹; in destructive rites² he is called *Shatruhā*³ (118).

Maheshānī! in Shānti,⁴ Pushti,⁴ and *Krūra*⁴ rites the man who worships the Planets will obtain the desired end (119).

As in the rites relating to the consecration⁵ the Devas should be worshipped and libations offered to the Pitris,⁶ so also should there be the same sacrifices to Vāstu and the Planets (120).

Should one have to perform two or three consecratory and sacrificial rites on the same day, then the worship of the Devas, the Shrāddha of the Pitris, and Consecration of Fire are required once only (121).

One who desires the fruit of his observances should not give to any Deva reservoirs of water, houses, gardens, bridges, causeways, carriers,⁷ conveyances,⁸ clothes, jewels, drinking-cups, and eating-plates, or whatever else he may desire to give, without first purifying⁹ and consecrating the same (122-123).

In all rites performed with an ultimate object the wise one should in all cases perform a Saṁkalpa,¹⁰ in accordance with directions, for the full attainment of the good object (124).

¹⁰ Preliminary rite expressive of determination. Saṁkalpa means determination.

Complete merit is earned when the thing about to be given is first purified, worshipped, and mentioned by name, and then the name of him to whom it is given is pronounced (125).

I will now tell you the Mantras for the consecration of reservoirs of water, houses, gardens, bridges, causeways and trees. The Mantras should always be preceded by the *Brahma-Vidyā*¹ (126).

MANTRAS

Reservoir of Water! thou that givest life to all beings! thou that art presided over by Varuna! may this consecration of thee (by me) give satisfaction to all beings that live and move in water, on land, and in air (127).

House, thou art made of timber and grass, thou art the favourite of Brahmā; I am consecrating thee with water; do thou be always the cause of pleasure (128).

When consecrating a house made of bricks and other materials, one should say: "House made of bricks," and so forth (129).

MANTRAS

Garden! thou art pleasant by reason of thy fruits, leaves, and branches, and by thy shadows. I am sprinkling thee with sacred water²; grant me all my wishes (130).

Bridge! thou art like the bridge across the Ocean of Existence, thou art welcome to the wayfarer; do thou, being consecrated by me, grant me the fitting reward thereof (131).

Causeway! I am consecrating thee, as thou helpest people in going from one place to another: do thou likewise help me on my way to Heaven (132).

The wise should use the same Mantra is consecrating a tree as is prescribed for the sprinkling of a garden (133).

In consecrating all other things, the Pranava,¹ Vāruna,² and Astra³ should be used (134).

Those Vāhanas that can (or ought to) be bathed should be bathed with the Brahma-gāyatrī⁴; others should be purified by sprinkling with Arghya-water taken up with the ends of Kusha grass (135).

After performing Prāna-pratishthā,⁵ calling it by its name, the Vāhana called by its name should be duly worshipped, and decked out and then be given to the Devatā (136).

Whilst consecrating a reservoir, Varuna, the Lord of aquatic animals, should be worshipped. In the case of a house, Brahmā, the Lord of all things born,⁶ should there be worshipped. Whilst consecrating a garden, a bridge, a causeway, Vishnu, Who is the Protector of the universe,⁷ the Spirit of all,⁸ Who witnesseth all and is omnipresent, should be worshipped (137).

Rites not properly performed according to the order enjoined do not, even though performed with labour, yield the full benefit to men who follow the life of Karma¹ (139).

Shrī Sadāshiva said :

O Parameshānī ! Thou art beneficent like a mother. What Thou hast said is indeed the best for men whose minds are occupied with the results (or their efforts) (140).

The practices relating to the aforementioned rites are different. Devī ! I am relating them in their order, beginning with the Vāstu-yāga. Do Thou listen attentively (141).

He (who wishes to perform the Vāstu-yāga) should the day previous thereto live on regulated food.² After bathing in the early auspicious hour of morning, and performing the ordinary daily religious duties, he should worship the Guru and Nārāyana³ (142).

The worshipper should then, after making Samkalpa,⁴ worship Ganesha and others for the attainment of his own object, according to the rules shown in the ordinances (143).

DHYĀNA

Worship Ganapati,⁵ Who is of the colour of the Bandhūka⁶ flower, and has three eyes ; Whose head is that of the best of elephants ; Whose sacred thread is made of the King of Snakes ; Who is holding in his four lotus hands the Conch, the Discus, the Sword, and a spotless Lotus ; on

⁶ A red flower.

Whose forehead is the rising young moon; the shining effulgence of Whose body and raiments is like that of the Sun; Who is decked with various jewels, and is seated on a red lotus (144).

Having thus meditated upon and worshipped Ganesha to the best of his ability, he should worship Brahmā, Vānī,¹ Vishnu, and Lakshmi (145).

Then, after worshipping Shiva, Durgā, the Grahas,² the sixteen Mothers, and the Vasus in the Vasudhārā,³ he should perform the Briddhishrāddha⁴ (146).

Then the Mandala⁵ of the Vāstu-daitya should be drawn, and there the Vāstu-daitya with his followers should be worshipped (147).

Then make there a Sthandila⁶ and purifying fire as before; first perform Dhārā-homa,⁷ and then commence Vāstu-homa⁸ (148).

Oblations should be offered to the Vāstu-purusha and all his followers according to the best of one's ability. The sacrifice should be brought to a close by the offering of oblations to the Devas worshipped⁹ (149).

When Vāstu-yajna is separately performed, this is the order which is prescribed, and in this order also the sacrifice to the planets should be performed (150).

Moreover, the Planets being here the principal objects of worship, they should not be subordinately worshipped.

⁸ Fire sacrifice to the Vāstu spirit.

⁹ That is when it is the principal rite. In a case like this the order prescribed for any other rite is to be followed.

The Vāstu should be worshipped immediately after the Saṁkalpa¹ (151).

Ganesha and the other Devas should be worshipped as in Vāstu-yāga. I have already spoken to Thee of the Yantra² and Mantra and Dhyāna³ of the Planets (152).

I have, O Gentle One! during My discourse with Thee, spoken of the order to be observed in the Yajnas of the planets and of Vāstu. I shall now speak to Thee of the various praiseworthy acts, beginning with the consecration of wells (153).

After making Saṁkalpa¹ in the proper manner, Vāstu should be worshipped either in a Mandala, or a jar,⁴ or a Shālagrāma,⁵ according to inclination (154).

Then Ganapati⁶ should be worshipped, as also Brahmā and Vānī,⁷ Hari⁸ and Ramā,⁹ Shiva and Durgā, the Planets and the Dikpatis¹⁰ (155).

Then the Mātrikās¹¹ and the eight Vasus¹² having been worshipped, Pitrikriyā¹³ should be performed. Since Varuna is principal Deva (for the purposes of this ceremony), He should be worshipped with particular care (156).

Having worshipped Varuna with various presents to the best of his ability, Vāruna Homa¹ should then be performed in Fire duly consecrated (157). And after offering oblations to each of the Devas worshipped, he should bring the Homa rite to an end by giving the Purnāhuti² (158).

Then he should sprinkle the excellent well, decorated with flagstaves and flags, garlands, scents, and vermillion, with the Prokshana Mantra,³ spoken of before (159).

Then he should, in the name of the Deva,⁴ or for the attainment of the object of his desire, give away the well or tank for the benefit of all beings (160).

Then the most excellent worshipper should make supplication with folded palms as follows :

"Be well pleased, all beings, whether living in the air or on earth or in water ; I have given this excellent water to all beings ; may all beings be satisfied by bathing in, drinking from, or plunging into this water ; I have given this common water to all beings. Should anyone by his own misfortune be endangered in this, may I not be guilty of that sin,⁵ may my (good) work bear fruit !" (161-163).

Then presents should be made, and Shānti⁶ and other rites performed, and thereafter Brāhmanas, Kaulas, and the hungry poor should be fed. Shivā ! this is the order to be observed in the consecration of all kinds of reservoirs of water (164-165).

² Complete or Final Oblation.

³ The Mantra said when sprinkling. See Shloka 127, ante.

⁴ The dedication is made merely to the Ishtadevatā by a Nishkāma dedicatōr and the Sakāma man mentions the object of his desire (Kāma).

⁵ The sin of such man's death.

⁶ An auspicious rite to secure peace, happiness, and wealth.

In the consecration of a *Tadāga*¹ and other kinds of reservoirs of water there should be a *Nāgastambha*² and some aquatic animals³ (166).

Aquatic animals, such as fish, frogs, alligators, and tortoises, should be made of metal, according to the means of the person consecrating (167).

There should be made two fish and two frogs of gold, two alligators of silver, and two tortoises, one of copper and another of brass (168).

After giving away the Tadāga or Dirghikā or Sāgara with these aquatic animals, *Nāga*⁴ should, after having been supplicated, be worshipped (169).

Ananta, Vāsuki, Padma, Mahāpadma, Takshaka, Kūlira, Karkata, and Shaṁkha⁵—all these are the protectors of water (170).

These eight names of the Nāgas should be written on *Ashvattha*⁶ leaves, and, after making Japa of the *Pranava*⁷ and the Gāyatrī, the leaves should be thrown into a jar (171).

Calling upon Sun and Moon to witness, the leaves should be mixed up together, and one should be drawn therefrom, and the Nāga whose name is drawn should be made the protector of water (172).

¹ Tadāga is a reservoir over 2,000 square cubits in area, and not less than 45 cubits in width. Other kinds are—(1) Drona, 40 by 40 cubits and over; (2) Vāpī, 130 by 130 cubits and over; (3) Sarovara is a large tank where the lotus grows; (4) a Dirghikā should be 35 cubits wide, with a superficial area of not less than 1,200 square cubits; (5) Pushkarinī is not less than 20 by 20 cubits; (6) Kūpa is a well; (7) Sāgara is one that is larger than any of the above. These reservoirs should be long in shape from North to South; even those which are of a square form should be slightly longer from North to South.

² When a tank is first dug out, a thick column or piece of wood is driven into its centre. It is also called Yūpa.

³ See next Shloka. Artificial fish or frogs, etc., made of brass, etc., are placed in the tank.

Then a wooden post, auspicious and straight, should be brought and smeared with oil and turmeric, and bathed in consecrated water, to the accompaniment of the *Vyāhṛti*¹ and the Pranava,² and then the Nāga who has been made the protector of the water should be worshipped with the Shaktis Hṛī, Shrī, Kṣhamā, and Shānti (173-174).

MANTRA

O Nāga! Thou art the couch of Vishnu, thou art the adornment of Shiva; do thou inhabit this post³ and protect my water (175).

Having thus made supplication to Nāga, the pillar should be set in the middle of the reservoir, and the dedicator should then go round the Tadāga,⁴ keeping it on his right (176).

If the post has been already fixed, then the Nāga should be worshipped in a jar, and, throwing the water of the jar into the reservoir, the remainder of the rites should be performed (177).

Similarly, the wise man who has taken a vow to consecrate a house should perform the rites, beginning with the worship of Vāstu, and ending with that of the Vasus, and perform the rites relating to the Pitris as prescribed for the consecration of a well, and the excellent devotee should worship Prajāpati and do *Prājāpatya*⁵ Homa (178-179).

³ Stambha.

⁴ See note 1, p. 403.

⁵ Prājāpatya is an adjective derived from Prajāpati.

The house should be sprinkled with the Mantra already mentioned, and then worshipped with incense, etc.; after that, with his face to the Īshāna¹ corner, he should pray as follows (180):

MANTRA

“O House! Prajāpati is thy Lord; decked with flowers and garlands and other decorations, be thou always pleasant for our happy residence” (181).

He should then offer presents,² and, performing Shānti rites,³ accept blessings.⁴ Thereafter he should feed Vipras,⁵ Kulīnas, and the poor to the best of his ability (182).

O Daughter of the Mountain! if the house is being consecrated for someone else, then such person should be mentioned by name and in the place “our residence” should be said “his residence”. Now listen to the ordinances relating to the consecration of a house or temple for a Deva (183).

After consecrating the house in the above manner, the Deva should be approached with the blowing of conchshells

³ See p. 402, note 6, ante.

⁴ The blessings referred to are the blessing of Kaulas, Brāhmanas, Veshyās, and other honoured persons (Bhakta, ed. 679). By Veshyā is not to be understood a prostitute, which the word also means but a Shakti who has received her Pūrṇābhishēka. The root Vish=to surround.

The Veshyās are divided into seven classes, namely, Guptaveshyā, Mahāveshyā, Kulaveshyā, Rājaveshyā, Devaveshyā, Brahnaveshyā, Sarvaveshyā. Their Lakṣhanas are described in Guptasādhana Tantra and Prānatoshinī. They are Āvarana Devatās of the Mahāvidyā. The Mahāvidyās themselves are sometimes called Veshyā.

and the sound of other musical instruments, and He should be supplicated thus (184):

MANTRA

Rise, O Lord of the Deva among Devas! Thou that grantest the desires of Thy votaries! come and make my life blessed,¹ O Ocean of Mercy! (185).

Having thus invited (the Deva) into the room, he should be placed at the door, and the Vāhana² should be placed in front of Him (186).

Then on the top of the house a trident³ or a discus⁴ should be placed, and in the Īshāna⁵ corner a staff should be set with a flag flying from it (187).

Let the good worshipper then decorate the room with awnings,⁶ small bells, garlands of flowers, and mango leaves, and then cover the house up with celestial cloth⁷ (188).

The Deva should be placed with His face to the North, and in the manner to be described He should be bathed with the things prescribed. I now am speaking of their order; do Thou listen (189).

After saying Aing, Hrīng, Shrīng, the Mūla Mantra⁸ should be repeated, and then let the worshipper say:

² Carrier of the Deity.

³ The Trident (Trishūla) is placed if the divinity is Shiva or any connected Deva.

⁴ The Discus (Chakra) is placed if the Deva be Vishnu or connected with Him.

⁸ The principal Mantra of the Devatā.

MANTRA

I am bathing Thee with milk ; do Thou cherish me like a mother ¹ (190).

Repeating the three Bijas aforesaid and the Mūla Mantra ¹, let him then say :

MANTRA

I am bathing Thee to-day with curds ; do Thou remove the tribulations ² of this mundane existence (191).

Repeating again the three Bijas and the Mūla Mantra, let him say :

MANTRA

O Giver of Joy to all ! being bathed in honey, ³ do Thou make me joyful (192).

Repeating the Mūla Mantra as before, and inwardly reciting the Pranava and the Sāvitrī, he should say :

MANTRA

I am bathing Thee in ghee, which is dear to the Devas, which is longevity, seed, and courage ⁴ ; do Thou, O Lord ! keep me free from disease (193).

Again repeating the Mūla Mantra, as also the Vyāhṛiti and the Gāyatrī, let him say :

² Literally "heat" (Tāpa), i.e., the trials and tribulations. Curd is cooling and is offered to cool the feet.

³ Madhu also means consecrated wine.

⁴ Ghee is heat-producing. Longevity etc. i.e., which prolongs life, increases semen (Shukra) and courage.

MANTRA

O Devesha! bathed by me in sugar water, do Thou grant me (the object of) my desire (194).

Repeating the Mūla Mantra, the Gāyatrī, and the Vāruṇa Mantra,¹ he should say :

MANTRA

I am bathing Thee with cocoanut-water, which is the creation of Vidhi,² which is divine, which is welcome to Devas, and is cooling, and which is not of the world³; I bow to Thee (195).

Then, with the Gāyatrī and the Mūla Mantra, the Deva should be bathed with the juice of sugar-cane (196).

Repeating the Kāma Bija⁴ and the Tāra,⁵ the Sāvitrī,⁶ and the Mūla Mantra, he should, whilst bathing the Deva, say :

MANTRA

Be Thou well bathed in water scented with camphor, Aguru⁷, saffron, musk, and sandal; be Thou pleased to grant me Enjoyment⁸ and Liberation⁸ (197).

After bathing the Lord of the World in this manner with eight jarfuls (of water, etc.), He should be brought inside the room and placed on His seat (198).

⁸ Bhukti and Mukti.

If the image be one which cannot be bathed,¹ then the Yantra,² or Mantra, or the Shālagrāma-shilā,³ should be bathed and worshipped (199).

If one be not able to bathe (the Deva) in manner above, then he should bathe (Him) with eight, seven, or five jars of pure water (200).

The size and proportions of the jar⁴ have been already given whilst speaking of Chakra worship. In all rites prescribed in the Āgamas that is the jar which is appropriate (201).

Then the Great Deva⁵ should be worshipped according to the injunctions to be followed in His worship. I shall speak of the offerings. Do Thou, O Supreme Devī! listen (202).

Pādyā,³ Arghya,³ Āchamana,³ Madhuparka,³ Āchamana,³ Gandha,⁴ Pushpa,⁵ Dhūpa,⁶ Dīpa,⁷ Naivedya⁸—these are known as Dashopachāra (ten requisite offerings) (205).

Gandha,⁴ Pushpa,⁵ Dhūpa,⁶ Dīpa,⁷ and Naivedya,⁸ are spoken of as the Panchopachāra (five offering) in the worship of a Deva (206).

The articles should be sprinkled with water taken from the Offering⁹ with the Weapon Mantra,¹⁰ and be worshipped with scents and flowers, the names of separate articles being mentioned (207).

Mentally repeating the Mantra that is to be said, as also the Mūla Mantra,¹¹ and the name of the Deva in the dative case, the words of gift should be repeated (208).

I have told Thee of the way in which the things to be given to the Devas should be dedicated. He who is versed in the ritual should in this manner give away an article to a Deva (209).

I have shown (whilst describing) the mode of worship of the Ādyā¹² Devī how Pādyā, Arghya, etc., should

To such of the Mantras as were not spoken then, do Thou, O Beloved ! listen to them here ; these should be said when *Āsana*² and other requisites are offered (211).

MANTRA

(O Deva !) Thou who residest within all beings ! who art the innermost Ātmā of all beings ! I am offering this seat³ for Thee to sit. I bow to Thee again and again (212).

O Deveshī ! after giving the excellent Āsana in this way, the giver of the Āsana should with folded palms bid Him welcome as follows (213) :

MANTRA

(O Deva !) Thou art He whom even the Devas seek for the accomplishment of their objects, yet for me Thy auspicious visit has easily been obtained. I bow to Thee, O Supreme Lord ! (214).

My life's aim is accomplished to-day ; all my efforts are crowned with success ; I have obtained the fruits of my devotion⁴—all this by Thy auspicious coming (215)..

taking Pādya,¹ the following Mantra should be repeated (216):

MANTRA

By the mere touch of the washings of Thy feet the three worlds are purified; I am offering Thee Pādya for washing Thy lotus feet (217). He by Whose grace is attained supreme Bliss, to Him Who is the Spirit² in all beings I offer this Ānandārghya³ (218).

Then pure water or water which has been scented with nutmeg, cloves, and Kakkola,⁴ should be consecrated, and taken and offered with the following (219):

MANTRA

(O Lord!) by the mere touch of that which Thou hast touched⁵ the whole of this impure world is purified; for washing that lotus mouth I offer Thee this Āchamaniya⁶ (220).

Then, taking Madhuparka,⁷ offer it with devotion and with the following (221):

MANTRA

For the destruction of the Three Afflictions,⁸ for the attainment of uninterrupted Bliss, I give Thee to-day, ¹ Water to wash the feet.

² Sarvātma bhūta.

³ The Arghya, or Offering of Bliss.

⁴ Cocculus indicus.

⁵ Uchchhishta = Leavings; for what has been touched by another—e.g., food—is impure. And so the saying is—Nochchhishtam kasyachid dadyāt ("Offer leavings to none").

⁶ Water for rinsing the mouth.

⁷ Honey, curds, etc. (vide ante).

⁸ i.e., Ādhyātmika, Ādhidaivika, Ādhibhautika.

O Parameshvara! this Madhuparka; be Thou propitious (222).

By the mere touch of anything which has touched Thy mouth things impure become pure: this Punarāchamanīyam¹ is for the lotus mouth of Thine (223).

Taking water for the bath, and pouring it and consecrating it as before, it should be placed before the Deva, and the following Mantra should be repeated (224):

MANTRA

To Thee Whose splendour envelopes the world, from Whom the world was born, Who is the support of the world, I offer this water for Thy bath (225).

When offering bathing water, clothes, and edibles, Āchamaniya should be given as each is offered, and, after offering other articles, water should be given once after each offering is made² (226).

Bringing the cloth consecrated³ as aforementioned, holding it up with both hands, the Sādhaka should repeat the following (227):

MANTRA

Raimentless though Thou art, Thou hast kept Thy glory⁴ concealed by Thy Māyā.⁵ To Thee I offer these two pieces of cloth. I bow to Thee (228).

¹ i.e., Second Āchamaniya offered to rinse the mouth after the Deva takes the Madhuparka.

³ Shodhita = Purified, sanctified.

⁴ Tejas.

Taking different kinds of ornaments made of gold and silver and other materials, and sprinkling and consecrating them, he should offer them to the Deva, uttering the following (229) :

MANTRA

To Thee Who art the ornament of the Universe, Who art the one cause of the beauty of the universe, I offer these jewels for the adornment of Thy image¹ which Thou hast shown by Thy Māyā (230).

MANTRA²

To Thee Who through the subtle Element of Smell³ hast created the Earth whose property is Smell, to Thee, the Supreme Spirit, I offer this excellent scent (231).

MANTRA⁴

By me have been dedicated with devotion beautiful flowers, and charming and sweet scents prepared by Devas: do Thou accept this flower (232).

MANTRA⁵

This incense-stick is the sap of the incense-bearing trees; it is divine, and possesses a delicious scent, and is charming, and pleasing to all beings. I give it to Thee to smell (233).

² Mantra for offering scents.

³ Gandha-tanmātra from which comes the gross Prithivī-tattva.

⁴ Mantra for offering flowers.

⁵ Mantra for offering incense-stick,

MANTRA ¹

Do Thou accept this light which illumines and is very bright, which removes all darkness, and which is both the inner and outer light ² (234).

MANTRA ³

This offering of food is of delicious taste, and consists of various kinds of edibles. I offer it to Thee in a devout spirit; do Thou partake of it (235).

MANTRA ⁴

O Deva! this clear drinking-water, perfumed with camphor and other scents which satisfies all, I offer to Thee—Salutation to Thee (236).

The worshipper should then offer Pān ⁵ made with camphor, catechu, cloves, cardamums, and, after again offering Āchamaniya, bow to Him ⁶ (237).

If the offerings are presented along with the vessels in which they are contained, then the names and description of the offerings may jointly be repeated when making the present, or the names (or description) of the vessels may separately be said and the same given ⁷ (238).

² That is, as I give Thee this light which illumines the outer darkness may my very inner being be illumined by Thy Light.

³ For offering edibles (Naivedya).

⁴ For offering water.

⁵ Betel-leaves.

⁶ This is the second Āchamaniya, called Punarāchamaniya in the original.

⁷ i.e., it may be said: "I give you—in this vessel," or "I give you—and this vessel,"

Then, sprinkling the temple and its awnings with water, the following Mantra should be said with folded palms (239):

MANTRA

Temple! thou art adorable for all men; thou grantest virtue¹ and fame. In affording a resting-place to this Deva, do thou be like unto Sumeru² (240). Thou art Kailāsa,³ thou art Vaikuntha,⁴ thou art the abode of Brahmā. Since thou art holding within thee the Deva,⁵ Thou art the adorned of the Devas (241).

Since thou holdest within thyself the image of Him Who has assumed form by His Māyā, and within Whose belly exists this universe, with all that is movable and immovable therein (242), thou art the equal of the Mother of the Devas; all the holy places are in thee. Do thou grant all my desires, and do thou bring me peace. I bow to thee (243).

Having thus praised the temple decorated with the discus, flag, and so forth and worshipped it three times, the worshipper should give it to the Deva, mentioning the object of his desire (244).

MANTRA

To Thee, whose abode is the universe, for Thy residence⁶ I dedicate this temple. O Maheshāna! do Thou accept it and in Thy mercy abide here (245).

² i.e., Be as great and as strong as the Himālaya Mountain.

³ Shiva's Heaven.

⁴ Vishnu's Heaven.

⁵ That is, the Deva whose image is consecrated and installed in the Temple.

⁶ The word used is Vāsāya=for a residence, Ram Mohan Roy reads Vishvāya as such an adjective qualifying "Thee" and meaning "Who art the Universe".

Having said this and having made presents, the Deva to whom the temple has been dedicated should be placed on the altar to the accompaniment of the music of conches, horns, and other instruments (246).

He should then touch the two feet of the Deva and utter the Mūla Mantra, and say, "Sthāṅ! Sthīṅ! do Thou remain here; this temple is made by me for Thee," and, having placed¹ the Deva there, he should pray again to the temple thus (247):

MANTRA

Temple! be thou always in every way pleasant for the residence of the Deva; thou hast been dedicated by me; may the Lokas² be assured to me without encountering danger (248).

Help my fourteen generations of ancestors, my fourteen generations of successors, and me and the rest of my family to reside in the abode of the Devas (249).

May I, by Thy grace, gain the fruits attainable by performing all forms of Yajnas, and by visiting all the places of pilgrimage (250).

May my line continue so long as this world, so long as these mountains, so long as the Sun and Moon endure (251).

The pious man, after having thus addressed the temple should again worship the Deva, and dedicate mirrors and other articles and the flag to Him (252).

Then the Vāhana appropriate to the Devatā should be given. To Shiva should be given a Bull. Then prayer to him should be made thus (253):

² That is, the higher regions. Some interpret "Lokas" in this verse to mean Svar-loka, or Heaven, and say that the plural is "Gauravārthe" i.e., honorific.

MANTRA

O Bull! thou art large of body, thy horns are sharp, thou killest all enemies, thou art worshipped even by the Tridashas,¹ as thou carriest on thy back the Lord of the Devas² (254).

In thy hoofs are all the holy shrines, in thy hair are the eternal Vedas,³ in the tip of thy teeth are all the Nigamas, Āgamas, and Tantras (255).

May the husband of Pārvatī,⁴ pleased with this gift of thee, give me a place in Kailāsa,⁵ and do thou protect me always (256).

O Maheshānī! do Thou listen to the manner of prayer upon giving a Lion to Mahādevī⁶ or a Garuḍa⁷ to Vishnu (257).

MANTRA

Thou didst display thy great strength in the wars between the Suras⁸ and the Asuras⁹; thou didst give victory to the Devas, and didst destroy the Dānavas. Thou formidable one, thou art the favourite of the Devī, thou art the favourite of Brahmā, Vishnu, and Shiva; with devotion I have dedicated thee to the Devī. Do thou destroy my enemies. I bow to thee (258-259).

As thou abidest near Vishnu with folded palms, do thou, O Destroyer of the pride of enemies! help me to be there as thou art there (261). When thou art pleased, the Lord of the Universe is pleased, and grants success³ (262).

When a gift is made to any Deva, present⁴ should be made to the Deva and the merit acquired by such gift and rites⁵ should also be given to Him in a spirit of devotion (263).

He should then, with dancing, singing, and music, go round the temple, accompanied by his friends and kinsmen, keeping the temple on his right, and, having bowed to the Deva, feed the twice-born!⁶ (264).

This is the way in which a temple to a Deva should be dedicated, and the same rule is to be observed in the dedication of a garden, a bridge, a causeway, or a tree (265).

It is imperative that in these rites the ever-existing Vishnu should be worshipped; but Pūjā,⁷ Homa,⁸ and

No temple or other thing should be dedicated to a Deva whose image has not been consecrated. The rules laid down above are for the worship of and dedication to a Deva who has been consecrated and worshipped (267).

I shall now speak of the manner in which the auspicious Ādyā¹ should be installed, and by which the Devī grants quickly all desires (268).

On the morning of the day (of Pratishthā) the worshipper should, after, bathing and purifying himself, sit facing the North, and, having in manner enjoined made Samkalpa,² worship the Vāstu-devatā (269).

After performing the worship of the Planets,³ the Protectors of the Quarters,⁴ Ganesha and others, and having performed the Shrāddha of his Pitris,⁵ he should approach the image with a number of devout *Vipras*⁶ (270).

The excellent worshipper should then bring the image to the temple which has been dedicated, or to some other place decorated for the reception, and there duly bathe it (271).

It should first be bathed with water, then with mud from an ant-hill, then with mud thrown up by the tusk of a boar and an elephant, then with mud taken from the door of a Veshyā,¹ and then with mud² from the lake of Pradyumna³ (272).

The wise man should then bathe the image with Panchakashāya⁴ and Pancha-pushpa,⁵ and three leaves,⁶ and then with scented oil (273).

The infusion of Vātyāla,⁷ Vadarī,⁷ Jambu,⁷ Vakula,⁷ and Shālmali,⁷ are called the five Kashāyas⁸ for bathing the Devī (274).

Karavīra, Jātī, Champaka, Lotus, and Pātālī, are the five flowers (275).

By three leaves are meant the leaves of Barvara,⁹ Tulasī,⁹ and Vilva⁹ (276).

With the above-mentioned articles water should be mixed, but no water should be put into scented oil and the five nectars¹⁰ (277).

He should, after repeating the Vyāhriti,¹¹ the Pranava,¹² the Gāyatrī, and the Mūla Mantra, say, "I bathe Thee with the water of these articles" (278).

¹ See p. 405, n. 4, ante. Literally means a Kept Woman, or Prostitute. When a man visits the house of a prostitute, it is said that he leaves all the merits of his good acts at the door, with the result that the mud thereat is holy. This is the current explanation of the use of mud in general practice—an explanation which has the air of a modern attempt to explain that, the origin and significance of which has been forgotten. As Tarkālangkāra points out (Bhakta, edn. 676), a Veshyā is a Shakti who is Pūrṇābhishiktā, and is Āvarana (attendant) Devī of one or other of the ten Mahāvidyās, and it is such a Veshyā who is here referred to, and not a common prostitute.

The good Sādhaka should then bathe the image with the eight jars filled with milk and other ingredients in manner aforementioned (279).

The image should then be rubbed with powdered white wheat or sesamum cakes,¹ or powdered Shāli rice,² and thus cleansed (280).

After bathing the image with eight jars of holy³ water, and rubbing it with cloth of fine texture, it should be brought to the place of worship (281).

Should one be unable to perform all these rites, then he should in a devout spirit bathe the image with twenty-five jars of pure water (282).

On each occasion that the Great Devī is bathed, She should, to the best of one's ability,⁴ be worshipped (283).

Then, placing the Image on a well-cleaned seat,⁵ She should be worshipped by offering Pādya,⁶ Arghya,⁷ and so forth and then with joined palms prayed to (as follows) (284):

He should then placing his hand over the head of the Image, inwardly do Japa of the Mūla Mantra ¹ one hundred and eight times, and thereafter touch the different parts of the image (287).

He should then perform Shadaṅga-nyāsa ² and Mātrikā-nyāsa ² on the Image, and, when performing Shadaṅga-nyāsa, add one after the other the six long vowels ³ to the Mūla Mantra (288).⁴

The eight groups ⁵ of the letters of the alphabet preceded by the Tāra,⁶ Māyā,⁷ and Ramā,⁸ with the Bindu,⁹ added to them, and followed by Namaḥ, should be placed in different parts of the body of the Deva (289).

The pious worshipper should place the Vowels in the mouth ; Kavarga ¹⁰ in the throat ; Chavarga ¹¹ on the belly ; Tavarga ¹² on the right and Tavarga ¹³ on the left arm ;

Lastly, he should place Mahat-tattva and Ahaṁkāra-tattva all over the body. The Tattvas should, whilst being placed, be preceded by Tāra, Māyā, and Ramā, and should be uttered in the dative singular, followed by Namaḥ (293-297).

⁶ Here meaning Yoni.

⁷ The Tattvas are constituent principles of the universe Prithivī (Earth), Toya (Water), Tejas (Fire), Vāyu (Air), Ākāsha or Gagana (the void or Ether), Rūpa (Form, visibility), Gandha (Smell), Shabda (Sound), Rasa (Taste), Sparsha (Touch). Repeating the Mūla Mantra, preceded and followed by each of the Mātrikā-varṇas,¹ with Bindu² added to them, and followed by the word Namah, Mantra-nyāsa should be performed at the *Mātrikā-sthānas*³ (298).

(The worshipper should then say) :

MANTRA

The Body is the glory which is all sacrifices and all beings.⁴ In this Image here which has been made of Thee, I place Thee (299).

Thereafter the Devī should be meditated upon and invoked, according to the rules of worship,⁵ and after *Prāṇa-pratishthā*⁶ the Supreme Devatā (Devī) should be worshipped (300).

The Mantras which are ordained for the dedication of a temple to a Deva should be used in this ceremony,⁷ the necessary changes in Mantra and gender being made (301).

The Devī should then be invoked into the fire, which has in due form been consecrated by the offer of oblations to the Devatās who are to be worshipped ; and thereafter the Devī should be worshipped, and Jāta-karma,⁸ and so forth should be performed (302).

The Saṃskāras¹ are six in number—viz., Jātakarma, Nāmakarana, Nishkramana, Annaprāshana, Chūḍākarana, and Upanayana—this has been said by Shiva² (303).

Repeating the Pranava,³ the Vyāhritis³ the Gāyatrī,³ the Mūla Mantra,³ the worshipper versed in the injunctions should addressing the Devatā say, "Thine," and then the name of (the Saṃskāra) Jātakarma, and others, and uttering, "I perform, Svāhā," offer five oblations at the end of each Saṃskāra⁴ (304-305).

Thereafter repeating the Mūla Mantra and the name given (to the Devī), one hundred oblations should be offered to Her, and the remnants of each oblation should be thrown over the head of the image (306).

The wise man, after having brought the ceremony to a close by Prāyaschitta⁵ and other rites, should feed and thus please Sādhakas⁶ and Vipras⁷ and the poor and the helpless (307).

Should anyone be unable to perform all these rites, he should bathe (the image) with seven jars of water, and, having worshipped to the best of his ability, repeat the name of the Devatā (308).

CHAPTER XIV

CONSECRATION AND AVADHUTAS

SHRĪ DEVĪ said :

I am grateful to Thee, O Lord of Mercy! in that Thou hast in Thy discourse upon the Worship of the Ādyā Shakti, spoken, in Thy mercy, of various modes of Worship (1).

Thou hast spoken of the Installation of a Movable Shiva-līṅga, but what is the object of installing an immovable Shiva-līṅga, and what are the rites relating to the installation of such a Līṅga? (2).

Do Thou, O Lord of the Worlds! now tell Me all the particulars thereof; for say, who is there but Thee that I can honour by My questions anent this excellent subject? (3).

Who is there that is Omniscient, Merciful, All-knowing, Omnipresent, easily satisfied, Protector of the humble, like Thee? Who makes My joys increase like Thee? (4).

Shrī Sadāshiva said :

What shall I tell Thee of the merit¹ acquired by the installation² of a Shiva-līṅga? By it a man is purified of all great sins, and goes to the Supreme Abode (5).

There is no doubt that by the installation of a Shiva-līṅga a man acquires ten million times the merit which is acquired by giving the world and all its gold, by the performance of ten thousand horse-sacrifices,³ by the digging of a tank¹ in a waterless country, or by making happy the poor and such as are enfeebled by disease (6-7).

O Kālikā ! Brahmā, Vishnu, Indra, and the other Devas reside where Mahādeva is in His Liṅga form (8).

Thirty-five million known and unknown places of pilgrimage and all the holy places abide near Shiva. The land within a radius of a hundred cubits of the Liṅga is declared to be Shiva-kshetra² (9-10).

This land of Īsha³ is very sacred. It is more excellent than the most excellent of holy places,⁴ because there always abide all the Immortals and there are all the holy places (11).

He who in a devout spirit lives there, be it even for but a little while, becomes purged of all sins, and goes to the heaven of Shāṅkara⁵ after death (12).

Anything great or small (meritorious or otherwise) which is done in this holy land of Shiva becomes multiplied (in its effect) by the majesty of Shiva (13).

All sins committed elsewhere are removed (by going) near Shiva, but sins committed in Shiva-kshetra² adhere to a man with the strength of thunderbolt (14).

The merit acquired by the performance, there, of Purashcharana,⁶ Japa,⁶ acts of charity, Shrāddha,⁷ Tarpana,⁶ or any other pious acts is endless (15).

⁷ Funeral rites.

The merit acquired by the performance of a hundred Purashcharana at times of lunar or solar eclipse is acquired by merely performing one Japa¹ near Shiva (16).

By the offering of Pinda² once only in the land of Shiva, a man obtains the same fruit as he who offers ten million Pindas at Gayā, the Gaṅgā, and Prayāga (17).

Even in the case of those who are Atipātakīs³ and Mahāpātakīs attain the supreme abode if Shrāddha be performed in their names in the land of Shiva (18).

The fourteen worlds⁴ abide there where abides the Lord of the Universe in His Liṅga form with the auspicious Devī Durgā (19).

I have spoken a little about the majesty⁵ of the immovable Mahādeva⁶ in His Liṅga form. The Sanctity and Majesty⁷ of the Anādi⁸-liṅga is beyond the power of words to express (20).

O Suvratā⁹! even in Thy worship at the Mahāpīthas¹⁰ the touch of an untouchable is unclean, but this is not so in the worship of Hara¹¹ in His Liṅga image (21).

⁹ Of good resolve, or Virtuous One.

¹¹ Shiva.

O Devī! as there are no prohibitions at the time of Chakra¹ worship, so know this, O Kālikā! that there are none in the holy shrine in Shiva's land (22).

What is the use of saying more? I am but telling Thee the very truth when I say that I am unable to describe the glory, majesty, and sanctity² of the Liṅga image of Shiva (23).

Whether the Liṅga is placed on a Gaurī-patta³ or not, the worshipper should, for the successful attainment of his desires, worship it devoutly (24).

The excellent worshipper earns the merit of (performing) ten thousand horse-sacrifices⁴ if he performs the Adhivāsa⁵ of the Deva in the evening previous to the day of installation (25).

The twenty articles to be used in the rite of Adhivāsa are: Earth, Scent, a Pebble,⁶ Paddy, Dūrvā grass, Flower, Fruit, Curds, Ghee, Svastika,⁷ Vermillion, Conchshell, Kajjala,⁸ Rochanā,⁹ White Mustard Seed, Gold, Silver, Copper, Lights, and a Mirror (26-27).

³ Gaurī is a name of the Devī, and the Gaurī-patta is the emblem of the Yoni, or female organ, in which the male Liṅga is generally set. The latter is symbolical of static Feeling-Consciousness and the former of its active Power which in the form of its creations surround the Bindu or Point.

⁸ Lamp-black collyrium, applied to the eyelashes medicinally, or for beautifying the eyes.

⁹ A yellow pigment obtained from the inside of the head of a cow, also called Go-rochanā. Tilaka is made with it by some sects, Taking each of these articles, the Māyā Bīja¹ and the Brahma-Gāyatrī² should be repeated, and then should be said "Anena" (with this) and "Amushya" (of this one's or his)—"may the auspicious Adhivāsa be"³ (28).

And then the forehead of the divinity to be installed should be touched with the earth and all other articles aforesaid. Then Adhivāsa should be performed with the Prashastipātra⁴—that is, the receptacle should be lifted up, and with it the forehead of the image should be touched three times (29).

The worshipper conversant with the ordinances, having thus performed the Adhivāsa of the Deva, should bathe the Devatā with milk and other liquids, as directed in the ceremony relating to the dedication of a temple (30).

Rubbing the Liṅga with a piece of cloth and placing it on its seat, Ganesha and other Deities should be worshipped according to the rules prescribed for their worship (31).

I have already spoken of the Mantras for the giving of Āsana and other articles of worship.¹ I shall now speak of the Mūla Mantra² of the Great Mahesha (40).

The Devī should be worshipped in the Vedī according to the following rites: with the Māyā Bija,¹⁰ Aṅga-nyāsa, Kara-nyāsa, and Prānāyāma should be performed (43);

The Great Devī should, to the best of the worshipper's ability, be worshipped after meditation upon Her as follows:

The Door-keepers of Shiva are—Nandī, Mahābala, Kishavadana, and Gana-nāyaka; they are all armed with missiles and other weapons (55).

Bringing the *Liṅga*⁵ and Tārinī,⁶ as represented by the Gaurī-patta,⁷ they should be placed on a Saryato-bhadra Mandala,⁸ or on an auspicious seat (56).

Shambhu should then be bathed with eight jars of water with the Mantra⁹ “Tryambaka,” etc., and worshipped with the sixteen articles of worship¹⁰ (57).

After bathing the Devī in a similar way with the Mūla Mantra, and worshipping Her, the good worshipper should pray to Shāṅkara with joined palms (58).

Having thus prayed to Shiva and the Devī, They should first be carried three times round the Temple, keeping the latter on the right ⁴ to the accompaniment of joyful sounds, ⁵ and then taken inside (64).

Repeating the Mūla Mantra, one-third of the Liṅga should be set in a hollow made in a piece of stone or in a masonry hole (65), (with the following Mantra):

Having firmly fixed it, the Liṅga should be touched and the following (Mantra) should be repeated (69):

MANTRA

I invoke that Deva Who has three eyes, the imperishable Īshāna,³ around whose lion-seat⁴ are tigers, Bhūtas, Pishāchas,⁵ Gandharvas,⁶ Siddhas,⁷ Chāranas,⁸ Yakshas,⁹ Nāgas,¹⁰ Vetālas,¹¹ Loka-pālas,¹² Maharshis,¹³ Mātris,¹⁴ Ganānāthas,¹⁵ Vishnu, Brahmā, and Brihaspati,¹⁶ and all beings which live on earth or in the air; come, O Bhagavān! to this Yantra, which is the handiwork of Brahmā, for the prosperity and happiness of all (70-72).

Beloved! Shiva should then be bathed according to the injunctions relating to the consecration of a Deva, and, having been meditated upon as before-mentioned, should be worshipped with mental offerings¹ (73).

After placing a special Arghya,² and having worshipped the Gana-devatās,³ and meditated upon Mahesha⁴ again, flowers should be placed on the Liṅga (74).

Repeating the Shakti Bija⁵ between Pāsha⁶ and Amkusha,⁷ and the letters from Ya to Sa⁸ with Nāda-bindu, and then "Haung Haṁsaḥ,"⁹ the Prānas of Sadāshiva should be placed into the Liṅga¹⁰ (75).

Then, smearing the Husband of the Daughter of the Mountain¹¹ with sandal, aguru, and saffron, He should be worshipped with the sixteen articles of worship according to the injunctions laid down after performing the Jāta, the Nāma,¹² and other rites (76).

After concluding everything according to the injunctions, and after worshipping the Devī in the Gaurī-patta, the eight images of the Deva should be carefully worshipped (77).

By the name Sharva¹ his relation to the Earth is shown; by Bhava, Water; by Rudra, Fire; by Ugra, Wind; by Bhīma, Ether;² by Pashu-pati the Employer of a priest for sacrifice,³ by Mahādeva the Source of Nectar,⁴ and by Īshāna, the Sun; these are declared to be the Eight forms (78-79).

Each of these should be invoked and worshipped in their order (in the corners), beginning with the East and ending with the North-East, uttering the Pranava⁵ first and Namaḥ last⁶ (80).

After having worshipped Indra and the other Dikpālas,⁷ the eight Mātris, Brāhmī, and others, the worshipper should give to Īsha the Bull, awning,⁸ house, and the like (81).

³ Yajamāna. By this name (Pashupati) Shiva is denoted as Lord of Men (see note 6 below).

⁶ The Mantras which are said are—Om Sharvāya kṣhiti-mūrtaye Namaḥ; Om Bhavāya jalamūrtaye Namaḥ; Om Rudrāya agni-mūrtaye Namaḥ; Om Ugrāya vāyumūrtaye Namaḥ; Om Bhīmāya ākāsha-mūrtaye Namaḥ; Om Pashu-pataye yajamāna-mūrtaye Namaḥ; Om Mahādevāya somamūrtaye Namaḥ; Om Īshānāya sūryamūrtaye Namaḥ. Bhava means existence—and water—the first of things. Rudra means fierce, and so is Agni (Fire). Ugra means strong beyond measure, and Pavana or Vāyu is that. Bhīma means terrific, and the great Void is terrific. The Yajamāna is like an animal (Pashu), which requires to be guided, and the Lord of Pashus (Pashu-pati) does that. Mahādeva is the great benignant Deva—the abode of all which is sweet and life-giving. Īshāna is the Lord of all.

⁷ The Protectors of the Quarters Indra and others. See ante, under vv. 70-72.

⁸ Placed on temple at time of consecration.

Then, with joined palms, he should with fervour pray to the Husband of Pārvatī (as follows) (82).

MANTRA

O Ocean of Mercy ! O Lord ! Thou hast been placed in this place by me ; be Thou pleased (with me). O Shambhu ! Thou Who art the Cause of all causes, do Thou abide in this room, O Supreme Deva ! so long as the Earth with all its Oceans exist, so long as the Moon and the Sun endure. I bow to Thee. Should there occur in this temple, the death of any living being,¹ may I, O Dhūrjjati !² by Thy grace, be kept from that sin (83-85).

The dedicator should go round the image, keeping it on his right, and, having bowed before the Deva, go home. Returning again in the morning, he should bathe Chandrashekhara³ (86).

He should first be bathed with consecrated Panchāmrita and then with a hundred jars of scented water ; and the worshipper, having worshipped Him to the best of his powers, should pray to Him (as follows) (87-88) :

MANTRA

O Husband of Umā !⁴ if there has been any irregularity, omission, want of devotion in this worship, may they

⁴ Umā is a name of Devī. See Canto I of Kālidāsa's Kumārasambhava :

Umeti mātṛā tapaso nishiddhā, all by Thy grace, be rectified, and may my fame remain incomparable in this world so long as the Moon, the Sun, the Earth, and its Oceans endure (89-90).

I bow to the three-eyed Rudra, Who wields the excellent Pināka, to Him Who is worshipped by Vishnu, Brahmā, Indra, Sūrya, and other Devas, I bow again and again (91).

The worshipper should then make presents,¹ and feast the Kaulika-dvijas,² and give pleasure to the poor by gifts of food, drink, and clothes (92).

The Deva should be worshipped every day according to one's means. The fixed³ Shiva-liṅga should on no account be removed (93).

Parameshvarī! I have in brief spoken to Thee of the rites relating to the consecration of the immovable⁴ Shiva-liṅga, gathering the same from all the Āgamas (94).

Shrī Devī said :

If, O Lord! there be an accidental omission in the worship of the Devas, then what should be done by their votaries—do Thou speak in detail about this (95).

Say, on account of what faults are images of Devas unfit for worship, and should thus be rejected,⁵ and what should be done? (96).

Shrī Sadāshiva said :

If there be an omission to worship an image for a day, then (the next day) the worship should be twice performed; if for two days, then the worship should be four times

² i.e., a Kaula who has received his Pūrṇābhisheka initiation, upon which he is born again. The passage may also be interpreted to mean Kaulikas and Dvijas (twice-born classes).

⁵ e.g., where the image is polluted or injured, and the like (vide post, verse 100).

performed; if for three days, then it should be celebrated eight times (97).

If the omission extends three days, but does not exceed six months, then the wise man should worship after bathing the Deva with eight jars of water (98).

If the period of omission exceeds six months, then the excellent worshipper should carefully consecrate the Deva according to the rules already laid down, and then worship Him (99).

The wise man should not worship the image of a Deva which is broken or is holed, or which has lost a limb, or has been touched by a leper, or has fallen on unholy ground (100).

The image of a Deva with missing limbs, or which is broken or has holes in it, should be consigned to water. If the image has been made impure by touch, it should be consecrated, and then worshipped (101).

The Mahāpīthas and Anādi-līngas¹ are free from all deficiencies, and these should always be worshipped for the attainment of happiness by each worshipper as he pleases (102).

Mahāmāyā! whatever Thou hast asked for the good of men who act with a view to the fruits of action, I have answered all this in detail (103).

Men cannot live without some actions even for half a moment. Even when men are unwilling, they are, in spite of themselves, drawn by the force of Action² (104).

By Action men enjoy happiness, and by Action again they suffer pain. They are born, they live, and they die the slaves of Action³ (105).

² Karmavāyu. Human activity is compared to Air (Vāyu) as its characteristic is Motion (Chalanapara).

³ That is, Karma prompted by worldly motives (see verse 112, post).

It is for this that I have spoken of various kinds of action, such as Sādhana and the like, for the guidance of the intellectually weak in the paths of righteousness, and that they may be restrained from wicked acts (106).

There are two kinds of action—good and evil; the effect of evil action is that men suffer acute pain (107).

And, O Devī! those who do good acts with minds intent on the fruits thereof go to the next world, and come back again to this, chained by their action¹ (108).

Therefore men will not attain final Liberation even at the end of a hundred Kalpas² so long as action, whether good or evil, is not destroyed (109).

As a man is bound, be it by a gold or iron chain, so he is bound by his action, be it good or evil (110).

So long as a man has not Knowledge,³ he does not attain final Liberation, even though he be in the constant practice of religious acts and a hundred austerities (111).

The Knowledge of the wise from whom the darkness of ignorance⁴ is removed, and whose souls are pure,⁵ arises from the performance of duty without expectation of fruit or reward,⁶ and by constant meditation on the Brahman⁷ (112).

He who knows that all which is in this universe from Brahmā to a blade of grass is but the creation of Māyā,⁸ and that the Brahman is the one and supreme Reality is happy (113).

¹ For action which involves the thirst for life leads to life in birth and rebirth.

² A Kalpa is 4,320,000,000 years.

That man is released from the bonds of action who, renouncing Name and Form, has attained to complete knowledge of the Reality¹ of the eternal and immutable Brahman (114).

Liberation² does not come from Japa,³ Homa,⁴ or a hundred fasts; man becomes liberated by the knowledge that he himself is Brahman⁵ (115).

Final Liberation is attained by the knowledge that the Ātmā (Spirit) is the Witness,⁶ is the Truth,⁷ is omnipresent, is one,⁸ free from all illuding distractions of self and not-self,⁹ the supreme, and, though abiding in the body, is not in the body¹⁰ (116).

All imagination of Name, Form and the like are but the play of a child. He who put away all this and is firmly attached to the Brahman, is, without doubt, liberated (117).

If the form imagined by the (human) mind were to lead to Liberation, then undoubtedly men would be Kings by virtue of such kingdoms as they gain in their dreams (118).

⁷ Satyam, that is the Real, that is the True.

⁸ Pūrṇa = Impartite, which Bhāratī renders by Akhanda.

⁹ Advaita.

¹⁰ The Spirit, being One, is not confined to the body. There is but one Spirit, in which all bodies inhere.

Those who (in their ignorance) believe that Īshvara is (only) in images made of clay, or stone, or metal, or wood, merely trouble themselves by their devotion.¹ They can never attain Liberation without Knowledge² (119).

Can men attain final Liberation³ by restriction in food, be they ever so emaciated thereby, or by uncontrolled indulgence, be they ever so gross therefrom, unless they possess the knowledge of Brahman? (120).

If by observance of a vow⁴ to live on air, leaves of trees, bits of grain, or water, final Liberation may be attained, then snakes, cattle, birds, and aquatic animals should all be able to attain final Liberation (121).

Brahma-sad-bhāva⁵ is the highest; Dhyāna-bhāva⁶ is middling; Stuti⁷ and Japa⁸ is the last; and external worship is the lowest of all (122).

They are not authority against the worship of images. This Tantra throughout deals with images, and image worship which it would not do if image worship was considered by its author to be wrong. But whilst image worship of the kind mentioned in v. 119 is legitimate and the only possible at that stage of development man must pass on much higher before he can attain Liberation.

⁸ Recitation of Mantra,

Yoga is the unity of the embodied spirit¹ and the Supreme Spirit;² Pūjā³ is the union of the worshipper and the worshipped; but he who realizes that all things are Brahman for him there is neither Yoga nor Pūjā (123).

For him who possesses the knowledge of Brahman,⁴ the supreme Knowledge, of what use are Japa,⁵ Yajna,⁶ Tapas,⁷ Niyama,⁸ and Vrata?⁹ (124).

He who sees the Brahman, Who is Truth, Knowledge, Bliss, and the One, is by his very nature one with the Brahman.¹⁰ Of what use to him are Pūjā, Dhyāna, and Dhāranā?¹¹ (125).

For him who knows that all is Brahman there is neither sin¹² nor virtue,¹³ neither heaven nor future birth. There is none to meditate upon, nor one who meditates (126).

The Spirit which is detached from all things, is ever liberated; what can bind Him? From what do fools desire to be liberated? (127).

He abides in this Universe, the creation of His power of Māyā,¹⁴ which is incomprehensible even to the Devas. He is seemingly in the Universe, but not in it (128).

¹⁴ Māyā is defined as She who can do what is impossible (Aghatana-ghatana-gatīyasī).

The Spirit ¹ is in its own nature, the Eternal Witness,² and like the Ether exists both outside and inside all things, and has neither birth nor childhood, nor youth nor old age, but is the mere Feeling Consciousness which is ever the same, knowing no change (129-130).

It is the body which is born, matures, and decays,³ Men enthralled by illusion, seeing this, understand it not (131).

As the Sun (though one and the same) when reflected in different platters of water appears to be many, so by Māyā the one soul appears to be many in the different bodies in which it abides (132).

As when water is disturbed the Moon which is reflected in it appears to be disturbed, so when the intelligence⁴ is disturbed ignorant men think that it is the Spirit which is disturbed (133).

As the void inside a jar remains the same even after the jar is broken, so the Spirit remains the same after the body is destroyed (134).

Self-knowledge,⁵ O Devī! is the one means of attaining final Liberation; and he who possesses it, is verily—yea, verily—liberated in this world, even yet whilst living;⁶ there is no doubt of that (135).

It is the Spirit that is dear to all! there is nothing dearer than the Spirit; O Shivā! it is because the Spirit is One⁴ that men become dear to one another (137).

Thou hast spoken of the two stages in the life of man—namely, that of householder¹ and mendicant;² what is this wonderful distinction of four classes of Avadhūtas³ which I now hear? (141).

I wish to hear and clearly understand the distinctive features of the four classes of Avadhūtas. Do Thou, O Lord! speak (about them) truly (142).

Shrī Sadāshiva said :

Those Brāhmanas, Kshatriyas, and other castes who are worshippers of the Brahma-mantra⁴ should be known to be Yatis,⁵ even though they be living the life of a householder (143).

O Worshipped of the Kulas! those men who are sanctified by the rites of Purnābhīsheka⁶ should be known and honoured⁷ as Shaivāvadhūtas (144).

Both the Brāhma and Shaiva Avadhūtas shall do all acts in their respective states of life according to the way directed by Me (145).

They should not partake of forbidden food or drink unless the same has been offered to the Brahman or offered in the Chakra⁸ (146).

and of the Kaulas who have been initiated.¹ For Brāhma and Shaiva Avadhūtas, bathing, eating evening meals, drinking, the giving of charities, and if married marital duties should be done according to the way prescribed by the Āgamas (147-148).

The above Avadhūtas are of two classes, according as they are perfect² or imperfect.³ Beloved! the perfect one is called Parama-hangsa, and the other or imperfect one is called Parivrāt (149).

The man who has gone through the Saṃskāra⁴ of an Avadhūta, but whose knowledge is yet imperfect,⁵ should, by living the life of a householder,⁶ purify his Self (150).

Retaining his caste-mark and practising the rites of a Kaula, he should, remaining constantly devoted to the Brahman, do Sādhanā for attainment of the highest Knowledge (151).

With his mind ever free from attachment, yet discharging all his duty,⁷ he should constantly repeat "Om Tat Sat," and constantly think upon and realize the saying, "Sah aham"⁸ (152).

The man, be he a householder³ or an ascetic,⁴ who commences any undertaking with the Mantra "Om Tat Sat," is ever successful therein (154).

Japa,⁵ Homa,⁶ Pratishthā,⁷ and all sacramental rites,⁸ if performed with the Mantra "Om Tat Sat," are faultless beyond all doubt (155).

What use is there of the various other Mantras? What use of the other multitudinous practices?⁹ With this Brāhma Mantra alone may all rites be concluded (156).

Ambikā!¹⁰ this Mantra is easily practised, is not prolix, and gives complete success, and there is no other way besides this great Mantra (157).

If it be kept written in any part of the house or on the body, then such house becomes a holy place¹¹ and the body becomes sanctified¹² (158).

If the four kinds of food and other articles are sanctified² by this Mantra, then it becomes useless to sanctify them by any other Mantras (161).

He is a King among Kaulas, who sees the Great Being³ everywhere, and constantly makes Japa⁴ of the great Mantra "Tat Sat" (i.e., Om Tat Sat), who acts as he so inclines,⁵ and is pure of heart withal (162).

By Japa of this Mantra a man becomes a Siddha⁶; by thinking of its meaning he is liberated, and he who, when making Japa, thinks of its meaning, becomes like unto the Brahman in visible form (163).

This Great, Three-footed⁷ Mantra is the cause of all causes; by its Sādhana⁸ one becomes the Conqueror of Death⁹ himself (164).

Tarkālakāra says that to-day there are some Paramahamsas who are unable to state what authority governs their Āchāra. He collects from Bhairavadāmara and other Tantras some rules regarding the Lakshana of the Avadhūtas. Of the four classes, the Shaivāvadhūtas are of two kinds, viz., Paribrājaka and Paramahamsa. Yatis or Brāhmāvadhūtas are also of two kinds, viz., Paribrājaka and Paramahamsa or Hamsa. Imperfect (Apūrṇa) Shaivāvadhūta or Brāhmāvadhūta although he may be a householder is to be accounted a Paribrājaka. If the householder Avadhūta be excluded then there are six classes of Avadhūta—of which the first is (1) Shaivāvadhūta (Apūrṇa). He is a great Sannyāsī like Shiva although he lives in the family. On this account he is called Shaivāvadhūta. (2) Paribrājaka is the second stage of Shaivāvadhūta. He gives up the Saṃsāra, wanders from Tīrtha to Tīrtha and does Pūjā, Japa and the like. He does Sādhanā with the assistance of his Shakti. (3) Paramahamsa is the third stage of Shaivāvadhūta. He does no rite; wears a Kaupīna and is Sannyāsī. He may according to the rules of Yoga and Bhoga satisfy the desire of a woman who approaches him. (4) Brāhmāvadhūta. He is like the Shaivāvadhūta of the first kind but has no competency for Parāshakti in Shaiva marriage. He may have his own Shakti. (5) Brāhmāvadhūta Paribrājaka. His duties are like those of the Shaivāvadhūtas of second class but may not unite with a woman who seeks intercourse. He is however competent under instructions of the Guru to practise Yoga with the assistance of a Shakti. This applies to the fourth and fifth classes. (6) Hamsāvadhūta. He is like Shaivāvadhūta of third degree. He may not however unite with a woman, receive gift of any kind of metal and is free from all duties (Karma).

Bhairavadāmara deals with Kulāvadhūta, Shaivāvadhūta, Brāhmāvadhūta and Hamsāvadhūta. There is only a difference in name between these and those given in Mahānirvāna.

⁴ Prārabdha—literally, that which has been commenced.

The fourth class,¹ discarding his caste and household duties, moves about in this world without desires or care for the preservation of his body² (169).

Always pleased in his own mind, he is free from sorrow and illusion, homeless and forgiving, fearless, and doing harm to none (170).

For him there is no offering of food and drink (to any Deva); for him there is no necessity for Dhyāna or Dhāraṇā;³ the Yati⁴ is liberated, is free from attachment, unaffected by all opposites,⁵ and follows the ways of a Haṁsa⁶ (171).

O Devī! I have now spoken to Thee in detail of the distinctive marks of the four classes of Kula-Yogīs, who are but forms of Myself⁷ (172).

By seeing them, by touching them, conversing with them, or pleasing them, men earn the fruit of pilgrimage to all the holy places (173).

All the shrines and holy places which there are in this world, they all, O my Beloved! abide in the body of the Kula-Sannyāsī⁸ (174).

Those men who have worshipped Kula Sādhus⁹ with Kula-dravya¹⁰ are indeed blessed and holy, have attained

² Niḥsaṁkalpa and Nirudyama. Bhārati says the last term, which literally = Effortless, means as stated in the text for having given up all household and caste duties there is nothing to be cared for except the body which is no longer to be an object of solicitude.

³ See Arthur Avalon's "Serpent Power".

⁴ Self-controlled.

⁵ Nir-dvandva—that is, heat and cold, love and hate, etc.

⁷ Mat-svarūpī.

⁸ Kaula ascetic, or Avadhūta.

their desired aim, and have earned the fruit of all sacrifices (175).

By the mere touch of these Sādhus the impure becomes pure, the untouchable becomes touchable, and food unfit to be eaten¹ becomes fit to be eaten. By their touch even the Kirātas,² the sinful, the wicked, the Pulindas,³ the Yavanas,⁴ and the wicked and malicious,⁵ are made pure; who else but they should be honoured? (176-177).

Even those who but once worship the Kaulika Yogī with Kula-tattva⁶ and Kula-dravya⁶ become worthy of honour in this world (178).

O Thou with the lotus face! there is no Dharma superior to Kaula-Dharma,⁷ by seeking refuge in which even a man of inferior caste becomes purified and attains the state of a Kaula (179).

As the footmarks of all animals disappear in the footmark of the elephant, so do all other Dharmas disappear in the Kula-Dharma (180).

My Beloved! how holy are the Kaulas! They are like the images of the holy places. They purify by their mere presence even the Chandālas and the vilest of the vile (121).

As other waters falling into Gaṁgā become the water of Gaṁgā, so all men following Kulāchāra reach the stage of a Kaula (182).

² Hunters—a low caste.

⁴ Foreigners, Barbarians.

⁷ Of the Kaula-Tāntrika division of worshippers.

As water gone into the sea does not retain its separate-ness, so men sunk in the ocean of Kula lose theirs (183).

All beings in this world which have two feet,¹ from the Vipra² to the inferior castes, are competent for Kulāchāra (184).

Those that are averse to the acceptance of Kula-Dharma, even when called thereto, are divorced from all Dharma and go the downward path (185).

The Kulīna who deceives those men who seek for Kulāchāra shall go to the hell named Raurava (186).

That low Kaula who refuses to initiate a Chandāla³ or a Yavana⁴ into the Kula-Dharma, considering them to be low, or a woman out of disrespect for her is himself low and goes the downward way (187).⁵

The merit acquired by a hundred Abhisheka,⁶ by the performance of a hundred Purashcharana,⁷ ten million times that merit is acquired by the initiation of one man into the Kula-Dharma (188).

All the different castes, all the followers of the different Dharmas in this world, are, by becoming Kaulas, freed from their bonds, and go to the Supreme Abode (189).

The Kaulas who follow that Shaiva-Dharma are like places of pilgrimage, and are themselves Shiva. They worship and honour one another with affection, respect, and love (190).

⁵ Chāndālang yavanang nīchang matvā striyam avajnayā.

Kaulang na kuryāt yah kaulah so'dhamo yātyadhogatim.

The unsectarian and universal character of the Kauladharmā is here markedly shown; the Vaidika ritual has no place for these.

What is the use of saying more to Thee ? I am speaking the very truth before Thee when I say that the only bridge for the crossing of this ocean of existence is the Kula-Dharma and none other (191).

By the following of Kula-Dharma all doubts are cut through, all the accumulation of sins is destroyed, and the multitude of acts is destroyed ¹ (192).

Those Kaulikas are excellent who, truthful and faithful to the Brahman, in their mercy call men that they may purify them by Kulāchāra (193).

Devī ! I have spoken to Thee the first portion ² of the Mahā-nirvāna Tantra for the purification of men. It contains the conclusions ³ of all Dharmas (194).

He who hears it daily or enables ⁴ other men to hear it becomes freed from all sins, and attains Nirvāna at the end (195).

By knowing this King among Tantras, which contains the essence of essence of all the Tantras, and is the most excellent among the Tantras, a man becomes versed in all the Shāstras (196).

The man who knows this Mahā-tantra is freed from the bonds of actions. Of what use is it to him to go on pilgrimage, or to do Japa, Yajna, and Sādhana ? ⁵ (197).

Kālikā ! he who knows this Tantra is conversant with all the Shāstras, he is pre-eminent among the virtuous, ⁶ is wise, knows the Brahman, and is a Sage (198).

² The second portion of the Tantra has been generally supposed to be lost, but see Preface.

³ Nirnaya.

⁵ See " Shakti and Shākta ".

⁶ Dharma-vid.

There is no use of the Vedas, the Purāṇas, the Smritis, the Saṁhitās, and the various other Tantras, as by knowing this Tantra one knows all (199).

All the most secret rites and practices and the most excellent knowledge¹ have been revealed by me in reply to Thy questions (200).

Suvratā!² as Thou art My most excellent Brāhmī Shakti, and art to Me dearer than life itself, know Thou that the Mahānirvāṇa Tantra is likewise (201).

As the Himālaya is among the Mountains, as the Moon is among the Stars, as the Sun is among all lustrous bodies, so this Tantra is the King among Tantras (202).

All Dharmas are to be found in this Tantra. It is the only means for the acquirement of the knowledge of Brahman.³ The man who repeats himself or causes others to repeat it will surely acquire such knowledge (203).

In the family of the man in whose house there is this most excellent of all Tantras there will never be a Pashu⁴ (204).

The man blinded by the darkness of ignorance, the fool caught in the meshes⁵ of his actions, and the illiterate man, by listening to this Great Tantra, are released from the bonds of Karma (205).

Parameshānī! reading, listening to, and worshipping this Tantra, and singing its praise, gives Liberation to men (206).

Of the other various Tantras each deals with one subject only. There is no other Tantra which contains all the Dharmas (207).

² Virtuous one.

³ Brahma-jñāna.

⁴ Here the term means one ignorant of divine knowledge.

⁵ See Bhagavad-gītā, iv, pari passu; also Shiva-Saṁhitā, chap. i, verses 4-9.

The last part contains an account of the nether, earthly, and heavenly worlds.¹ He who knows it (along with the first) undoubtedly knows all (208).

The man who knows the second part with this book is able to speak of the past, present, and future, and knows the three worlds (209).

There are all manner of Tantras and various Shāstras, but they are not equal to a sixteenth part (in value) of this Mahānirvāna Tantra (210).

What further shall I tell Thee of the greatness of the Mahānirvāna Tantra? Through the knowledge of it one shall attain to Brahma-nirvāna (211).

End of the Fourteenth Chapter of the First Part of the Mahānirvāna, entitled, "The Consecration of Shivaliṅga and Description of the Four Classes of Avadhūtas."

Books By SIR JOHN WOODROFFE
(ARTHUR AVALON)

On Yoga Philosophy, Tantra Shastra, and Mantra Shastra

"Excellent volumes. Sir John writes with power, knowledge and lucidity three rare qualities in authorship". —The Occult Review

"His books brilliantly inaugurate the study of the Tantras, the literature of which occupies a front rank in the religious life of Modern India". —Prof. Sylvain Levi in La Revue Critique

"One cannot do enough homage to the magnificent series of publications which an English savant under the pseudonym of Arthur Avalon has brought into being". —Revue Philosophique, Paris

Sir John Woodroffe's works are absolutely indispensable for all students of this very mixed but widespread and important phase of non-Vedic Hinduism. —G. R. S. Mead

These books, dealing with the secret mysticism and magic of India, are the most interesting which have been published in recent years. —Neue Metaphysische Rundschau

In Mr. Avalon these mystic writings have found an enthusiastic exponent and a daring investigator who is determined to disentangle the lofty conceptions of earlier and purer beliefs from much of the misconceptions and misunderstandings which have grown round them by the debasing and sensual rites practised in the name of Tantra.

—Madras Mail

"Mr. Avalon in his publications insists on the greatness of the Tantra and seeks to clear away by a dispassionate statement of the real facts the cloud of misconceptions which have obscured our view of this profound and powerful system." —Sri Aurobindo in Arya

There is no doubt that the author has done good service to the Tantra Agama and students of philosophy in general by his scholarly contribution which has filled his heart and is a labour of love.

—Quarterly Journal of the Mythic Society

Permit me to seize this opportunity to congratulate you on the excellent get-up of your books of which I have "SERPENT POWER", "VARNAMALA" and "SHAKTI AND SHAKTA" all of which have been most enlightening. —A reader from Egypt
